 An unknown disease is creating havoc among the sheep herds in Lane county. The loss has been very heavy in several instances, and while there is an idea as regards the cause, there is as yet no way of treating it. Many believe that the sheep are killed by a large grub, or worm, which works in the head of the sheep. It is believed the egg is deposited in the nostrils, and then hatches out into a worm, which works upon the membranes, causing severe inflammation and final death.

Favors Coyote Law.
 Sheriff E. M. Shutt, states the exact conditions when he says that the people of Morrow county are a unit in demanding the continuance of the scalp bounty law. The main object of this law when passed was for the protection of the great sheep industry, and the fact that Morrow county is one of the greatest sheep counties in the state the results here are noticeable. Formerly where coyotes were a great pest, today they are scarce. The $2 bounty on each scalp is not much, but it is enough inducement for a great many people to make a business of hunting coyotes in the spring and capturing the young which is such a war of extermination that the pests are fast disappearing. Eastern Oregon should stand together on this proposition.—Heppner Gazette.

A Negro on Oregon Lynching.
 The people who lynched the negro at Marshfield yesterday committed a crime that ought to be punished. An example should be made of these lynchers, or some of the leaders of them, so that such a disgraceful crime will not be repeated in this state. The district attorney and sheriff should search out these offenders and deal out justice to them. While the negro's crime was inexcusable, and while the law does not provide a sufficient penalty for such a crime, yet there is no excuse for this species of lawlessness. Oregon is thereby disgraced and humiliated, and the governor ought to exercise all the authority and power he has to see that the lynchers are punished as a warning to others who are tempted to like acts of lawlessness.—New Age.

Kine's Grove.
 As usual, the platform was well filled with dancers at Kine's grove Sunday afternoon and evening. As the weather gets somewhat cooler the crowds are somewhat diminished, but enough were there last night to give all a good time. The music, furnished by Kirkman's orchestra, was up to its usual excellence.

Social Events.
 Saturday night the management of the east end dance hall opened the season's gaieties with the first of the series of dances which will be continued during the winter. A good crowd was present at the opening and a good time is reported by those present.

PREVENTS FOREST FIRES.

Claimed That Sheep Grazing Districts Are Free From Fires.

We who live in the stock districts of Eastern Oregon have much to be thankful for, in that our forests are immune from these horrible, devastating fires. It is the strongest possible argument in favor of stock pasturage of forest reserves, that wherever there has been such pasturage of sheep upon the reserves, in every instance these forests escape heavy fires. The stock, in thinning out the dense undergrowth, lessen the chances of the fires spreading, as there is nothing for it to feed upon. This fact is recognized by timber men, and that dear teacher, experience, is gradually drilling it into the heads of the so-called forest protective associations, whose sole purpose has been to prevent the pasturage of sheep on the forest reserves.—Ashwood Prospector.
