The Modern Woodmen meet to night. Business of importance.

Large numbers of campers are returning to the city, being driven home by the cold, damp weather.

Two cars of Seattle Elks passed through Sunday on their way home from the Elks' carnival, at Salt Lake.

The body of Mrs. Frances Lockwood, who died at Umatilla last Thursday evening, was taken to Echo Sunday, the interment being held there in the afternoon. Mrs. Lockwood was a pioneer of the county and her last obsequies were largely attended.

Some careless camper was the cause of quite a fire in the Beech creek country last week, several sections of land being burned over. It started near the bridge on Beach Creek at the corner of the McAulley pasture, a favorite place for campers, and burned on the west side of the creek north to the junction of the west fork, a distance of over two miles.—Canyon Eagle.

POLICE COURT GRIND.

A Day's Dealing With Hoboes and Suspicious Characters.

The police court was busy this morning, several cases being disposed of, the leave-overs of Saturday and Sunday.

Four hoboes were given short shift to get out of town, and got before the time limit expired.

Charles Johnson, drunk and disorderly, was fined $5 or 10 days in jail for this offense and indecent exposure of his person on the streets. John Moore, Frank King and Thomas Brady were arrested on suspicion of being tough characters, they being caught promenading back streets and eyeing carefully the windows of a number of prominent business houses. They were given 10 days in jail and their sentence suspended on their promise to leave town, which they did without loss of time.

James Radigan, who was sent up for 30 days last spring and released upon his promise to leave the state and stay away for one year, got as far as Athena and then got in trouble over a horse stealing. He was recaptured here yesterday and today sent in to serve the balance of his time of 30 days, of which he had served six when released. He will now serve the remaining 24 days.

Pioneer Died in East.

Harvey A. Hogue, well known to all early residents of The Dalles, died at the home of his son in Massachusetts Friday. Mr. Hogue was in business here from 1861 to 1866 and later in '69 was commissioned superintendent of the mint building, moving to Portland in '71, when the appropriation was exhausted and work stopped. With Mrs. Hogue he was visiting their son Chester, at Winthrop Beach, Mass., intending to return this summer. His illness, however, prevented his removal and he died there Friday.—The Dalles Chronicle.

Free Watering Place.

An effort is being made by Milton business men to establish a free watering place on the mountains between here and the toll gate. Road Supervisor Campbell has secured the right from James Thompson to pipe water from a spring on his place just beyond The Tanks to the public road. It will require 1300 feet of pipe and the entire expense is estimated at $200. A watering place there would be a great convenience to the traveling public and the movement should receive the hearty support of every one in this vicinity.—Milton Eagle.

AN EXCITING TIME.

Building in Elgin Struck by Lightning and People Shocked.

William Krassig, the well-known barber, had quite an experience while at Elgin, a few days ago.

About 11 o'clock, Friday night, the dry goods store of Summers & Levi, at Elgin, was struck by lightning, while a heavy rain and thunder storm was in progress, and the entire front of the building was badly wrecked. The plate glass was shattered and the woodwork scorched and twisted. Pieces of lumber from the building were thrown across the street and the shock was felt severely by people at the extreme end of the block in which the building was situated, Mr. Krassig being one of these.

The dynamo of the electric light plant was also destroyed by the shock, and darkness fell over the town. The building struck by lightning caught fire and great excitement prevailed, people running in all directions, calling "fire," and but for the heavy rain and prompt work of the fire department the dry goods stock of Summers & Levi would have been destroyed. As it was, however, but little damage was done.
