YOUNG DRISKEL DEAD.

Dies Suddenly at Read's Camp on Weston Mountain, Where He Had Gone For Health.

Weston, Sept. 2.—Rosco Driskel died very suddenly, of heart disease, at Read's camp on Weston mountain, Saturday morning. The young man who was the second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Driskel, has been in poor health for some time, and a few days ago concluded to go to the mountains for a short camping trip, with the hope that the outing would be of benefit. About 2 o'clock Saturday morning Mr. Read heard Driskel, who was sleeping just outside of his cabin, struggling for breath, and called to him saying that he had better come inside, this he did, and a bed was made up for him, and everything was done by Mr. and Mrs. Read that was possible under the circumstances, but he was beyond help, and died 30 minutes later. The body was brought to Weston Saturday evening, and the funeral services were held at 6 o'clock last night, Rev. Walter Payne, pastor of the U. B. church assisted by C. R. Lamar pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. The interment was in Odd Fellows cemetery, Weston. W. T. Driskel who has been working at his trade at Colfax, Wash., for some time past, returned home last evening to attend the funeral services of his son.

Weston Notes.

Porter G. Graham, one of Weston's most promising young men, joined the ranks of the benedicts yesterday. The bride was Miss Edith Grove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Grove, of Athena, where the wedding took place. C. W. Hoag, pastor of the M. E. church, south of Weston, officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Price and Mr. and Mrs. Leo McBride are spending a few days in camp life on Weston Mountain. They expect to bring back a good supply of huckleberries.

Newspapers.

An exchange does not think newspapers are properly appreciated. It says:

"In these days when there is an effort to disparage the public press, it is refreshing to have the newspaper properly appreciated. A newspaper is practically a public institution. While each reflect individual opinions nevertheless these opinions are molded largely by the public sentiment of the community—thus making it at once the leader and exponent of its constituency. Added to this is the other function of news gathering, which makes the daily paper a cyclopedia of current history. Along these lines the following extract from an address to a body of students by Secretary of the Navy Moody are pertinent and to be commended:

"Every man should read one good newspaper each day. I do not mean, of course, that he should read everything in it; but he should go over the entire contents, carefully making his selections and reading attentively the articles which give promise of being helpful and instructive. The weekly and more particularly the monthly reviews, are also of great value, from the fact that they familiarize their readers with current history—which, after all, is the most important history—while at the same time possessing some advantages over the daily newspapers, because the editors are not compelled to accept first reports, and also have the opportunity to correct any inaccuracies which may creep into hurriedly prepared discussions of subjects. Nevertheless these reviews must ever but supplement the daily newspapers, for we are not content, in this age, to wait until the end of the month for our news."
