TO REBEL IN CHINA

SOCIETY FOR THAT PURPOSE BEING ORGANIZED.

Branch of the New Society is Being Organized in Pendleton—Organizer Holds Meetings.

Choy Kon, organizer of the new Chinese association which is working for the overthrow of the Tartar dynasty which has been in power in China for the past 300 or 400 years, was in the city this week and held two meetings in Hendrick's hall, which were largely attended by Chinamen of all stations.

The name of the new organization is too much of a Chinese puzzle to appear in print, but the objects of the organization, as outlined by the speaker, and by influential Chinese who were interviewed regarding the matter, are to place on the throne of China the rightful heir, according to the doctrines of the original Chinese China a Conquered Nation.

The present ruler of China is not a real Chinaman, but is a descendant of the Tartars, who in 1642 overran China and conquered the people at that time inhabiting the country. When Peking, the capital city, was captured by the Tartars, owing to the treachery of his supposed friends, Sun-Che, the last emperor of the Ming dynasty and the last of the genuine Chinese rulers, threw himself into the Yangste River and ended his reign. It is to place on the throne of China the lineal descendant of Emperor Schun-Che, re-establish the Ming dynasty and introduce many reforms in the manner in which the government of China is administered that the organization represented by Choy Kon is working.

Emblems of Subjection.

The Tartar dynasty, of which the present emperor of China is a descendant, introduced the wearing of pig-tails, which at the time of its introduction was an emblem of the inferiority of the Chinese, and their subjection to the Tartars, and many other customs which are regarded as essentially Chinese, are in reality only the result of rigid regulations inflicted upon a conquered people by the Tartar conquerors.

Do Away With Many Things.

These and many other habits of the Chinese would be done away with by the new organization, which represents not only the "royalist" or "rightful heir" party, but as well the more progressive element of the Chinese people. The principal open missionary work for the new party is being done in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, as the workers in those fields can do more for the financial support of the party and have not the danger of losing their heads, which is ever present with those who advocate the party within the confines of China.

Many Organizers at Work.

Choy Kon is but one of many organizers who are working in the interests of the new association, and it is believed that within a few years the party will be strong enough to make itself felt in the management of the Chinese government. In this country the organization in every city where there is a population of 100 or more Chinese, erects or maintains its own hall or meeting place, and operates on the pattern of a well-managed club, being not only a hotbed of rebellion, but a fountain head of higher and progressive education as well.

Choy Kon will be back this way on Friday, at which time it is confidently expected by the Chinese of the city to perfect the organization of a branch of the new organization in Pendleton.

FIRE IN LODGING HOUSE.

Man Arrested Charged With Attempting Arson and Robbery.

About 5 o'clock this morning the occupants of the Penland Bros' lodging house, were rudely awakened by the alarm of fire. Upon investigation one of the rooms was found to be in a blaze, but it was discovered in time to be extinguished before any serious damage was done.

Whether or not the fire was set maliciously or was an accident, no one knows, and perhaps never will know, but it looks suspicious. About 1 o'clock this morning D. Turner, who is on the night police force, took a man named M. C. Robinson to the room in the lodging house and put him into bed. Robinson was drunk. At 5 o'clock fire was discovered in Robinson's room. He claims not to know how the fire started, but during the time the fire was being extinguished Robinson went into another room and was caught by Penland going through another fellow's pockets. Penland and Karl Churchhill took charge of Robinson and took him to police headquarters where he was locked up. When asked what he was searching for he claimed he was acquainted with the young man and asked him if he had smoking tobacco. He claimed further that the young man answered that his tobacco was in his pockets and told him to help himself. This was what Robinson claimed to be doing when he went through the pockets.

In evidence today the young man stated that he was not acquainted with Robinson and never told him to help himself to tobacco.

Whether or not Robinson set the room on fire with the idea of committing robbery during the excitement or not is not known but the evidence was such as to warrant Judge Fitz Gerald binding him over to the next term of the district court.

Robinson is a Texan, claims to have been a soldier in the regular army in the Philippines and was discharged in February. He has only been around Pendleton a few weeks and has been employed on a farm in Thorn Hollow.

WOOLEN MILLS.

A Little Information Regarding the Industry on the Pacific.

Tacoma is to have a woolen mill. At least such is the declaration of the Tacoma papers. The enterprise and public spiritedness that makes possible the inauguration of such an industry in the "City of Destiny," is to be commended. It is certain that Tacoma is in need of more industries. But just because Tacoma is to have a woolen mill is no reason why the Tacoma press should misrepresent the woolen manufacturing situation on the Pacific Coast. In a recent issue of the Tacoma Evening News under the caption, "Tacoma's Great Woolen Mill Project," appears the following enormous statement:

"There is no woolen mill of any importance on the Pacific Coast, and none nearer than the city of St. Paul, which is about 1850 miles distant."

Either the author of this statement is ignorant of the facts, or else he willfully misrepresents the situation. As for the State of Washington it may be said that woolen mills are not among the conspicuous industries. The state has but one little plant, and that is located in Seattle. Oregon, however, has made considerable progress in the manufacture of woollens, and while as yet but a small proportion of the annual clip is converted into cloth at home, the state has nine mills with a total capacity of 40 sets. Oregon City has a mill with 13 sets; Portland and Salem have mills of six sets capacity each; Albany, Eugene and Bandon have three-set mills each, and Pendleton and Brownsville have mills of two sets each. Perhaps the total consumption of these mills is 3,000,000 pounds of wool annually, and as the annual clip of Oregon approximates 20,000,000 pounds, it is to be seen that there is a large surplus for export. California has about a dozen woolen mills.

Perhaps the most singular announcement in connection with the Tacoma woolen mill enterprise is the proposal to import and manufacture the wools of Australia and New Zealand. This, in the face of an 11-cent duty, and the enormous wool production of the Pacific Coast, gives the enterprise a "fishy" aspect.

John Sparks, of Reno, Nev., will not show at the California state fair this year, preferring to show at the Oregon state fair instead. He has one of the finest herds of Hereford cattle in the United States and will exhibit 20 head at the fair this fall.

PEOPLES WAREHOUSE

WHEAT NOW 48 CENTS.

Has Fallen Four and a Half Cents Since Opening.

Wheat is now being quoted locally at 48 cents a bushel and the farmers are looking on with much apprehension.

With a good crop and prospects of a good price the farmers of Umatilla county were beginning to think they were in luck, but now they are not feeling so good. At least, most of them are not. Some took advantage of the early sales when they could get from 50 to 52 cents a bushel and let loose of their holdings, but owing to the fact that the indications were such as to lead farmers to believe instead of declining in price wheat would open strong and remain the same or perhaps, go higher, many held hoping to realize a profit thereby. In fact, few farmers were in any great rush to get rid of their crops. It is impossible to figure whether or not grain will continue to fall or will stand still for a while, then go up and consequently the matter of prices is now about all the Umatilla county farmer has to worry about.

It is estimated that in Umatilla county 100,000 bushels of wheat have been sold out of the 1902 crop. While this is less than one-third of the present crop it has brought a large sum of money into the hands of the lucky farmers. None has sold for less than 50 cents and from that to 52½ cents a bushel at the present price the markets are practically at a standstill.

Ambiguous.
