He was well acstolen cattle in Dayton was given him vigne challenged Jost for a return and came through Pendleton on his between them.-Arlington Record way to get him but in the meantime Miller had left Elgin and started ecross country toward Pomeroy. Mr. Lee then returned through Pendleton intending to go to Pomeroy and there get a saddle horse and cross the country into the Grand Ronde River coun-Miller was too fast for him and the day Lee reached Pomeroy Milier was during the fair at Lewiston and an acquaintance of Lee's while going from Pomeroy to the fair, met Miller and recognized him.

This was late in the afternoon and the man hurried to a 'phone and, calling up Mr. Lee, told him that Miller was then coming toward Pomeroy. Lee immediately made up his mind that Miller was on the way to the home of his son-in-law, named Nye, living a few miles north of Pomeroy. and he and the sheriff started out to get the rustler.

They reached Nye's home a little after 9 o'clock in the evening and were told by Mr. Nye, who did not know that his wife's father was want ed for cattle stealing, that he was up The sheriff asked to stairs in bed. see him and Miller was aroused. got out of bed and dressed himself preparatory to coming down. be heard putting on his shoes while the officers waited outside the door. Instead of coming down, however, when he was dressed he picked up his 32 Smith & Wesson revolves in his left hand, and placing it to his head, just back of the left ear, fired, blowing the top of his head off. The officers then rushed into the room to find him lying across the bend dead.

There was no chance for Miller to escape from the house without the officers getting him. The stairway leading from the second story opened on the outside of the house and this was the only exit from the room where Miller was. Knowing this and knowing that the officers had the door well guarded, he preferred to end his own life rather than surrender to the officers and serve another sentence in the penitentiary.

Miller was 52 years of age and served one term in the Washington state prison for cattle stealing. He was sentenced from Whitman county and had only been out of prison a few months. The crime for which he was being sought when he ended his life was the stealing of nine head of cattle from a pasture on the Snake River, in Garfield county, and driving nem to Dayton and selling them t the local butchers. Rather than face another term in the penitentiary be chose to end his own life

GLOVE CONTEST AT ARLINGTO

Charles Jost Wins Eastern Oregon Championship From James Lavigne.

The glove contest between Charles Jost, of Olex, and James Lavigne, of Michigan, for the middleweight championship of Eastern Oregon, came off last Friday evening.
