THE MODERN DRUGGISTS

PENDLETON

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, 1902.

Pendleton's fire service is under discussion. This ought to bring about conditions that will result in general satisfaction.

Cuba is falling into American ways at a rapid pace. Havana now has a strike on almost as serious in proportion to population as the great American strike.

Sir Thomas Lipton may have a medium idea of navigating a yacht, but when he ran up against the automobile he doubtless thought he had been struck by a squall.

It was bad enough when the automobile were killing off the dudes and rich people, but now that they are attacking sultans, they should at once be suppressed.

In the Call-Gage fight in California, the convicts seem to be against Gage. If the governor would indicate that he had a few pardons up his sleeve he might change the tenor of the testimony.

The mimic war of the United States has been retarded by the fine weather. In real war neither good nor bad weather has troubled our navy; the only thing that ever worried it was to find the enemy. It was easy then.

Composite novels have had their day, good humor on a small scale is still read, but when one editor says something funny and another attempts to improve on it, and another, until it is strung out into half-column of puns and rehash, it causes the reader to feel for his gun.

The greatest evidence of the young king of Spain's malady is that he refuses to marry the girl they picked out for him. This should not be evidence of insanity at all. The king ought to have the right to marry whom he pleases, even if she should be freckle-faced and cross-eyed.

A little straight talk to the sultan from the United States Minister had a good effect. That country is beginning to deliver up goods and may continue until Uncle Sam is satisfied. The first act of the sultan was to deliver a package of insurance papers that had been wrongfully seized by the authorities of that country.

Sheriff Taylor does not take a score of newspaper reporters with him, or deputies either, when he goes hunting robbers, but if "Till" don't get them he will put them to a whole lot of trouble; and he don't mind picking up other criminals along the way either. One criminal "looks as good" to the Umatilla sheriff as another.

An epidemic of hold-ups is on. Strict vigilance on the part of officers and citizens will soon cause the apprehension of the prisoners, and quick punishment to the full extent of the law will soon rid the country of this class. Crime only rages at a given point for a limited time, where a determined effort is made to suppress it.

It is bad enough for Western Oregon to oppose the coyote bounty law, but when Baker and Malheur turn their swords upon themselves, then it makes their neighbors grieve. It is suggested that the commissioners' courts of those two counties erect statues to this much-abused animal for the good he has done. He may kill all of the sheep he pleases as long as he will kill an occasional jack rabbit when he can't find a sheep. The poor (?) coyote should not be killed, neither should he be scalped.

A La Grande paper devotes a double column editorial about an $8,000 residence that is to be constructed in that city. This is considerable space to use about one building, but when one comes to think about it, residence improvements are the best kind of improvements for a place, and it shows a confidence in a place that nothing but solid backing will inspire.

With all the hold-ups in the Inland Empire it does not indicate a bad citizenship here, neither does it show up badly for the country's condition. The highwaymen are all from the distance and they came here because the money is here. The reason that some sections are free from molestation by these scoundrels is that a highwayman would starve there if he should succeed in getting everything in sight.

Labor organizations are no longer experiments. Short hours and good work are better than long hours and poor work. The retail clerks of Pendleton should be encouraged in their efforts to obtain shorter hours, and the merchants will soon see the good that is accomplished. When the people once learn that they must trade within certain hours they will take to it as willingly as they do to postoffice hours and railroad schedules. In one city where short hours have been given the clerks, the merchants who first opposed it are now heartily in accord. They say that they are as much benefited by it as the clerks. Upon the closing of the stores their responsibilities also cease and they have more time for recreation and to be with their families. Short working hours means much longer life for the employer and the employe.

RIGHTS OF INDIANS.

The Herald received some more literature from that highly patriotic organization, the Indian Rights association, of Philadelphia.

Of course, people who live in Philadelphia know all about the manner in which the down-trodden Indians are being treated.

They know that he is being robbed in the most conscienceless style and that he is the incarnation of injured innocence.

The Philadelphia association is particularly strenuous just now in objecting to the policy of dividing lands of the Indians, giving them all they need for themselves and in turning over the balance to white settlers for a fair compensation.

"We are not ready to believe," says the society, "that the American people will sanction a policy of confiscation and injustice toward the Indian race."

"Yet there is need of rousing the public conscience to the danger that threatens."

In spite of the gloomy view taken by the Philadelphians, the Herald cannot see that the Indians are in any very grave danger of losing their property without sufficient recompense.

As a matter of fact, the majority of the Indian tribes are far better off financially than the average American householder.

If the government has been at fault at all in its treatment of "the wards of the nation" the fault has been on the side of liberality.

Under the system of free rations, money for grazing leases, mineral leases and the sale of lands, large funds have been created for the special use and benefit of the Indians.

In no instance have they been improperly deprived of their property. Today much of the finest agricultural land in the entire west is held by the Indians.

And in nearly every instance such land is almost entirely unproductive. The Indian is not a farmer, he is a pensioner.

The latter is his trade and he works overtime at it. With rare exceptions, Indians are lazy, shiftless and unclean.

They are hardly to be blamed for it either, for the government has rather encouraged their indisposition to any kind of labor.

If the red men were compelled to shift more for himself he would be better off mentally, physically and morally.

Senator Platt of Connecticut states the case when he says:

"In regard to that subject, there is a sentiment in the country which holds amongst philanthropists and humanitarians, that we ought to pay the Indians what their land is worth at the present time, upon the idea that it belongs to them. I do not share in that idea. I think that when we make an Indian tribe rich we delay in civilization."—Baker City Herald.

THE GAME OF WAR.

Within the next few days the greatest game of war ever played for practice merely, upon this continent, will be carried out by American soldiers and sailors at a cost for blank cartridges and other supplies estimated at $1,000,000.

It would be a very regrettable result of the burning of so much powder if it fostered in our young men an increase of the spirit of conquest and bloodthirstiness. There is quite enough of this already. No nation is likely to attack us, and we should certainly require great provocation before we attack another.

But this game is to be one of defense, for which a nation should always be prepared. The army and the navy are great machines. To make them worth the money they cost they must be exercised, armed, ready. The accurate shooting of our gunners in Manila Bay and off Santiago was the result of practice.

But every lover of his country who appreciates "the true grandeur of nations" will hope that blank cartridges may not soon again give place to shot and shell.—New York World.

A Quart Baby.

Now and again there is an item in the newspapers concerning the birth of a puny baby so small that a quart cup holds it comfortably. If the article told all the facts it would probably tell also of a mother who in weakness and misery had looked forward to the baby's advent with shrinking and fear.

To have fine, healthy children the mother must be healthy, and it is the common testimony of mothers that the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only promotes the mother's health but also gives her strength to give her child.

"Favorite Prescription" accomplishes these results by tranquilizing the nerves, promoting a healthy appetite, and giving refreshing sleep. It increases physical vigor and gives great muscular elasticity, so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best of tonics for nursing mothers.

"I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. W. G. Stephens, of Milledgeville, Ga. "Before my third little boy was born I took six bottles. He is the finest child and has been from birth, and I suffered very much less than I ever did before. I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use the 'Favorite Prescription.'"

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"PE-RU-NA NECESSARY TO THE HOME,"

(Says Prof. Talfourd Smith, of Georgia.)

Professor Talfourd Smith, Principal Siloam High School, Siloam, Ga., writes: "With much pleasure I recommend Peruna to all who may be suffering with any trouble of the respiratory organs. I have been using it in my family for the past five or six years and find it to be almost a household necessity. Peruna is truly a grand catarrh remedy and general tonic and will do all that is claimed for it by the manufacturers."—PROF. TALFOURD SMITH.

Catarrh is inflammation of the mucous membrane. It may be in the mucous membrane lining the eyes or the pelvic organs, throat, stomach, liver, bowels or kidneys.

Catarrh is catarrh wherever located. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is an internal remedy; not a local application.

Catarrh is a systemic disease, not a local disease. If Peruna will cure catarrh in one place it will cure it in any other place, because Peruna is a systemic remedy. It reaches the disease through the circulation in each organ. It eradicates the disease by eradicating it from the system.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
