IN POLICE COURT

THREE VAGRANTS DEALT WITH THIS MORNING.

Pat Murphy Said He Wanted to Go to Work and Was Turned Over to Street Commissioner Fee Who Gave Him a Chance—War on Weary Willies.

There was something doing in police court again this morning, although the proceeds did not aggregate as much as yesterday's business.

During the course of the day yesterday Judge Fitz Gerald collected just $52.50 in fines from law-breakers who were before him. This was from four men and from three this morning not a cent could be extracted.

The first man before his honor announced that his name was Pat Murphy. He had a black eye and his tousled hair spoke louder than words as to his occupation. He was a typical hobo, but this he denied strenuously. He claimed that he came here from Cayuse a few days ago and that he had been working there on the section. He was asked if he had any money and said that he did not, but he had money coming from the railroad company. This statement may have been true but the judge took the benefit of the doubt and gave him a sentence of five days in jail. To this Pat objected, but the judge was firm and ordered him to be seated. Pat said if he was allowed to go he would walk out to Cayuse as quickly as his legs would carry him and would go to work and not bother Pendleton again. He was accused of begging on the street.

The second man up was confronted with the same charge. He was given five days also, but he declared that if he was given a chance he would go to work or get out of town. He also had the hobo stamped all over his person. He gave his name as Thomas Storer.

A young man by the name of Shea—no more than 18 years of age—was the third vagrant dealt with. He claimed to have been working on the railroad near The Dalles and after quitting went to Umatilla and spent most of the money, after which he walked to Pendleton. He fell in with Storer and they were going around together, although he claimed not to have been begging. He is quite an intelligent-looking young man, but his general appearance shows that he has fallen by the wayside and is on the fast road to that which is traveled by the typical Weary Willie. His case was continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

War on Hobos.
The Weary Willie who makes Pendleton a stopping place in the future will wish he was out before he is given a chance to get out. It has been the custom of the officers to be somewhat easy with these fellows, and when they showed a desire to get out of town to let them go, but this is found not to work well. Some of them go, but some think that because the officers were easy on them once they will be again and they hang around. Many excuses are given by the drunk and the hobo to get leniency. Many of them tell a story about having a job somewhere, explaining that they will go right to work if allowed a chance and if they are kept in jail they will lose the job. On this plea the police judge has let several go and each time he has found that the story was a fake and the man did not want to work or had no job.

This morning the judge declared that he would take no more excuses from any of them and from this time on the vagrants who came up in his court would receive a heavy sentence and would be held to serve the whole of the term. They will be turned over to Street Commissioner Fee and given a chance to exercise themselves working on the streets. This, supplemented with from five to 10 days on bread and water, will make the Weary Willies shun Pendleton as soon as they discover that the officers mean business.

HOW BASEBALLS ARE MADE.
It Takes Experts to Make Them, as Well as to Handle Them.

Many business men know how to play baseball, but perhaps some of them do not know how a baseball is made. Hardware says that the production of a baseball is an operation almost as unknown to the public as its use is familiar.

Yet nearly 4,000,000 balls a year, or about 12,000 a day, are manufactured by one Pennsylvania factory alone, and for a great many of these $1.50 a piece is paid.

A remarkable amount of skill and fine workmanship is needed to turn out a ball that will stand, even for a short time, the powerful batting of the big players or will come up to the requirements of league work.

The various steps in the manufacture of a first-class baseball are briefly as follows:

It is first a solid ball of Para rubber just an inch through. The ball is placed in a machine by a boy tender and is automatically wound with a strong, pure woolen yarn. The winding is done with an evenness that no human fingers could equal, and the thick, blue-mixed wool forms a perfectly uniform covering for the core.

This layer is made just an inch thick. When the right amount of yarn has been wound on it the machine stops automatically, the ball, now two inches thick, is removed and another core set.

The partly finished balls are next dipped. That is, they are dropped into a transparent fluid called "plastic compound," which is really a kind of cement. This fluid is very adhesive, and when it enters the wool covering there is a solidification that prevents the ball from ever being knocked out of shape. So certain is this, in fact, that the company guarantees to replace all balls that are so injured.

The balls are next wound again—this time with a certain definite thickness of three-ply white yarn. This is covered with a three-ply blue yarn until it has reached the requisite size of nine inches in circumference. All of these winding processes have been automatic, and the balls appear of exactly the same size and weight. But no chances are taken, and each is weighed several times during the final winding, so that accuracy may be assured.

After being dipped in the cement again the ball is ready for covering. The covers are alum-tanned horsehide, which is as soft and fine as the best white kid. For the best balls only 18 covers can be got out of one hide, as only the very choicest parts can be used.

The hide is first knee-staked. That is, it is stretched backward and forward over a knee-high stake by a strong boy till it will stretch no more. The cutting is done by machinery. The cover is in two pieces, each the shape of the figure 8. A machine cuts out these pieces and perforates them ready for the sewing. These machines are wonderfully accurate and very rapid.

The balls are placed for covering in dampers of wood, and the covers are fastened first with brass staples and then with strong cotton thread of the best quality. It takes about 15 minutes to sew the cover on a ball. This requires considerable muscle, and only men are employed on the work.

The ball is still rough on the seams. It is rolled by hand and a few hours later by machinery, whence it emerges the completed article, ready for packing and selling.

The market for baseballs is entirely in this country, with the exception of a small and recent demand that has developed in Cuba and the Philippines.—Commerce, Account and Finance.

Accident to Submarine Boat.
The recent accident to one of our submarine boats has lessened the popularity of this class of vessels, and because of the numerous accidents which have overtaken them since their adoption will always be regarded as doubtful. The best defense of the country so far as the navy is concerned, is chiefly in our large armored vessels. The best means to defend your health can only be found in that celebrated family medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, because it has always proven reliable and will do all that we claim for it. Hundreds of people who have tried it voluntarily testify to the fact that it positively cures flatulency, headache, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia and malaria. Then try a bottle and see for yourself.

COURT ADJOURNED

MOST ECONOMICAL TERM EVER HELD IN COUNTY.

Only Lasted One Week and a Day Until Criminal Docket Was Cleared—Heaviest Sentence Was a Fine of $200—Epingler Will Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

The October term of the district court for Umatilla county adjourned this morning after being in session for one week and a day. This is said to have been the shortest and most economical term of court held in the Umatilla county court house for many years. The criminal docket consisted only of eight cases and these have all been dealt with except two. One of them is W. Epingler the man charged with touching M. S. Monteith for his watch and the other is John Linder, charged with horse stealing. Epingler first pleaded not guilty and his trial would have come up this morning, but he changed his mind and pleaded guilty as charged and will throw himself on the mercy of the court. He will be sentenced tomorrow. Linder waived pleading and his case will be tried at an adjourned term, which will convene next month.

The other six cases were two Japs with two charges against each, who were sentenced for assault with dangerous weapons to a fine of $100 and $200 and the other charge has not been prosecuted. The Klimes vs. I. L. Ray was cleared from the docket and a verdict given plaintiff, while the suit against E. N. LeRoy, charged with assault on Claude Penland with a pistol, was decided in favor of defendant.

This clears the criminal docket, but the law and equity dockets are both long yet, and many suits remain on them to be tried, which can be handled to be tried which can be handled without a regular term of court.
