OFF FOR GEORGIA.

Oregon Pioneer Will Try His Fortune in the Far-Away South.

John Mitchell, an Oregon pioneer of 1853, who has resided on Butter Creek, Umatilla county, for the past 16 years, is in Pendleton today and will leave for Blue Ridge Station, in Georgia, tonight. He does not know where Blue Ridge Station is and has left the matter of finding it to Station Agent Wamsley, who will sell him a through ticket.
Mr. Mitchell came from Missouri to Yamhill county in 1853, having crossed the plains with an immigrant train consisting of five families. They first reached Oregon City and then moved to Yamhill. He lived in the country about 18 years and then came to Eastern Oregon and has lived in Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington since that time.
He has been engaged in horse-raising on Butter Creek, where he has a brother and also a son-in-law, the latter the well known rancher, Jesse Moore. He is now 77 years of age and will spend the remainder of his days in Georgia with a married daughter, who went to that state from Oregon several years ago. His wife died 16 years ago.

SHOT BY ACCIDENT.

Vernie O'Gara Hit by a Spent Bullet From Rifle of Charles Hays.

Vernie O'Gara is suffering from an accidental gunshot wound received Sunday on the hill south of town. The young man was sitting in the house where the Pendleton Gun Club keeps its supplies, and Charles Hays discharged a rifle at the building more than 200 yards away. The ball went through the boards of the building and struck O'Gara in the hip, inflicting a slight flesh wound. The young man did not know that he was shot for several minutes after the ball struck him. The first intimation he had was that he felt something warm under him, and upon getting up discovered the blood, which was running freely from the wound. He went to Dr. Henderson to have it dressed and the removal of the ball was found unnecessary.

In Police Court.

Jane Doe was fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly this morning. She is a young girl who came here and went wrong through evil influence and her friends put up $25 bonds for her appearance this morning and paid her fine. She was sent home and it is hoped that she may reform.

Young Chief, a Umatilla brave, also put up $5 bonds Sunday for being drunk and did not appear when the case was called.

Charles Cotton donated $7 to the city; George Marshall, $5 and Victor Gardin $5, all for being drunk and disorderly.

Assault With Deadly Weapon.
James Williams, a young rancher living near town, was drunk yesterday and started a row in one of the saloons when he drew a revolver and attempted to clean out the house. He was taken before Police Judge Fitz Gerald today and as he had been through this court several times for being drunk and raising rows was turned over to the district attorney who will prefer charges of a serious nature against him.

Williams is known as a man with a bad temper when drunk and whether or not he gets off with the simple charge of carrying concealed weapons remains at the discretion of District Attorney Halley, but it is likely that he will have to face the charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

"Run Down" Ranges.

Discussing the range conditions in Eastern Oregon, a prominent Umatilla county stock man said to an East Oregonian representative this morning: "In the dry, drought-cursed regions of Western Kansas and Nebraska, there is one redeeming feature. On the most desolate stretches of that country, grows a luxuriant coat of buffalo grass, furnishing endless range. In some places this grass does not feel the touch of a rain drop for six months at a time, yet it never falls. The great herds of Texas cattle feed it down year in and year out, yet it springs up perennially, the same modest little hero, despite all the warfare of hoofs and drought. I would like to see this grass tried on the Oregon foothills. It grows in Colorado, Wyoming, Dakota and in climates of greater severity than our Oregon climate. If it were ever given a start here I believe it would take the place of our vanishing bunch grass."

Asleep Amid Flames.

Breaking into a blazing home, some firemen lately dragged the sleeping inmates from death. Fancied security, and death near. It's that way when you neglect coughs and colds. Don't do it. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption gives perfect protection against all throat, chest and lung troubles. Keep it near and avoid suffering, death and doctor's bills. A teaspoonful stops a late cough, persistent use the most stubborn. Harmless and nice tasting, it's guaranteed to satisfy by Tallman & Co. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottles free.

THE SWINE PLAGUE.

Marion County Stock Inspector Discusses the Disease.

This disease seems to be starting up this fall with new vigor and quite generally fatal.
I would like, if possible, to put the farmers in possession of some facts concerning the propagation and scattering of swine plague that may help them in keeping the plague down, and also keep the breeders from becoming discouraged and stopping short in the advancement and growth of this great and important industry to our growing country.
Dr. D. E. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, says that "it is doubtful if there is any considerable herd of swine anywhere that does not have the bacteria of swine plague hanging about them, just waiting for a convenient media to propagate in all its vigor and violence."
Farmers should be very careful about their breeding, and see to it that the crosses made bring good, vigorous, strong, symmetrical, healthy pigs; good feeders that can withstand the inroads this disease would make; in fact, too much nor too strong argument cannot be used to induce the breeders to be exceedingly careful in this line. I think what is known as in and in breeding should never be allowed if we would have good, healthy hogs. Then we must look well to the surroundings; no low, stuffy pens should be used, and swine should not be allowed to congregate and nest in old straw piles. Hogs with good, large stys or pens disinfected three or four times a month, are much less liable to the disease than those allowed to run out, especially in low, wood pastures. Good feed, and plenty of it, plays a very important part in keeping off swine plague. Dead animals should at once be burned or buried, and the place in which they have lain and the ground over which they are drawn for burning or burying should be sprinkled with dry air slacked lime or a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid. Lime and carbolic acid should be used extensively around premises where swine plague has made its appearance. As a preventative and to keep the hogs in a good, thrifty condition, three to 15 drops of carbolic acid, according to age, is very beneficial, says Dr. Salmon.

Now a word about scattering this dread disease. I can only mention a few of the many ways it may be carried about. Your neighbor comes to see your suffering hogs, and carries a little mud around on his shoes. Soon his hogs are dying with the same trouble. A little dirt the size of a pea is enough to inoculate a herd. Drovers with their dogs going from one farm to another can carry the bacteria, and thus scatter them broadcast. Crows, coyotes and turkey buzzards can carry the disease on their feet or otherwise many miles. The above shows how necessary it is that all the dead should at once be buried or burned. I believe that if careful breeding and good feeding and good judgment in regard to the care and surroundings of hogs are maintained and carried out, Marion county could show some as fine hogs as could be seen in any county in the state, or in any state, and produce as fine pork for the market as can be found anywhere. Hogs affected with swine plague are unfit for consumption, and though they may be fat when the herd is found attacked with the plague, they should not be sold or offered for sale, as it is unlawful. Very respectfully, D. D. Keeler, V. S. Stock Inspector for Marion county, in Salem Statesman.

Halloween night Clarence Carter, who works at the livery stable of Monmouth, thought he would frighten the boys. He took a shotgun and fired one barrel in the ground, but raised the gun when firing the remaining charge, and as a result Frank Haley was hit in the face by some 21 No. 6 shot. L. P. Owen received three shots under the right eye, and a number in his shoulder and side, M. M. Butler, who was passing along the street on the opposite side, was struck in the neck by one shot. No serious results are anticipated, except with the case of Mr. Owen's eye, and there are grave doubts whether the sight can be restored.
