BOLD, BAD THIEVES

THEY TAKE STOCK FROM LOCKED CORRALS.

An Epidemic of Livestock Stealing From Railroad Yards—Work for Officers.

Within the past three weeks at different points along the line of the O. R. & N., at least three carloads of livestock have been boldly driven out of the stock yards of the company. The first crime of this kind was committed at Baker City, a short time ago, when a carload of thoroughbred bucks was stolen out of the stock yards. The clues were followed up and the sheep were recovered in the mountains of Baker county, on the Canyon City road. They were in charge of an enterprising gentleman, who was bent on improving the breed of sheep in his section.

The next occurrence of this kind was the mysterious disappearance of a carload of horses, belonging to a Wallawa county stockman, from the La Grande stock yards, last week. They were recovered near the Cove and returned to their owner. And now Superintendent O'Brien offers a reward for a carload of cattle, which has been "spirited away" from the stock yards at Durkee, recently. The stockmen have some vigorous kicks up their sleeve and should delay no longer in delivering them. The public, assisted by the willing officials of the company, can put a stop to this thieving proclivity, to a certain extent and some quick thinking and acting will be in order, henceforth.

Railroad Rumors Denied.

A message from President A. L. Mohler, of the O. R. & N., denying the effect that an entire rearrangement of the division and terminal points on the Harriman lines is contemplated, has put a live subject in the background. From indications along the O. S. L. and O. R. & N., many have been led to believe that such a move was on foot, and that in putting into execution some of the plans for future improvements, Pendleton would be made a division point. The roseate hope is temporarily dimmed. From the position that Pendleton now occupies as a trade center in the inland Empire, it would be most advantageous to the roads and the country adjacent, to have official headquarters located here where there is a measure of competition in traffic.

The Daphne Circle, Women of Woodcraft, will hold a short business session Wednesday evening. After business a short literary and musical program will be rendered and games enjoyed.
