WALLA WALLA'S STREETS.

Long and Short, Crooked and Straight, According to the Union.

Long streets, short streets, crooked streets, straight streets are to be found in the city of Walla Walla in much greater proportion than any other city of its size in the West. And, indeed, in this respect it will compare favorably with the "Hub of the Universe," for crooked streets. Boston is said to have the narrowest and most crooked streets of any city in the United States, and while many of the streets of this city are straight and are laid out with a fair degree of regularity in some portions, the rest of them have cut the city up like a number of bugs will a patch of sand.

It is said that the Indians of this country are partly responsible for this. According to tradition, Boyer avenue and what is now Main street were once upon a time the old Nez Perce Indian trail. When the white man first settled in this valley they built their shacks along the side of this trail. Then the Caucasian got together and decided that there should be a town here. By and by population increasing, streets were beginning to be laid out after a fashion. Then the trouble commenced. To lay a street so that it would cross Main street it was necessary to pull a house out of the way on either side. Some of the houses happened to be wider than others and for that reason some of the streets that cross Main in the business section of the city are wider than others. Then, too, Main street takes a bend at the creek, and this made all of the streets on one side take a corresponding bend.

Mill creek, running through the center of the city, is responsible for more of the crooked streets than any thing else. To avoid building too many bridges streets have been laid so that it is not necessary to bridge the creek in a number of places that would otherwise have been the case. Many of the thoroughfares of Walla Walla take curves and in some blocks complete geometrical figures can be found by a bird's eye view of the block.—Union.

BLUSHING IS A DISEASE.

Scientist Declares That It Is Caused by Nervousness.

Dr. Eulenburg, the noted Vienna scientist, who has made an especial study of blushing, declares that it is a disease of the nerves, and that the women of America suffer far less from the affliction than those of Europe. Dr. Eulenburg recently returned from a visit to America and hence speaks with some degree of authority. Some very interesting cases of blushing American society girls came under his observation. Europeans, he says, are wont to call the American girl unduly advanced and calculating, but my observation shows that she has a great deal of sensitiveness stored, for if she had not, the blood would not rise so often to her cheeks on small provocation, or for no provocation at all.

He tells of a certain Newport heiress, extremely pretty, who was driven to forswear society because the unfortunate affliction extended to her beautiful neck and arms, and thus prevented her from appearing in full dress. She suffered not only outwardly, but lost all self-control when blushing. Her thoughts became "all mixed up" and she could not speak connectedly. She underwent treatment for nervousness, but the doctors could not help her.

Another singular case was that of a leading actress who consulted the doctor during his trip to the United States. She had ruined her complexion, says he, by excessive use of white grease paint applied to cover her blushes, which marred her performance. She blushed whenever anything went wrong behind the scenes or on the stage, and had no control of her emotions.

Dr. Eulenburg has discovered that those addicted to blushing suffer less in summer than in the cold months, and that summer is the best time in which to be treated for the annoying disease. There are critical times, even in the warm months, for the blusher. When a thunderstorm is in the air, and in the damp of the early morning and late at night, persons addicted to the habit blush most often and most violently, says the professor. Strong men do not blush except under extraordinary circumstances. Blushing men are seldom cured, for they are often sufferers from heart disease.

Silence is Confession.

The silence of the republican textbook on three of the most vital issues of the hour—justice to Cuba, reciprocity with foreign nations and tariff reform is a confession that the campaign managers of that party desire to dodge these questions until, as they put it, "a republican majority is secure for the next congress."

If the attitude of the party on these questions, as disclosed at the late session of congress, were such as to commend itself to the judgment of reasonable men, an explanation and defense of it would help the managers to secure an endorsement from the people. That they prefer to keep silent on these issues and to shout "Prosperity" is plain proof that they are afraid of their position.

Fortunately it does not lie with any set of campaign managers to decide what the voters shall think and talk about. The people are deeply interested in all these questions, and the democrats are in a splendid position to force the fighting—provided they can rid themselves of distrusted leadership and dead issues.—New York World.

From there they will go to Puget Sound points, principally Seattle, where they will take in the Elks' carnival. Leaving Seattle, they will visit Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., and other points on the Canadian side of the line. They will be gone about two weeks.

Ravaged by Grasshoppers.

According to the statement of A. R. Locke, six acres of oats on the farm of Alfred Bicknell, north of Corvallis, has been almost destroyed by grasshoppers. Samples of the ruined oats, together with a spray of thrifty oats from an adjoining field, were brought by Mr. Locke to the Times office, where they are to be seen. The heads of the damaged stalks are almost as bare of grain as if they had been run through a threshing machine and indeed, look like they might have been picked up from a straw pile.—Corvallis Times.

Baseball Notes.

"Spec" Hurlburt, crack fielder for the Northwest league, and lately with Walla Walla, left that team last night for Oakland, Cal., where he will operate for some time.

Swindells, Walla Walla's catcher, also went the same evening to Tacoma, where he will catch.

Umpire Breed states that the reason he called Treadway out in the last half of the ninth at Walla Walla Sunday afternoon was because he did not go back to his base after the ball was caught, but played off.

A Mining Visitor.

Percy F. Godenrath, a press correspondent of Greenwood, B. C., is in the city from Spokane. During the past three years Mr. Godenrath acquired a considerable area of coal lands in the Similkameen coal basin, and has recently interested Spokane capital in a company known as the Osoyoos and Similkameen Coal and Exploration Company. Local parties have subscribed to the stock and it is on company business, as well as for a few days' change that he has come to this city.

THE SHIRT WAIST.

Its Introduction Due to Empress Eugenie of the French.

To whom will future historians accord credit this most commendable innovation, the shirt waist? Is there any one woman's name to link with it, or did it spring up sporadically all over the two great republics, the expression of liberty and emancipation even for women?

Essentially democratic as the garment is, its inception was in the brain of a woman set as high by fortune as she was by nature, as royal as she was lovable. It is difficult for us today to connect the bowed, venerable, earth among us with anything so youthful and girlish as our present cherished; but without doubt authorities in decades to come will say:

"Yes, it is to her, in her generous tribute to the noble Italian patriot, Garibaldi, starving, fighting, dying in his old red blouse, that we owe the shirt waist—to the gentle and beautiful Eugenie, Empress of the French!"—Good Housekeeping.

A WEEK'S WEATHER.

What Was Done Out to Pendletonians Last Week in This Place.

Sunday was the hottest day of last week, the temperature getting as high as 100 in the shade, while the minimum for that day was 48 degrees, giving a mean temperature of 74 and a range of 52. Monday's hottest time was 97, with a range of 48 and 49 degrees as the lowest temperature recorded. Tuesday saw the mercury up to 91 with 51 as the low point, 71 the mean and 40 the number of degrees of fluctuation. On Wednesday the thermometer ran all the way from 93 for high to 49 as the lowest point, giving a range of 44 degrees and a mean temperature of 71. Thursday was rather a mild day, 88 being the highest point reached and 54 the lowest with a mean of 71 and a range of 34 degrees. Friday was still cooler, the highest reach of the heat measure being 85 degrees, the lowest 61, making this the second warmest average day of the week, the minimum being 73 and the range but 24 degrees.

Saturday saw the least fluctuation of temperature of any day of the week, there being but 20 degrees of change, from 74 to 54, average temperature 64. But one day was clear last week, Sunday being the date. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday partly cloudy was marked up on the weather board, while Thursday, Friday and Saturday went on record as cloudy. The wind blew from the north on Sunday, from the northwest on Thursday and from the west all the rest of the week.

Sheep Sent East.

At Meacham there were loaded for shipment East, last Saturday, about 4000 sheep belonging to Guthrie & Co., the shipment being the first of a number which will be sent out this fall. The present shipment were all spring lambs and as fine a lot as anyone would wish to see. This is believed to be well among the first shipments of Oregon sheep to Chicago this season.
