WALLA WALLA WHEAT CROP

YIELD OF THAT COUNTY WILL FALL VERY SHORT.

Instead of the Average Yield of 3,700,000 to 4,000,000 Bushels, the Farmers Will be Lucky if They Get 3,500,000.

Walla Walla, Aug. 22.—The wheat yield of Walla Walla county, not long since the banner wheat county of the entire state of Washington, will this season fall materially below the normal yield, owing to the damage done by hot winds, and the "winter-killing" of much of the crop seeded last fall.

The average yield of this county is from 3,700,000 to 4,000,000 bushels, but dealers who are in close touch with the crop conditions say they will be more than satisfied this year if the yield is even as good as 3,500,000 bushels.

Crop Will be Short.

The crop this year would have been very badly cut short but for the fact that this has been an exceptional year for spring wheat and some of the farmers even go so far as to say that they would have been better off financially today had the entire wheat seeding frozen. The spring wheat which was sown to replace the "winter-killed" grain is doing splendidly and is turning off as high as 30 and 33 bushels per acre of first-class clean wheat, the average over the entire country being better than that of winter wheat.

Eureka Flat Goes Short.

Eureka Flat, nearly always the best section of the country is falling badly short this season and much of the cut down in the grain yield is accounted for on the flat. The average on the flat is not much increased this season but other parts of the country report largely increased acreages.

At some stations in the country more wheat will be received this year than last, owing to considerable areas of land which was in summer fallow last season being in crop this

TRAIL GROWS COLD

OUTLAW COFFER AND PAL HAVE DISAPPEARED.

The Officers, However, Are Not Idle Nor Discouraged, But Are Diligently at Work—A Great Many Theories.

No further trace of the whereabouts of Al Coffey and his pal, the Freewater holdup men, has been found and the sheriff's office is still as thoroughly at sea concerning their whereabouts as at any time since they so suddenly dropped out of sight after the holdup.

The Last Trace.

The last trace of the holdup men was lost in the Hudsons Bay country and all that can be done now is for the authorities to wait for them to bob up again before any organized effort can be made toward their capture. Sheriff Taylor has been on the alert since first having gone after the desperadoes to catch them, but his efforts have proven futile.

Speculations.

While there is not any definite news of the whereabouts of the robbers, and they may be many miles from here at this time, it is the supposition of the officers that they are still in the Hudsons Bay country. Many rumors are afloat as to their whereabouts as was in the case of the noted Tracy, but when a rumor is run down it invariably proves to be a canard. It is likely, however, that they are still in the neighborhood of where Deputy Ritchie's horse was found, as vigilant officers have been scouting the whole country where the robbers are likely to attempt to make their escape, and nothing has been seen of them. This being the case, it is possible that they are still lying in hiding in the Hudsons Bay country awaiting an opportunity to make their escape.

This could be done with comparative ease. Fruit and vegetables are plentiful in this country and the men could live there for weeks without attracting any more attention than an ordinary hobo. If this is their idea they will remain in the brush in the daytime and venture forth at night for forage until such a time they think the way clear for escape.

Another Theory.

Another theory is that they are being kept by friends. Coffey is familiar with every inch of the east end of the county and it is likely he and his pal have friends who are keeping them hid and furnishing them with the necessities of life. If this is being done it will be a hard matter to locate them. However, every effort is being made by Sheriff Taylor and if the men do not make themselves scarce he is likely to swoop upon them when least expected.

TERRORIZING HIS NEIGHBORS.

A. D. Rominus, of McKay Creek, Chased People With Deadly Weapons.

Word has reached this city that A. D. Rominus, living on McKay creek 15 miles from Pendleton, is having all kinds of fun at the expense of his neighbors. Rominus, his neighbors claim, is crazy. A few days ago he chased George Williams for a long distance with a gun. They were both on horses and Williams had the swiftest animal. He has run other people with guns, hatchets and any other dangerous instrument he could get his hands on. He tried to kill Arthur Rhodes and Clarence Moore they claim. These men were in town a few days ago and talked about swearing out a warrant for Rominus, but they went out without doing it, and it is now supposed the matter will be dropped unless Rominus breaks out afresh.

Some think he is crazy and should be locked up, while others who know him claim that the people he has been chasing with guns and hatchets have been worrying and teasing him and Rominus concluded to put a stop to it. He is an old man and said to be very erratic. He is an old-timer on the creek.

WANT SHORTER HOURS.

Pendleton Retail Clerks Are Striving For This Without Injury to Employers.

UNION STORE.

On and After Sept. 1, this Store will Close at 6 p. m., Except Saturdays.

The above is the wording on a card which is to be seen in almost every store window in Pendleton. For several months the local dry goods clerks and grocery clerks have been working for shorter hours behind the counters and now it seems that they are about to gain their point.

Pendleton has seven local labor unions that are working in conjunction with the National Federation of Labor. In these seven unions are nearly 200 men and women who earn their living by labor. These people have organized in unions to represent every class of laborers and say they have not only joined hands in trying to make their own lot easier, but at the same time not to injure their employers' business. It is contended that no class of laborers put in longer hours the year round than the retail clerks. They are required to be at their place of business from 6:30 or 7 o'clock in the morning until 8 or 9 in the evening. The object of the local union, it is claimed, is to cut these hours short if possible and at the same time do just as much business for the men they represent.

To this end the move for early closing was started. Most of the merchants have agreed to close at six in the evening and after the first of September those wishing to buy goods will confer a favor on the clerks if they will do their trading before this hour.
