STAYED IN THE STAGE.

Col. Parker Returns From Rapid River Country—Relates Incidents of the Trip.

Col. Frank Parker, the veteran newspaper man of Walla Walla, passed through town yesterday on his return from a second trip into the Rapid River country to look after his recently discovered mining claims. In speaking of his trip Mr. Parker said: "I have been in the saddle for several weeks and it is hard on an old campaigner like myself. We had a fine trip with the exception that feed became short and we could not get enough for our animals to eat. The country we were in has all been overrun with sheep until no grass is left for this fall.

"We did considerable development work on our claims, but were compelled to come out of the hills before we intended to on account of the shortage of feed. There was plenty of game where I was. Myself and partner ate deer meat, grouse and fish until we got tired of it.

"Them ost exciting time I had was when I was boxed up in a stage and the team ran away at breakneck speed. I was the only passenger and when we got to a little place near John Day and the driver got off the stage to take on mail the team started to run. I was helpless and all I could do was to sit as still as the rough road would permit and hang onto my seat and let the team go their way. Luckily the frightened animals kept the road and no mishap overtook me. The team ran until John Day City was reached and then stopped of their own free will. Then I got out of the rig and thanked my lucky stars that I was there without any broken limbs."
