HARVESTERS RETURNING TO RAILROADS FOR WORK.

Farmers Bigger Than Corporations a Part of the Year—Visa Versa the Rest of the Time—Whirr of Header Fascinates Laborer.

After several months of rush of farm work the railroad companies are again able to get men to do the work which was suddenly dropped at the beginning of harvest because every man who earns his money by the sweat of his brow, rushed into the harvest field because he could get better wages there than on railroads.

Impossible to Get Men.

It has been impossible for the railroad companies to get men to keep their road work up during the harvest season just passed. Hardly a day passed that the O. R. & N. Company was not bidding for men to work on section crews, for bridge work or fencing right of way. Good wages were offered but men preferred to remain in the harvest field rather than work on the railroads. Now that harvest is practically closed the railroad companies will have no trouble to get men—in fact they will be overrun with applications for places at any kind of work.

In referring to the utter impossibility of the W. & C. R. company to get men to work on their line during harvest season, General Manager and Vice-President Joseph McCabe said to the Walla Walla Union:

Crews Returning.

"We are getting the section crews on the line of the Washington & Columbia River railroad recruited back to their normal strength after the harvesting season.

Drop All Work.

"We have found from experience," said Mr. McCabe, "that when headers begin to whirr in the fields we might as well conclude we have all the road work done that we intend doing for the next two months. So we begin ahead of time and when harvest begins we have our road put in the best possible condition and there is little to be done. All that is necessary then is the maintenance of a force of track patrolmen to keep watch for possible incidental necessities in the way of repairs. The section hands drop off one at a time and go into the harvest fields. There they work longer hours and get almost no better wages.

Treat Farmers Right.

"During this time we make no effort to hire men to take their places as to do so would be folly. If we tried to hire men we could do so without trouble, but they would stay with us only long enough to get transportation to the place where we wished them to work. After the train stopped and let them off they would swing over the fence and take across country for the nearest harvesting outfit, certain to obtain work. The railroad company would be out the price of a ticket and no one would be any better off. We might raise wages and get men, but this would not be fair to the farmers who must have workmen. If we advance our prices beyond those in the harvest fields the managers of harvesting outfits would be compelled to do the same and there would be no advantage to us in that. Besides this the farms are adjacent to our line and we owe much to those who own and operate them. If we can assist the farmer it is our duty to do so.

Rush Things in Spring.

"So we work as hard as we can during the spring and get everything in shape for the harvest season. Then we let our men go harvesting.

More Now Than Needed.

"Now that harvest is over the section hands are beginning to drift back and apply for jobs. There are many applicants and we can afford to choose. Each year we are thus enabled to recruit up strong crews for the winter. But there are two months in the year when the farmer is bigger than the railroad company."

SUCCESSFUL FRUIT FAIR.

Walla Walla Entertaining Large Crowds of Visitors.
Walla Walla, Sept. 26.—The fruit fair now in progress in this city is proving very successful, the daily attendance being about 4000. The fair opened Monday night, and has kept up a strong record for attendance from the start. It took a day or two to get everything in smooth order, and now the general appearance of the show is far above that of any previous effort. The fair has been visited by a number of prominent newspaper men since Monday, as the state editorial association has been in session in this city, and in this way the resources of the valley have been shown up in a way that could not have been easily done otherwise. Many of the editors from other parts of the state expressed unusual surprise at the showing made by the city and surrounding country, and the Walla Walla valley has jumped up several notches in the estimation of not a few editors of Washington.

PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC

The management of the fair has concluded to hold the fair open two days longer than originally planned, and the final closing will occur Tuesday instead of Sunday night. The fair will close with a carnival of sport and dancing, and a specialty of masks will be made at the closing hour. A great variety of masks and costumes will be ordered for the occasion, and the result of the novel idea introduced at this time is looked forward to with considerable interest.

The weather has turned cold recently and the pleasant evenings have given way to the chilly hours when wraps are called into use generally. This has the effect of cutting down attendance.

SCHOOL BOOK PRICES.

A Matter of Interest to Patrons of Pendleton Schools.

State Superintendent J. H. Ackerman is sending out a circular letter to the teachers of the state, giving the contract price for books used in the various grades. This list makes an interesting study, as the figures there given show the cost of books used in the schools by a pupil during his entire course. The letter contains the following statement:

To Teachers: The following complete list, by years, of the number of books which a pupil is required to purchase, provided he purchase every book and complete all work below the high school, prescribed in the revised course of study. In using writing books and spelling blanks follow this circular not the course of study. Please keep this circular posted in a conspicuous place in your respective school rooms.

PELLETS OF SNOW.

How They Fling and Drift in the Adirondack Region.
On a good driftmaking day in the Adirondacks the snow comes not in the star shaped flakes that look so pretty when portrayed on a page of the dictionary, but in small pellets. These pellets are in shape like tiny white footballs usually, and they come rolling and tumbling down wind as if they had been "kicked for fair" by the half-back gods of the game. And yet while they roll and tumble and bound they find lodging places, and as the idler gazes he sees them pile up in a wall on the crest of the road cut. Higher and higher grows the pile, forming at first a vertical wall, but before this has risen three inches it is seen to overhang the gulch.

Though round and easily rolled, these pellets in some way fit to each other as bricks would, until the overhang is perhaps a fifth as great as the elevation of the wall, and then, marvelous and impossible as it would seem to the unaccustomed observer, a lip forms on the crest of the wall, and soon it begins to droop and hang down. Wider and longer it grows, farther and farther it droops, until its shape is precisely like the lip formed on a huge wave when it breaks on a shoal water beach. Lips that are ten feet wide and hang down three feet clear of all, though but six or eight inches thick where they join the chin of the wall, are not uncommon. By what magic is it that these frozen, oblong pellets that go bounding along as merrily as footballs form into such a shape as that? Of course if the storm continues a time usually comes when the lips break off because of their great weight. And then no new lip forms to replace the lost one. The snow merely drops over into the lee of the wall and gradually fills the cutting.—Scribner's.

Some people who have very delicate skins cannot use soap with comfort. They should use bran. Napoleon never used soap, but kept his hands beautifully white with bran. One of the old kings of Holland forbade his sons the use of soap. They used instead bran and a slice of lemon. The latter was for removing ink stains.

MALARIA An Invisible Enemy to Health

Means bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the liver and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself.

The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.

JUST ESCAPED HANGING.

Dr. Mudd, Who Healed John Wilkes Booth's Broken Leg.

Mudd was a physician, and it was to his house that Booth had ridden on the night of his great crime. There his broken leg had been set, and there he had been secreted for one day. The doctor was an educated man of refined and dignified manner. He had never quite recovered from his surprise that any one should find fault with him for setting a broken bone for a stranger. He always asserted that he did not know Booth and was not aware at the time that Booth had committed a crime. But Mudd had been an ardent secessionist. He was accordingly sentenced to imprisonment for life.

It was a hard fate to be called upon for professional services by a wounded desperado and then narrowly to escape hanging for it. The trial and sentence were a terrible blow, from which Mudd never recovered. He had left a devoted wife at his home in Maryland, and his mental sufferings were so severe that he seemed always on the verge of insanity. He had at first been put to work with a wheelbarrow; but, having never done any manual labor, he was rapidly failing under the combined physical and mental strain. For this reason I directed that he be transferred to the prisoners' hospital as nurse.

There he made himself exceedingly useful, and there he might have remained had not his homesickness in an evil hour overcome his judgment. While a ship lay at the wharf he contrived to get aboard and secrete himself in the coal bunkers. He was of course discovered, and then he learned what he did not know before, that no ship was allowed to sail until it was ascertained that every prisoner was in his place. He was immediately pinned in solitary confinement, where he remained several months.—McClure's Magazine.
