WAS ON THE OREGON

DURING ITS FIGHT WITH CERVERA AT SANTIAGO.

Stayed With Captain Clark All Through the Philippine Campaign on Water and Made the First Official Trip on the Torpedo Boat Destroyer Goldsborough.

Henry Harbach, the new night clerk at Hotel St. George, was a member of the battleship Oregon's crew during its battle with the Spanish fleet. Mr. Harbach was fireman and he worked in the engine rooms during the time the Oregon was doing such effective work in destroying Cervera's ships as they attempted to emerge from Santiago harbor.

He enlisted on the Oregon the day before war was declared with Spain, and remained as head fireman on her until the 27th of last July. He enlisted at Port Orchard and previous to that time was clerk at Hotel St.
George, consequently Mr. Harbach is quite well known here. He tells some very interesting stories of his voyage and connection with the Oregon.
He says it got very warm in the engine rooms of the Oregon during the fight and the length of time a man could remain in them never exceeded 40 minutes. "Many a man had to be hauled out of the engine room through the ice chute because he became exhausted and was bleeding at the nose and mouth," said Mr. Harbach.

"Of course I knew little about the fighting at Santiago," continued Mr.
Harbach, "but I guess it got pretty warm on deck as well as in the engine rooms. This was a very exciting time, but we had others. I was on the Oregon when she ran on a rock of the north coast of China, and tore a hole 60 feet long in her bottom. We were then compelled to make Yokohama, where the Japs put a wooden bottom in her and we were again ready for service. The Jap government made out a bill against this government for $12,000 for the repairs made on our battleship and presented the United States with the receipted bill.

"The most exciting time I ever had, though, was when I was on the torpedo boat destroyer Goldsborough, which was built in Portland. This was after we had returned from our ocean voyages and were lying in dry dock at Port Orchard. The Golds-borough was finished and the makers had difficulty in getting men to handle her on her trial trip. I went on as engineer and made both trial runs with her. The first time the boat made good time, but in turning the pilot tried to bring her around too short and turned her completely on her side, smashing her machinery."

Mr. Harbach speaks very highly of Captain Clark, of the Oregon. He says that he was a favorite with all the men on board and they would do anything in their power for him.

Alba Notes.

Alba, Oct. 7.—The harvest dance will take place at Hiway Springs the twentieth of this month. There will be a basket supper in connection and everybody is invited. Elaborate preparations will be made to make the occasion long to be remembered.
Visitors from Pendleton are expected to attend and Mr. Scott will throw open his large house free for everybody to have a jolly good time.

Messrs. Neal and Ford Stoddard, of Starbuck, timber cruisers, stopped here last night on their way to Dale.
J. Clarke and son have bought the shingle mill of J. B. Despain, of Ukiah and are moving it to this place.

Sam Carney, of Ridge, visited here yesterday. Sam was out on a hob-baying trip.

Smith brothers of Burns, have 269 head of beef cattle in pasture at this place for sale.

George Olcott, the stockman, will move to Pilot Rock for the winter.

William McGathic, of the Potts, has bought property and moved his family here.

Mrs. Davis has gone to the bedside of her daughter, Miss Elma, who is sick with typhoid fever at Helix.

James and Warde.

Next Thursday evening at the opera house, local playgoers may anticipate the most novel, unconventional and alluring performance of the present theatrical season. Reference is made to the joint appearance of those famous stars, Mr. Louis James and Mr. Frederick Warde in Wagenhals and Kemper's spectacular production of "The Tempest." The almost magical wonders of its magnificent scenic illusions, its atmosphere of mirth and melody, and its wealth of brilliant costumes, together with the fame of the stars and the exceptional talent of the supporting company has made the enterprise one of the biggest artistic sensations the stage has evolved in some years.

In the character of Caliban, Mr.
Louis James will be seen in one of the oddest character studies Shakespeare conceived. He is pictured as a sort of supernatural monster, part man and part brute, and yet a poet.
The grimness of his humor, and his amusing ugliness of nature, are qualities few could assume so successfully as Mr. James. Prospero on the other hand is equally suited to Mr.
Warde's more serious and subtle attributes. It is Prospero who by his study of human nature, and his success in developing its noblest traits, becomes endowed with magic power and can command tempests to rise and spirits of earth and air to do his bidding. Much has been made of the musical features of the performance which will be rendered by a chorus of the best trained voices under the direction of Maxime De Grosse.

Intending patrons will do well to heed the warning of the management in reference to being seated in good season, as the most elaborate scene of the play in which is pictured the most realistic representation of storm and shipwreck, occurs almost at the rise of the curtain.

Notice.
All persons knowing themselves indebted to me must settle by October 10th, or their accounts and notes will be placed in the hand of an attorney with instruction to collect.
