PERILS OF THE PROSPECTOR.

Two Baker City Men Encounter
Storms in the Mountains.

Thomas Daly and J. D. Channell reached home last evening after a hard trip through the upper country and tell of hair-raising escapades in connection with the journey, the most fatal being the loss of their pack animal and a portion of their outfit.

The men left this city Friday and reached the mountains in time to receive the full benefit of Friday night's storm. They had camped for the night, but derived little comfort from the rendezvous as it rained through the dark hours, and in the morning the ground was soaked and slippery, compelling the travelers to flounder about in deep mud before getting started. Their objective point was the head of Deer Creek, near the summit of the Blue Mountains, at a point midway between Sumpter and the range. Saturday, snow fell to a depth of two inches and navigation was further impeded.
While traversing a mountain pass, made slippery and dangerous by the turbulent elements, the pack horse lost his footing, and despite the combined efforts of the two men, the equine was precipitated down the mountain side, falling fully 300 feet.

His body struck a projection about 15 feet from the trail. The horse was dashed to pieces, his neck being broken and the body mutilated. He was laden with provisions, blankets, camping outfit and other paraphernalia of the prospectors. The pack-saddle was destroyed, as was much of the stuff it contained. Messrs. Chan-nell and Daly strapped the outfit saved upon the rear of their saddles and continued the journey. Mr. Channell experienced a most miraculous escape from being dashed to death.
When the pack-horse fell his riding animal also lost his hold upon terra firma and it was only after exerting Herculean efforts that he was brought back from the brink of the precipice.

They made the point chosen as the terminus of their tour and reached home none the worse for the hardships, but with a wholesome horror of making mountain passes in stormy weather.—Baker City Herald.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Two Men Killed in Bloody Battle at Wenatchie, Wash.

Wenatchie, Wash., Aug. 20.—Word comes from Chiwaukum, 33 miles from this place, of a bloody battle in which two men lost their lives, the victims being a camp cook by the name of McClay and John Williams, a brother-in-law of J. B. Woods, the man who did the shooting. The trouble arose over Williams beating his wife. Woods her brother interfered, and threats were made on both sides.

McCoy took sides with Williams and the two men assaulted Woods, who procured a Winchester rifle to protect himself. His assailants armed and a battle took place at short range, Williams proving the better shot and laying out his assailants.

Williams was a quarrelsome man and reputed to be dangerous, while Woods has a good reputation.

Woods Was Exonerated.

Late Saturday night the sheriff and County Attorney Reeves returned from the scene of the killing of Williams and McClay and report that the coroner's jury exonerated Woods and that he was entirely justified in the shooting. Woods fired 15 or more shots from a Winchester, six of which took effect, three in each victim.
McCoy was hit while running to get a rifle in a nearby cabin and died with his boots on. Williams succeeded in getting a shot in on Woods from under a car that was standing on a sidetrack, where these men had been loading wood when the quarrel began.
He then ran for cover, but was hit twice by Woods' deadly bullets. Running into a cabin and getting a rifle, Williams came out and again opened up on Woods from behind some logs and when in a sitting position was shot through the hips by Woods and died in 30 minutes. Williams leaves a wife, who is a sister to Mrs. Woods.
Nothing is known of McClay here.

Now is the Time to Go.
The seaside is now at its best. The weather is just right. Surf bathing delightful and fishing and clamming better than any other time. The O.
R. & N. Co. is still selling round trip tickets, good until September 30, at $10.

Held Up Banker's Wife.
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 20.—Mrs.
Fred W. Prentiss, wife of the president of the Hayden-Clinton National Bank was held up in her own home here yesterday by a masked robber and at the point of a revolver compelled to deliver $26,000 worth of diamonds.

It Pays to Trade at the Peoples Warehouse.

THE LEADERS

FEW GRAFTERS.

Are With Buffalo Bill—Two Blind Organ Grinders on the Street.

With the visit of a circus to a town comes all kinds of grafters.
This has been the case from time immortal and people have become to recognize them as apart of a circus.

Pendleton is comparatively free from these people, however, today.
Buffalo Bill's Wild West show is in town and of course there will be some grafters in spite of all the efforts of the company to keep them away.

The most pitiful object to catch the nickels of the people and appeal to the sympathy of them on the streets today is two organ grinders. One is a woman and the other a man. Both are blind and have their respective places on the street corners where they sit and grind out—no, not music —but it is not this which causes the passerby to pause and drop a dime in their hand, but their pitiful look. To take one glance at them is enough to melt the most cold-blooded.

Hand in a Sling.

John Baker is wearing his hand in a sling because of an abscess. He had been working for Mr. Hill in the harvest field and a blister was worn on the hand. From this an abscess formed and Mr. Baker was compelled to apply to a doctor and have it lanced today.
