THE MODERN DRUGGISTS

PENDLETON

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1902.

Do not forget the Eastern Oregon Woolgrowers' Association meets here September 16.

And now grafters are trying to graft the magnates of the steel trust. It is a case of dog eat dog.

The last of the fakirs of this harvest season are doing the town. Crime is also decreasing. Only one "human being" was incarcerated in the city jail last night.

Tom Johnson lauds Bryan for the latter's work. It may be well to laud Bryan for what he has done as he will not probably do much more that will be effective.

President Roosevelt will hunt lions in November. Teddy, Jr., ought to go along. If he should fail to get a shot at a lion he might take a pot shot at his companions.

The southern cotton mills have been merged, the telephone systems of the west will be merged, and if this merging keeps increasing there will be nothing left to merge very soon.

The death of Thumler and his paramour on the high seas brings to a quick end a guilty life. They had eloped from San Francisco, Thumler leaving a wife in Chicago. The wages of sin is death.

The King of Italy has shown himself both progressive and liberal. He has placed at the disposal of Marconi, the inventor, a battleship in order that he may continue experiments with his wireless telegraphy system.

Now that it has been demonstrated that our defenses are weak at the entrance to New York harbor, a big appropriation will be in order at the next session of congress. It is a question of whether it is weak or whether there is a graft behind it all.

The selection of the site of the coming Lewis and Clarke exposition at Portland is at last to be made. Its location has been as difficult as was the capture of Tracy. The wrangle over the location began about the time the noted outlaw made his escape from the Salem prison.

If some of the foreign countries think Uncle Sam's coast defenses are weak they ought to pick up a row with this country and test the matter. There is a sort of idea prevailing in this country that Americans fight better in real war than they do in mimic maneuvers.

George Hart, a Philippine soldier, has sustained the reputation of his namesake, the "Father of his country." The war records had George down as dead with cholera, and though George is patriotic and did not like to place the records in a false light, his love for the truth compelled him to come out and announce that he was not dead.

The Chinese outrage in Malheur county will be investigated. It is claimed to have been one of the greatest outrages of the kind in this country. It was purely a case of assault and robbery. It was not a race riot, but a deliberate crime against the laws. The same punishment should be meted out to the criminals as should be done had all of the persons involved been white men and American citizens. Too many crimes are committed under the excuse of prejudice against certain classes. The criminals are ever looking for an excuse to commit crime, for he gets to liking it. It becomes a habit, a vocation the same as any other calling.

It has at last been decided to evacuate the northern portion of the Martinique island, and it is stated that the southern portion may be eventually abandoned. Its strikes the average citizen of this quiet and undisturbed country very forcibly that Mont Pelee gave a "hint" several weeks ago sufficiently plain to have caused every one that could to have abandoned that fire and flame-cursed country long before this.

The Boer generals are again in London and they are receiving an ovation equally as great as upon their former visit. The liberty idea set on foot in this country in 1776 is growing with such rapid strides that the crowned heads, if they knew the real sentiment of all mankind, would be able to see the end of monarchies and serfdom. Republican forms of government, in sentiment, have arrived throughout the country, and they came to stay. It is not to the Boers that the people of England are paying tribute, but to the cause they fought for.

CONGRESSIONAL SERVICE.

One of the most gratifying features of the republican situation in this campaign is the extent to which the present members of congress have been renominated. It is an evidence that the party has learned the value of maintaining at Washington men who by long service there have fitted themselves to take an influential part in national legislation and to guard and advance the interests of California and of their own districts.

The need of experienced men in congress has hardly ever been greater than at present. It is becoming more and more evident that despite the disastrous results of the tariff tinkering a few years ago the issue of tariff revision is going to be one of the most important before the next congress. In the eastern states the movement among democrats is to revive the cry for tariff reform and to make a campaign of education for the presidential election in 1904. Moreover, a considerable number of republicans have shown themselves willing to enter upon reciprocity treaties that would materially affect many American industries. It so happens that in the early movements toward reciprocity and tariff tinkering the industries of California are more extensively exposed than those of any other one state, or perhaps any other two or three states. We need, therefore, at the capital, men who will be of sufficient influence and force to guard California interests not only against the possibility of democratic tariff tinkering, but also against the danger involved in the various reciprocity propositions that may be brought forward by republicans themselves.

In all lines of work experience counts for much, but in hardly any other line does it count for so much as in a congressional career. The older states of the Union learned long ago the value of keeping a strong delegation at Washington virtually unchanged from one congress to another. The result has been that states of comparatively minor importance have by reason of the long service of their representatives held in congress much higher prestige than states far more wealthy and more populous.

California constituencies can learn a profitable lesson from the example of the states whose people have had sense enough to re-elect good men term after term instead of hunting at every election for a new man. Our state has many important interests whose development is largely dependent upon legislation at Washington. The recent large appropriation for rivers and harbors and the passage of the irrigation bill may be taken as evidences that the nation is about to enter upon an epoch of internal improvements and developments on a scale far surpassing anything that has been done hitherto. The west will of course be the scene of the greatest of those activities, and California as the Empire state of the West ought to have at Washington a delegation able to take the lead in shaping the work.—New York World.

THE WATER CURE.

Of all the kind and Christian ways, The most humane and sure, Of obtaining information, Is, perhaps, the water cure.

It's a thing I've made a study of; And, if you will allow, And lend me an attentive ear, I'll prove it to you now.

We'll suppose you've caught a native; And you've plucked him tight, Till his elbows grip behind him, And the cords cut in and bite.

And you want some information, But he answers, "Amigo!" And perhaps he doesn't understand, Or else he doesn't know.

So you kick his legs from under; And you fling him on the floor; And you fill your biggest buckets, From the butt behind the door.

And you jam a funnel in his mouth, And deluge water down, Until he's swollen horribly, And just about to drown.

Then grasp your rifle, muzzle end (Here's where you're most humane) And ram his stomach with the butt, To squeeze him out again.

And so, repeat the dose until He's at his dying throes, When he generally gives it up, And tells you what he knows.

He may scream and beg for mercy; He may weep and say his prayers; He may call aloud on God in heaven, But only heaven cares.

For that's the surest trick of all, To make a Tagal tell The things he does or doesn't know, The latest thing — from hell.

—Bertrand Shadwell.

The Hon. Wallace Bruce and Mrs. Bruce, of Stuyvesant Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y., sailed from New York on the Anchor liner Columbia, a few days ago, for two months in Scotland, and while abroad will promote the project of a replica of Robert Burns' birthplace at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, in 1904. Mr. Bruce was formerly consul general at Edinburgh.

WORN TO A SHADOW.

When there is a falling off in flesh in woman or man there is "something wrong." And that something wrong is generally a loss of nutrition due to disease of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. Sometimes this loss of flesh is accompanied by variable appetite, but in many cases the appetite does not fail and there may be a constant desire to eat. Languor, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, are symptoms often associated with this loss of nutrition and falling off in flesh.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food so that lost flesh is regained and the physical health re-established.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Pagnan, of 163 East Genesee St., Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness, with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery' and have taken several bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it. I most heartily recommend these medicines to all suffering as I was."

J. A. SIMPSON. (Sec'y B'd of Education, San Francisco.)

Hon. J. A. Simpson, Secretary of the Board of Education of San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I have found Peruna an ideal tonic. Some months ago I suffered with neurasthenia (systemic catarrh), caused by too close application to office work. My system seemed worn out and I felt far from well. I found Peruna benefited me very much. It built up the entire system and made me feel like a new man. I believe it is well worthy the high praise bestowed upon it."—J. A. SIMPSON.

Systemic catarrh always gives fair warning of its approach, and can be easily warded off by the proper treatment. Floating brown specks before the eyes, mental confusion, fits of nervous headache, sleeplessness, flashes of heat, chilly sensations, palpitation, irritability, despondency; any of these symptoms or all of them should be promptly met by the use of Peruna.

Congressman E. V. Brookshire, from Indiana, in a recent letter from Washington, D. C., says:

"From what my friends say, Peruna is a good tonic and a safe catarrh cure."—E. V. Brookshire.
