EASTERN ELECTIONS

Iowa.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 4.—Iowa will choose new state officers today, with the exception of governor and lieutenant governor. Republican success in the matter of the state ticket is assured. In three of the four congressional districts.

There is great apathy except in the second congressional district. Campaign has been characterized by intense apathy on the part of both parties.

Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 4.—The democrats and populists have combined in several districts the result is in doubt. Outside of these districts the campaign, and have made an active campaign, with taxation reform as the paramount issue. The republicans have made their fight on the record of the present administration. The gubernatorial candidates are William H. Craddock, fusionist, and Willis J. Bailey, republican. The prohibitionists, socialist and allied people's party each has a ticket in the field. The republicans claim a victory of 30,000, based on a poll of the state and the democrats and populists claim victory by 15,000. There are eight representatives in congress to be chosen—one at large and seven by districts—and the present incumbents have all been renominated.

Factional fights complicate the republican chances. Prohibition is a big issue at many stations. The republicans seem to be gaining ground.

Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 4.—With no state officers to be elected, the campaign in Kentucky has not excited much interest. The outlook is that the democratic and one republican congressman will be elected. The question of the regulation of trusts has been the domination issue to the exclusion of the tariff and Philippine questions.

Louisiana.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 4.—Seven members of congress, all democrats, will be chosen in Louisiana today. The election has not excited much interest.

Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—The democrats expect to gain in their congressional representation by today's election. The state is now represented by a solid republican delegation. Four of the districts, however, have a normal democratic majority, and as the silver issue has not been raised the party leaders expect better results. In four of the six districts the fight is close and the democrats expect to be the gainers when the result is announced.

Light vote; democrats confidently claim victory.

Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 4.—The republicans of Massachusetts expect their entire state ticket to be elected, although they concede the plurality of their gubernatorial candidate, John L. Bates, will be considerably cut down by William A. Gaston, the democratic candidate, on account of personal considerations, national questions cutting no figure. Some of the congressional contests are exceedingly close, and the democrats expect to make a gain.

Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 4.—Apathy has prevailed in the Michigan campaign, and the vote is expected to be very light. The democrats sought to confine their campaign to state issues, being badly divided on national questions. They have some hope in the First and possibly the Second congressional districts. The state, however, is expected to give a substantial republican majority. Governor Bliss is a candidate for re-election on the republican ticket, and the democratic ticket is headed by Lorenzo T. Durand. The prohibitionists and socialists also have tickets in the field.

Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—The republicans of Minnesota are claiming the election of their state ticket by from 5000 to 15,000 majority. The campaign has been one-sided. The republicans renominated Gov. Van Sant, whose action in prosecuting the railroad merger added to his strength. The democratic candidate for governor is L. A. Rosing, former secretary to Gov. Lind. The republicans expect to elect representatives in at least seven districts, the Fifth and Sixth districts being put in the doubtful column.

Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 4.—Mississippi will return a solid democratic delegation to congress as a result of today's election. There being no contests, the interest centers altogether in the constitutional amendments which are being voted on. The principal one of the proposed changes is that substituting the old form of biennial sessions of the legislature instead of annual sessions.

Missouri.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—The election in Missouri this year involves a United States senator to succeed Senator Vest, who has announced his retirement. At present former Governor William J. Stone seems certain of the senatorship. The indications are that the democrats will return sixteen congressmen to one republican. The democrats probably will elect their three nominees for the supreme bench, their superintendent of public instruction and two railroad commissioners. Local conditions indicate that St. Louis will go democratic. In the state at large the only question is that of the democratic majority.

Indications at noon are that an exceptionally light vote is being polled. No disturbances; voters apathetic.

Montana.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 4.—For the only seat in congress the nominees are Joseph M. Dixon, republican; John M. Evans, democrat, and Martin Dee, labor party. The chief fight is for associate justice of the supreme court. The democratic nominee is Jere B. Leslie, and the republican nominee, W. L. Holloway. The result is doubtful. Back of this fight is the litigation in which the Amalgamated Copper Company is on one side and F. A. Helze on the other. Senator W. A. Clark favors Leslie.

Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 4.—There is apathy in Nebraska, attributed to big crops and high prices for livestock. It is conceded that which ever party gets the largest percentage of its voters to the polls today will win the state. A full state ticket is to be elected. The democrats and populists have fused and expect to elect their ticket, which is headed by W. H. Thompson, of Grand Island. P. H. Mickey, is the republican candidate for governor, and as the author of a prohibition bill introduced when he was a member of the legislature he is being bitterly fought out on state issues. It is a fair estimate to say that the election will give three seats in congress to each side.

State reports show light vote.

Nevada.

Carson, Nev., Nov. 4.—In the congressional district in Nevada it is probable that Clarence D. Van Duzer, the fusion candidate, will be elected over E. S. Farrington, republican. A fusion legislature will probably be chosen, and indications point to the election of Congressman Newlands as United States senator to succeed Senator Jones. There is scarcely any doubt that the fusion state ticket, headed by John Sparks, democrat, will be elected, but by small majorities. The campaign has been conducted on local issues, such as irrigation, silver mining and state development.

New York.

New York, Nov. 4.—Both sides appear confident of victory in New York state today. The republicans expect to re-elect Governor Odell on his record of economies, the reduction in taxation and the wiping out of direct taxation for state purposes. The democratic candidate for governor, Bird S. Coler, made an admirable record as first comptroller of Greater New York. The democrats are confident of piling up a big majority for Coler in the cities, while the main hope of the republicans lies in getting out a heavy rural vote and keeping the Coler vote in Greater New York down to the lowest possible figures. There is no mistaking a decided drift to democracy throughout the large cities of the state and Coler's success would cause no surprise among unbiased and conservative political onlookers. The republicans had charge of the re-apportionment of the congressional districts, and they believe that they will gain the three new representatives given to New York and retain all their present seats. The democrats hope to gain new congressmen by the trust and tariff agitation of the last year and the unification of their party.

Voting is heavy and quiet, only a few minor disturbances. Early this morning Commissioner Partridge transferred 1600 policemen, changing the entire force in two precincts for the day. The precincts changed were those where Murphy, the Tammany leader, and Devery live. There seems to be little splitting of tickets.

Voting began unusually early and is very heavy. Hill is hopeful of Coler's election, although fair weather indications favor the republicans.

Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Ohio chooses minor state officers today, there being four tickets in the field. Interest centers chiefly in the congressional contests. The ending of the coal strike is believed to assure republican success. From all indications they will elect fifteen congressmen. The democrats have four districts certain. The other districts, the Third and the Twelfth, are in doubt.

Large vote; both sides uncertain. It is almost certain, as near as indicated, that the democrats will gain one congressional seat from Ohio.

Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—Pennsylvania elects state officers and one-half its senate and house of representatives. The legislature will elect a United States senator to succeed Boies Penrose, republican, whose term expires next March. For the state offices there are five tickets in nomination, including the union party which has accepted the democratic nominations for governor and lieutenant governor. The vote of the state is apparently very evenly divided. The democrats, with Robert E. Pattison as their candidate for governor, believe they have an excellent chance of winning, notwithstanding the big normal republican majority.
