INCREASED VALUES OF FARMS.

Average Value Over State of Oregon Is $3,693.

The lands of Oregon, according to recently issued government statistics, are peculiar, in that each part of the state has its own characteristics. In the valleys of the Western part of this state, notably those of the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue Rivers, the soil is rich dark loam. The hills have a heavier soil and the mountains are suitable only for grazing. In the eastern part, the soil is sandy in general, and contains much alkali, but is very fertile under irrigation. In the northeast, extensive areas of naturally fertile wheat lands are found; in the southeast, the cultivation of crops is of very little importance, but the land is extensively used for grazing purposes.

The Number of Farms.

The total number of farms in Oregon in 1900 was over 30 times as great as in 1850, and 40.4 per cent greater than in 1890. The total acreage has also increased greatly, being over 33 times as great as in 1850. The gain in the last 10 years was 45.8 per cent. With the exception of the last decade the area of improved land has increased steadily, and, until 1880, at a more rapid rate than the total acreage. The decrease in the acreage and per cent of farm land improved shown for the last decade, is due to a more strict construction of the term "improved."

Increase in Number.

Between 1850 and 1880 the number of farms increased faster than the total acreage, involving a decrease in the average size of farms, and indicating a progressive division of farm holdings and a more complete utilization of the soil. The slight increases shown for the last two decades are due to the large additions made to ranges in the eastern part of the state, which recently have been taken from the public domain, and for the first time enumerated as farm land. The decrease continued through the last two decades in the western counties and in some of the older-settled counties of the eastern section.

Value of Farm Property.

The value of farm property shows a remarkable increase during the five decades from 1850 to 1900. In the last decade, the gain in the total value of farm property was $29,736,487, or 20.8 per cent. The increase in the value of land, improvements and bulidings was $16,518, 314, or 14.3 per cent; in that of implements and machinery, $1,949,955, or 42.8 per cent; and in that of livestock, $11,268,218, or 49.8 per cent. The value of farm products shown for 1900 is 100.2 per cent greater than that reported for 1889, but a portion of this increase is doubtless due to a more detailed enumeration in 1900.

Acreage of Farms.

Aside from those counties which have undergone territorial changes only Harney and Morrow report decreases since 1890 in the total number of farms. Harney alone shows a decrease in the total farm area, all others reporting substantial gains. The decreased improved acreage reported for a number of counties is due to a more intensive cultivation of smaller areas of farm land and a more strict construction of the term "improved." The central counties, which are chiefly devoted to stock raising, contain the largest farms, while the smallest farms are in the western counties, and are devoted to general agriculture, dairying, fruit growing and market garoening. The average size of farms for the state is 281 acres, varying from 80.7 acres in Multnomah county to 1,360.2 acres in Crook county.

For the state the average value of farms is $3,693. In over two-thirds of the counties the total value of farms has increased since 1890, the decreases reported in the remaining counties being slight. Marked gains are reported in the value of implements and machinery, the average value per farm in 1900 being $182. All counties, except Yamhill, report higher values for livestock, the state average being $946 per farm.

Various Expenditures.

The average expenditure in the state for labor in 1899 was $135 per farm, but varied greatly in different sections, the average amount expended in all eastern counties, except Wallowa, being much larger than elsewhere. The total expenditure for fertilizers in 1899 was greater than in 1889, but still averaged less than $1 per farm. The majority of counties show increases in the use of commercial fertilizers. — Portland Journal.

Joe Ell's Saddles Lead.

The fame of the Joe Ell saddle is spreading rapidly and wherever comparison is made it always prove the favorite. Yesterday two cowboys, who reside in the Willamette valley, but who have been working north of Walla Walla, made a long ride to get Ell saddles, which shows the high standing these goods have. D. L. Miller and partner, while passing through here last march, examined the Ell saddles, and although they have seen many makes of saddles since, none pleased them as well, so they borrowed saddles, rode here, and bought fine new Ell saddles to take home with them, and had the old ones shipped back to Walla Walla. This is quite a compliment to the Ell saddles, as the purchasers passed through Walla Walla and came here to buy.

"When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble, that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Muse, Durham, N. C., "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health. Best Pills on earth and only 25c at Tallman & Co.'s drug store.

Strike Rich Ore.

Again a report comes down from Sumpter that another phenomenally rich strike of ore had been made in the North Pole mine of the Cracker Creek district. The management of this wonderful property is very reticent of its affairs, and it is next to impossible to get the exact valuation or extent of the new field. This mine has been known to be operating for the past year in one of the richest bodies of ore ever found, and the report of encountering another still richer creates a furore of excitement over that section of Sumpter's mining field never before seen. The latest strike was made on the lowest level of the mine.—Baker City Herald.

An order has been issued by Secretary Root, setting aside 1800 acres of land five miles from Manila for an army post.
