Who says Umatilla is not blessed with beautiful school-marks?

The Idaho campaign is waxing warm and the Idaho papers are saying lovely things about one another and the opposing candidates.

The lone highwayman has some advantage over the highwaymen who go in gangs. He is at least not uneasy about the other fellows giving him away.

Eastern Oregon is not generally worried over danger from trolley cars and automobiles, but the double-geared cayuse, with a back-action hind leg occasionally gets in his work.

The report comes that Buffalo Bill has failed in health and will have to rest up before he can make his trip to Europe. This historic character of the plains like many other prominent American characters of the old school has about run his course.

The reported arrest of the Montana train robber by a lone deputy shows that it is not always the bravest who rob trains and commit daring crimes. Although he had two large revolvers dangling at his waist, the man who had stopped the train, killed its engineer and terrorized hundreds of passengers threw up his hands when confronted by a man with equal nerve.

The death of Elizabeth Cady Stanton removes from the world a great woman. Like all of the pioneer women who have labored to improve society and elevate men and women she has been the subject of criticism and slight remark by the unthoughtful. But her work has been fruitful, and along down the course of time her name and reputation will brighten as the years pass, until hers will become one of the most honored in the pages of history.

General Nelson A. Miles will be retired next August, and General Young will be appointed his successor, according to a statement made by General Corbin. General Miles has served his country well, and although the administration has seen fit to often criticize him and has reprimanded him, yet it does not reflect on the character of the old veteran. It was always more a case of politics involved than any short-comings on the part of the great democratic general.

"Mysterious" Billy Smith, ex-champion middle-weight champion, who scorned to meet a negro in the ring met one the other day on a ship in Portland Harbor. "Billy" runs a sailor boarding house, and was attempting to carry on the accustomed work of that class when he ran against the negro who is a sailor. The prize-fighter is now trying to explain how it happened, but a majority of the witnesses say that the "Mysterious" man was so mystified by the undercuts given him by the "coon," that he will probably never be able to get the straight of it.

Cawley, the young maniac who murdered his mother and half the members of his family is about to prove a lion in the world. He was an inventor and it is claimed that an air-brake which he had invented prior to the deed has been adopted by all of the railroads and that this will make him a multi-millionaire. Instead of being crazy at the time he committed the horrible deed it is now claimed that he was asleep, but he will put in the plea of lunacy as a defense. Multi-millionaire or pauper, he should be placed in confinement until such a time as there should be no fear of his going crazy again or going on a killing escapade in his sleep. Inventors are worth a great deal to the country, but human life is also of some value.

President Roosevelt has indicated that he will ask for laws in his message to congress beneficial to Western mining interests and, especially, to the Alaskan fields. President Roosevelt's action all through his administration has shown the benefit of having a man who knows the West in the presidential chair. He had traveled in the West sufficiently to see what she needed and has not neglected her interests. His action in the irrigation matter resulted in greatly benefitting the West and Northwest, and now he is looking after the mining interests. Many of the former presidents never saw this country. They only knew the New England States, and were naturally warped by their surroundings. They first favor those, and that country with which they are most familiar. For that reason it behooves the West to ever look forward to the election of a Western man to the presidency if one who has seen the West will do so much for us, one who lives in the West will do more.

RECTOR CARNEGIE'S RE-MARKABLE ADDRESS.

Andrew Carnegie spoke like a very candid friend of the British people yesterday in his address as rector of St. Andrew's University.

It was hopeless, he said, for the British people to fight against "magnitude in commercialism." Illustrating his meaning he pointed to the much larger production of iron, steel, coal, cotton and textile goods. Drawing upon exact figures, for which the modern St. Andrew has a true Scotchman's fondness, he invited Britons to consider that their manufactured products were but one-third as large in total yearly value as those of the United States; that the aggregate yearly value of British exports was also less than that of this country, while the daily Clearing House exchanges at New York are nearly twice as large as those of London.

From these and other co-related facts Mr. Carnegie concluded that even if the British empire were federated it could not hope to again have "material ascendancy" over all other nations—certainly not over the United States, possibly not over Germany. Within 25 years he prophesied the exhaustion of Cleveland iron-ore, the basis of the British iron and steel industry. Moreover, if Germany was to be kept from taking the second place among industrial nations Mr. Carnegie broadly hinted that Britons must give heed to their twice-as-great consumption of drink and tobacco and imitate the German people in their abolition of gambling.

Furthermore, to Europe as a whole this philosophic and philanthropic citizen-at-large of the world addressed a warning fully warranted by the facts. The "United States of Europe" must be formed, an internal league of peace and security against war and the crushing burdens of war preparations, or else all the European nations would shortly "revolve like so many Lilliputians around that giant Gulliver the American Union, soon to enable 200,000,000 of English speaking people and capable of supplying most of the world's wants."

It is a long time since a British university listened to an address more replete with facts that Europeans generally and Britons particularly may profitably reflect upon.—New York World.

IRVING ON MUNICIPAL THEATERS

Sir Henry Irving is the latest addition to the already well-filled ranks of the municipal ownership of everything party in England. At Manchester on Thursday night he spoke warmly for the establishment of a municipal theater.

In the course of his speech Sir

Henry made the curious statement that the municipal theater had already "arrived in the United States." Coming from so a distinguished dramatic authority, one who has several times toured the United States, we hesitate to say that this is not so. Yet we cannot think of any American city which "owns and operates" its own theater or opera house.

Ardent champions of municipal ownership will easily convince themselves, if not others, that theaters are "public utilities" if not "necessities of life." Does not Shakespeare himself say that "all the world's a stage," and is not that a declaration broad enough to cover the doctrine that the presentation of good plays with "well-trained actors" is naturally a public function?

Sir Henry's enthusiasm for the equipment of every English city with a public playhouse is such that he will "gladly give a thousand pounds to advance the movement." And his reason is that "it would help to drive from the stage those high-kicking discreditable shows which too often pass for theatrical plays." But how would it do that? Any city can establish a municipal theater, but it cannot make people attend it.—New York World.

Winter Eczema OR TETTER

Is one of the many varieties of that tormenting disease called Eczema. It slumbers through the summer and breaks out in winter. The head, feet and hands are the parts most often attacked, though it sometimes appears on other parts of the body, the skin hardens, cracks open and bleeds, while the itching and burning is at times almost unbearable. Scratching only makes it worse, sores and scabs forming where the skin is broken.

In this form of Eczema brownish white crusts sometimes form which scale off SKIN CRACKS AND BLEEDS in fine particles, leaving the skin raw and inflamed. It is especially painful and severe when confined to the hands, which often become so badly affected that the sufferer is unable to perform the lightest work. This, like all other types of Eczema, is due to acid poisons in the blood and not to local causes. The trouble is more than skin deep, and washes, soaps, powders and salves nor anything else applied to the surface can possibly do more than soothe the burning and itching or relieve temporarily the inflammation and pain.

It is the acids thrown off by the blood and which are forcing their way through the pores that cause the skin to harden, crack and bleed, and produce the irritation and soreness.

SSS S. S. S. neutralizes these acid poisons and cleanses the blood of all irritating substances and humors and does it promptly and effectually.

S. S. S. purifies and invigorates the thin acid blood, and builds up the entire system; then the unsightly eruption and sores heal, the skin becomes smooth and soft, and all signs of the Eczema disappear.
