BOERS IN ENGLAND

Great Crowds Greeted the Famous Generals and Cheered Them to an Echo.

SITATED TO CONSENT TO MEET EDWARD.

They Were Too Tired, But Have Promised to Meet the King Later—They Will Visit the United States Before Returning to the Transvaal.

London, Aug. 16.—The steamer arrived at Southampton today with the Boer generals, Botha, De Wet and Dewet aboard. Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, Lords Roberts and Kitchener, and other distinguished Englishmen greeted them. They received a great ovation on the shore as well as those aboard the steamer Nigeria, where the Boer generals met Chamberlain, Roberts and Kitchener, cheered to an echo. Chamberlain and the British generals received their defeated foes with every evidence of cordiality. They clasped hands and shook them warmly and heartily, after which they returned apart from the crowd to have a private conversation. An invitation was extended to the Boers by the king that they visit him and his royal yacht. The Boers declined at first inclined to agree, but afterwards they declined the invitation, saying they were too tired to accept the naval review. Later they issued a statement in which they said they would go to Cowes tomorrow and have an audience with the king. They also announced their intention of visiting the United States before returning to the Transvaal.

In attempting to make the arrest Cofer shot the deputy in the leg. A number of persons are in pursuit of the criminal, and it is thought that he is surrounded in the hills near Athena. NEW EVAPORATION METHOD.

John H. Hammer and Grant Burrows have in hand for this season J. C. Wells' fruit dryer in Medford Messrs. Hammer & Burrows are now at work putting their dryer in order for the season's work, says the Democratic Times. One of the improvements that they expect to put in is a coal-burning furnace, the object being, to secure a more even degree of heat for the dryer, thus producing a better grade of dried fruit. Another decided innovation, that will be appreciated by consumers of prunes, is the doing away with the lye bath, that is used for cracking the skins of the prunes. While all the fruit that is treated to the lye bath is thoroughly washed in water before drying, yet there cannot but be small particles of lye adhering to the fruit. As lye is a poison, even this small quantity is a menace to the health of all those who use fruit prepared by that process. As prunes cannot be well dried without the skin is first broken, to permit the moisture to escape, Mr. Hammer has devised a prickling machine that is a decided improvement over other machines of a like kind, and which so perforates the prunes that they dry readily and evenly.

PUT OFF OF TRAIN.

Young Woman Was Put Off in Indian Reservation and Remained There All Day.

Having been put off a train at Gibbon, a station on the O. R. & N. line on the Umatilla reservation, and left there for several hours, is not a very pleasant experience, even for those acquainted with the country, let alone a stranger.

This is the experience of Miss Bell A. Adams, of Pittsburg, Pa., who went through Pendleton Friday morning on her way to Yellow Stone Park for an outing. Miss Adams, it seems, bought her ticket before leaving home, and had traveled in a roundabout way, stopping at different places of note until she reached here and had no questions asked about her ticket. When she boarded the outgoing train here Friday morning and showed her ticket the conductor told her it was no good. He said it was a scalper's ticket and she could not ride on his train without another ticket. The conductor put the ticket in his pocket and refused to give it back. Miss Adams remained on the train, claiming that the train started before she had time to get her things together and get off. She was taken to Gibbon and there told she would have to get off. She was accompanied by Miss Jessie B. Coventry and Mr. James Brownlee, who refused to go on without Miss Adams, and all got off the train and remained there until late last night, when the west-bound train came through, when they boarded it and came back to Pendleton. Miss Adams' ticket was all right. She wired back to the agent at Pittsburg, where she purchased it, and got word that the ticket was good anywhere and had been legitimately sold to her at that place.

THE ROYAL YACHT

King Edward Reviews the Great Naval Parade at Portsmouth.

GREAT TRONGS OF PEOPLE PRESENT.

Up One Line and Down the Other He Sailed Followed by a String of Yachts Bearing Important Personages.

London, Aug. 16.—The King of England aboard the yacht Victoria and Albert, reviewed England's fleet of warships assembled at Portsmouth this afternoon. Up one line of the vessels and then down another, four times passed his Majesty's yacht, followed by other yachts bearing members of parliament, and officers, representatives of Europe, reviewing families, members of London embassies and other favored guests. The Weather for the review was ideal.

Portsmouth, Aug. 16.—Today's naval pageant in celebration of the coronation of King Edward, though smaller than originally planned because of the absence of many of the foreign warships that were here in June, was nevertheless one of the grandest affairs of the kind in modern history. The town and harbor were astir early. Last evening and during the early morning hours excursion trains brought thousands of sightseers from London and the crowd was one of the largest ever assembled here. Immense throngs congregated along the sea front, and rounds of cheers mingled with the national anthem and salutes from the ships and land batteries as the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with the royal family aboard, hove in sight. The roads presented a striking spectacle, owing to the great gathering of warships, dressed from stem to stern and with their yards manned and their sides lined with their crews. The combined fleet was anchored in four lines, stretching from Horse Sand fort, at the lower end of Spithead, to beyond Cowes road. The British portion of the fleet combined 24 battle ships and 21 cruisers, selected from the Channel, Reserve and Cruiser squadrons, together with a number of specially commissioned ships. At the head of the principal line of ships was moored H. M. S. London, carrying the flag of the Prince of Wales as Admiral of the United Kingdom. The Prince of Wales was in supreme command, his subordinates being Vice-Admirals A. K. Wilson and Sir Gerald Noel, in the Majestic and Revenge respectively; Rear Admiral Sir W. A. Dyke Acland and Sir Baldwin W. Walker, in the Magnificent and Resolution, and Rear Admiral Pelham Aldrich and Admiral Sir Michael Cul-Seymour. Occupying a place of honor in the line was the splendid cruiser Good Hope, the gift of Cape Colony to the imperial navy. Though the foreign warships were not numerous they made an imposing show, and most of the flags of the civilized world were to be seen fluttering from the mastsheads. Conspicuous in the line were the Japanese cruisers Amasa and Takasaga. The navies of the United States, Denmark, France Germany, Russia, Spain and the Argentine Republic were likewise represented.

The review occupied more than three hours and was conducted amid a constant booming of guns, the playing of bands and cheers from thousands of throats. Tonight a grand scene will be presented by the illumination of the ships and the harbor.
