WHERE HOBOS REIGN

PASCO AND WALLULA ARE OVERRUN.

Drummers Passing Through Those Places Are Afraid to Leave the Light at Night—Citizens Are Getting Tired of Criminals.

Travelling men in town who are compelled to pass through Pasco and lay there several hours sometimes on account of late trains, say that if there is a place in the Northwest that has more than the usual amount of tramps of all kinds it is that place. Every city, town or village has its usual quota of hobos in the summer, but Pasco is so far ahead of itself this season that the residents of the place say other years the tough element was not in it at all.

"Big tramps, little tramps, desperate and degenerate men and even the lowest types of hobos who have drunk so much they are incapable of doing harm are to be found in that town," said a traveling man this morning. "They are smooth ones, too. They seem to know when the officers of the law are after them and shift over to Wallula, where there are no officers or to some other little neighbor town where they will not be molested."

"The people of Pasco and Wallula are becoming tired of this state of affairs. They say desperate efforts must be made to make the life of the hobo miserable in that vicinity the same as it is done in the cities, and in this way they may be deterred from seeking the place in such large numbers. Many think there is a regularly organized gang of these toughs working in Pasco and Wallula. From this head all the operations of a shady nature is hatched and the members of the gang work all over Walla Walla, Umatilla, Franklin and Yakima counties. Many efforts have been made to find out who is leading this band and if possible land them where they belong, but so far the efforts of the officers have been in vain."

That the tough element working out of Pasco and Wallula is responsible for a great many of the crimes committed in Eastern Oregon and Washington there is no doubt. Drummers and transients who have had to stop during the night in those places who are at all acquainted with the conditions will not stir from the depot into the darkness and by being cautious many crimes are avoided. Those in a position to know have said time and again that it was more than their lives were worth to venture from the light or out of speaking distance at those places.

Both Pasco and Wallula have been noted as headquarters for crooks for many years and in spite of all efforts made to suppress them they seem to multiply and give both places a bad reputation. This year, however, seems to be rivaling all former years.

One is reminded of early border life when men were robbed and in many cases shot down with utter disregard for life.

welfare rests upon the results of the meeting. Though the matter has been closely guarded it has leaked out that a certain element of the order, said to be led by Judge James Schoonmaker, former supreme chief ranger, is dissatisfied with the present methods of making loans and investments of the reserve funds of the society and has brought about the present meeting for the purpose of urging a full investigation. It is rumored that the dissatisfied element may secede from the supreme body unless their demands are met.
