News From Weston.

Weston, Aug. 20.—The threshing crews that were compelled to lay off, because of the rain, a day or two the latter part of last week, are busy again all around Weston.

The rain and cold weather during the latter part of last week started the Weston colony at Cold Springs towards home. Mrs. Slim Barnes and family, Mrs. Lizzie Murphy, Mrs. Eva Shellenberger, Mrs. Alice Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Purcell and Miss Ona Marsh coming on Saturday, and more have been following every day since.

Robert Kilgore and wife spent Sunday at Bingham Springs.

Mrs. James Ritchey and family have gone to Bingham Springs to remain for a week or ten days.

Miss Bessie Watts, a normal school graduate, passed the teacher's examination at Walla Walla last week, and has secured a place as teacher in school near Watsburg for the coming year.

The haunting fear that has been felt by the majority of the people of Weston, ever since the robbery of the Freewater saloon, was relieved for a time last night, when it was learned that Marshal Lavender, Charles Curtis and George Reynolds had taken a fearful leave of absence of their friends, and gone in search of the bold robbers, but alas for the weakness of human hopes, the posse returned this morning without the desperadoes, and the old anxious expression has again settled on the faces of our people.

It is said that the O. R. & N. has suspended the regular time table out this way, at least the trains do not seem to have any regular time, but just get here once in a while. Weston people are thinking of offering a reward for the first crew that arrives on time.

IT IS CIRCUS DAY

BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST IS IN TOWN.

Great Crowds of Visitors Throng the Streets to Witness the Big Parade and the Performance This Afternoon is Well Attended.

Pendleton is full to overflowing with visitors today, the farmers having all knocked off harvesting and come to the city to see Buffalo Bill's Wild West shows, and even the entire Indian population of the reservation, coming in to take in the show.

The big aggregation of rough riders arrived in the city early this morning and when an East Oregonian reporter visited the show grounds a scene of intense activity was presented, hundreds of men running in all sion. Everyone was rushing about in the greatest excitement, yet each knew exactly where he was going, and in a few moments order appeared out of the chaos and the parade was ready to start.

The Parade.

Another bugle call, the shrill squeal of the fifes, the rattle of drums, and the great procession was under way. First came a fife and drum corps of the United States army, followed by a carriage in which the head of the show, Colonel William Cody himself, rode. After the carriage a band of Brule Sioux, a squad of German Hussars, a brass band in the typical wagon, more Sioux, Cossacks in their queer costumes, English cavalry, which served in South Africa, a U. S. life-saving corps with their paraphernalia, five Western girls riding with all the grace and abandon of true Westerners, a number of vaqueros from the plains of Mexico, a bunch of squaws in all their finery, then the crowning feature of the parade for most of the crowd, the cowboy band on horseback, a squad of American rough riders, a detachment of Cubans, then a string of Bengal lancers, a band of Ogallala Sioux, Cody's historic stage coach, a big crowd of typical cowboys, Winnebago Sioux, another band, a corps of American cavalry, and artillery to bring up the rear.

Everything is Real.

There is a noticeable absence of the glitter and glare of the average circus parade about the Buffalo Bill exhibition, which might detract from the merit of the pageant in the minds of the average child, woman or man, but when it is considered that in this show there is no sham but that everything is exactly what it is represented to be, the true educational value of the performance becomes apparent. Instead of tired, gaudily-painted and attired riders representing knights of the medieval ages and performing tricks and acts learned especially for show purposes, one sees with the Wild West people who are actually what they are represented to be, doing exactly what they did for a livelihood before entering the circus arena. Every person appearing on horseback in the parade is guaranteed to be exactly what they are represented to be, no sham of any kind being perpetrated.

Big Crowds Attend.

This afternoon the huge show is packed with pleased visitors to witness the deeds of horsemanship and daring which are being illustrated, and it is expected that the evening performance will be even better patronized.

The East Oregonian is requested by Mr. Cody (Buffalo Bill) to state that there will be no curtailment of the evening performance, but that the show will be given in its entirety. As this is probably the last opportunity the people of this section will have of viewing the Wild West, there will be few who will fail to take advantage of the chance offered.

directions, raising canvas, pulling and hauling at ropes, and getting the big grounds in shape for the two performances to be given, this afternoon and evening.

Men of All Nations.

Cossacks, from Russia, Sioux Indians, English cavalry from South Africa, dusky-skinned Bengal lancers, direct from the "jungle book" country, rough riders who served at San Juan, Cubans who fought in the war with Spain, Hussars from the German army, Arabs in national costume, Mexican Vaqueros, and men of many other nations, moved back and forth in preparation for the great parade, while all over the grounds could be heard the gurgling notes of the big bass horns, the smooth sliding tone of the baritone, the squeal of the fife and clarionets, the bands being in practice to "warm up" for the morning's work.

Many Sightseers.

In and out among the hordes of workers wandered myriad sightseers, both white and redskins, getting in the road and out again with cheerful equanimity and utter disregard of the warnings of the show attaches.

The hundreds of horses stood patiently by until suddenly a bugle sounded from somewhere, then the scene formerly one of bustle and energy became that of apparent confu-

HARVEST HANDS ARE LIVELY

THEY KEPT THE POLICE BUSY LAST NIGHT.

A Few Fights and Drunks and an Exciting Chase Occupied the Night.

The police say there were more drunks and rowdiness in town last night than any one night for several weeks. It is now becoming the time of year that many of the harvest hands, who have worked in the fields, are beginning to be paid off and are coming to town to blow their money. While a great many of these men are sober and industrious, still a great many more of them like drink and when they get a little overloaded are not capable of behaving themselves and at once trouble is started. Sometimes the very best of friends fall out and fight and the next morning they face each other in police court and are fined for their fun.

Two Drunks This Morning.

Two men, Jack Brown and Frank Lewis, were arrested last night and thrown into Marshal Blakley's hotel "de jug" where they remained until this morning when they were sobered up. They were taken before Judge McCourt, of the police court, and Brown was fined $5. Lewis was assessed the same, but pending good behavior the fines were remitted and the men allowed to go their way.

Two Fights.

Two fights were indulged in during the night. Charles Crowner was mixed in both. It seems that Crowner became too well filled with fighting booze and concluded that he could "lick" anybody who got in his way, and fired two shots into the ground. Frank was too much for him and Crowner got considerably the worst of the affair. They were arrested and each put up $10 bond to insure their appearance in police court this morning. Earnheart's bail money was returned to him.

The Second Fight.

Later in the night Crowner entered a saloon and becoming enraged at a man standing in the place, concluded to "wipe him off the face of the earth." Instead of doing as he intended the tables were turned and Crowner once more got the worst of the fight. While this fight was in progress, Officer Fee arrived on the scene and all of the participants, three in number, ran. Fee gave lively chase man who did the shooting. The trouble caused them to stop, but the fighters only ran faster.

Threshing Machine Explosion.

Walla Walla, Aug. 20.—Bass Brothers' threshing machine exploded while at work on Eureka flat yesterday. The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is thought that smut was to blame. The machine is almost a wreck, but no one was hurt.
