ON THE WESTERN PIAZZA.

In Pendleton are more than a hundred old gentlemen, who are living portraits and whose lives are story books of wonderful interest.

Go down the street, among the homes in the city, any autumn evening, and look at the grey-haired man, sitting in an easy chair, on the Western porch. Perhaps he is asleep. The last rays of the sun are kissing his brow; the autumn leaves are falling at his feet and in his lap, like flakes of gold. One thin, white lock of hair is falling over his brow. His hands are at rest and he is at peace with the world. Back across a mingling drama of triumph and adversity, his closed eyes are wandering. It seems only a step backward to the open gate of babyhood, and it is only a step forward to that other open gate.

His sons and daughters are contented and happy. His life's work is a success. The ripened fruit of experience is ruddy, in the autumn sunshine of life. He is waiting for tomorrow, he is living a monarch, crowned in achievement and jeweled with hope. The long story of struggle is written and sealed. His landmarks are seen every where about him, in the industries and enterprises that he has nourished and builded. His honorary membership in every social and business circle has long ago been conferred. No further degree of contentment can be added to his measure. That unfolding charm of friendship, growing stronger and deeper he loves to speak of. He is just waiting on the broad, Western piazza. The sunset is beckoning. All is well.

NOW FOR THE FUTURE.

Since the confusion of jubilant election reports has passed over, it is found that the democrats have not lost a victory in a national sense. Democratic states, in a few instances, have gone republican; democratic counties have been lost, and congressional districts have changed into the republican line—but from a strictly political point of view, there is more hope than ever. President Roosevelt is a reformer. He is a young man imbued with some of the most progressive ideas of government that have ever been advocated from the presidential chair. He is also headstrong, emphatic, persistent and unmovable in his belief. His ideas of tariff revision, reciprocity, control of the trusts and the repeated belief he holds in the rights of the masses being equal to the rights of the classes, are leading him and his following toward a democratic point of view. The old-line republicans will not follow him now, in his extreme views, and in this gradual formation of a new republican doctrine, under the leadership of the ablest man in the party today, there is a hope for democrats.

The reform republicans are laying plans along democratic lines. The battle has not yet begun. When the forces are arrayed against each other in congress, it will be found, perhaps, that one republican faction will love progress better than party lash, and in the final count, will put some excellent democratic doctrine into laws. There has not been such a bright prospect for genuine reform, since republican laws have needed reforming.

Oregon has many causes for thanksgiving this year. The unprecedented crops, the full fruition of orchards; the freedom from pestilence that is raging in other parts of the world; a growth in every industry that is within our borders; friendship, within and without; work for the willing and reward for the worker; contentment everywhere, and everywhere the sunshine of progress; prospects for the future that surpass, if possible, the past. Amid such causes for gratitude, we are truly thankful.

The French arbitration board has decided against the coal miners, now on a strike in that country. The board declares that present wages are in fair proportion to the selling price of coal and the operators cannot mine the coal if compelled to pay more wages.

Generals Botha and Delany have listened to a debate in the house of commons on the South African question. They were in about as much danger of bodily harm there as among the kopjes, according to the way the Irish fight in parliament and the way the English shoot on the veldt.

The traffic that centers in and passes through Pendleton, daily, is a symbol of the multiplicity of Western industries. If one should undertake to list the various commodities which are handled here each day, the story would be surprising.

John Mitchell and John Morgan—the two biggest men in the public eye today. It would be a glorious spectacle to see these giants of labor and capital standing under the same umbrella, and to hear them call each other "Jack."

The school children of a Chicago district struck because a teacher was objectionable to them. The next will be a strike of the babies, pending an investigation to ascertain if the nursing bottle was made by union labor.

This is a good time for democrats to sit still and say nothing. The frictions among republican policies will result in a democratic trend of doctrine.

REMARKABLE GRIDDLECAKE.

Two thousand fishes in one griddlecake. Five to ten thousand animals for a single breakfast.

That is the sort of feast the natives enjoy on the islands of the Philippines. In Southern Luzon is a beautiful mountain lake, called Lake Buhl, about 1000 feet above the sea. It is supposed by the natives to have no bottom, and is said to have been formed by a volcanic upheaval which occurred before the Spanish came to the Archipelago. On that tragic occasion, when many human lives were lost and much property destroyed, one side of Mount Irga was blown out and hills of lava were scattered for miles.

Not long ago Dr. George A. Zeller found himself in the neighborhood of Lake Buhl, and ascertained that there was in this body of water a queer kind of fish, only half an inch long, which was used by the Filipinos for eating. Nothing, it appears, is too small or insignificant for the natives of those islands to regard as available for the table. So Dr. Zeller obtained some hundreds of the little fishes and sent them in a bottle to Surgeon General Sternberg, at Washington.

Dr. Sternberg forwarded the bottle with its contents to the United States fish commission, where it was considered a great prize, inasmuch as the fish was declared to be not only the smallest in existence, but the most minute vertebrate animal known to science. It weighs only half a grain, and half an inch is its maximum length.

The natives of Luzon call it the sinarapan, and their mode of catching it is with a net of exceedingly fine mesh—hardly more than a coarse cloth, which is used as a seine. In this manner great quantities of the tiny fishes are captured, and, being dried in a mass in the sun, without any other cooking, are seasoned and pressed into flat, round cakes.

Inasmuch as a single cake contains from 2000 to 3000 fishes, the smallness of the latter will be realized. It would be a native with a meager appetite who could not dispose of 10,000 of the funny creatures at a meal. Dr. H. M. Smith of the United States fish commission has named the animal Mistichthys, from two Greek words meaning "smallest" and "fish."

The fish in question is a kind of goby, and there is a suspicion that it is practically extinct for several months in every year, like certain animal plants. Meanwhile the eggs, which are so small that 1200 of them placed in line are required to measure one inch, are incubating for the production of the next generation.

When the little fishes have been newly caught, by dipping a large sheet of close web under a school of them, they are put into tightly woven baskets to drain. The natives buy them eagerly, and the fishermen returning from the morning's voyage are instantly surrounded by a crowd of waiting children, who offer in exchange for them potatoes, rice and copper pennies.—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE MASQUERADE.

All the world's a masquerade,—
Fleeting upon fiction laid;
Best foot forward, everywhere,
That's the cloak the maskers wear.
Artificial polish worn
O'er a life all stained and torn;
Falsehood laid with splendid art
O'er the semblance of a heart.
Gloss and sheen of hold deceit
In a mimic virtue meet.
Cold duplicity and skill,
Every trusting impulse kill.
'Neath the velvet feel the claw,
Of a fratricidal law;
'Neath the robe devoid of sin,
See the unclean spots within.—
Best foot forward, everywhere,—
That's the cloak the maskers wear.

Then, unmasked, the throng is brought Back to human deed and thought;
Maskers throw aside the art
That concealed the human part;
Strong and bold the features are—
In that throbbing rank, afar:
Warm the clasp of brother's hand,—
King and serf together stand;
Down the long, unending line,
Speeds the human halting sign;
From the old fraternal fount,
Heavenward, the rainbows mount;
Round yon sunlit summits play,
Hints of some resplendent day.
All the world, unmasked, is good;
All its creed is brotherhood;
All its faith is, justice done—
Laurels through devotion won.

—BERT HUFFMAN.

The diver dies without air to breathe. The consumptive dies without lungs to breathe the air, or of lungs rendered incapable of breathing by disease. The blood as it flows in and out of the lungs indicates the consumptive's progress. As the lungs grow weaker less oxygen is inhaled and the blood changes from scarlet to purple. Oxygen is the life of the blood as the blood is the life of the body.

The effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery upon weak lungs is to strengthen them, to enable the full oxygenation of the blood, arrest the progress of disease, and heal the inflamed tissues. Lung diseases have been and are being cured by "Golden Medical Discovery," in cases where deep-seated cough, frequent hemorrhage, emaciation, weakness, and night-sweats have all pointed to a fatal termination by consumption.

"Some years ago I was almost a help less victim of that dread disease—consumption," writes Mr. Chas. Fross, P. M., of Sitka, Alaska.

A SENSATIONAL RECOVERY

A Venerable Wisconsin Lady Restored to Health by Peruna After Twenty-five Years' Suffering.

[Special news from Evansville, Wis.]
EVANSVILLE, WIS.—A woman cured of catarrh of twenty-five years' standing was the occasion of Peruna being introduced to the inhabitants of Evansville, Wis. From that time to this there has been a great demand for Peruna in this vicinity and hundreds of cases have been cured.
It is in this manner that Peruna spreads from town to town and from state to state. No sort of advertising could have given Peruna the reputation it has. The secret of its success is that it makes cures. It cures old cases of catarrh where other remedies have failed. This ought to make any remedy popular.
Mr. C. R. Harden, of Evansville, Wis., writes the following letter:
Dear Doctor Hartman—"I wish to write to certify what Peruna has done for me. I read of Peruna in the papers, of what it would do for catarrh, and sent for a bottle. This was the first bottle of Peruna that ever came to Evansville; from my using it all three of the druggists now keep it.

"It cured my wife of catarrh with which she had been troubled for more than twenty-five years, and I had been troubled with it for fifteen years. We are now both all right."
"My youngest son had grippe four years ago, and as he had supposed had got well, or so far recovered that he went to work. He took a relapse and the pneumonia set in. He had hemorrhages, and though we tried everything we could think of it was to no purpose until we gave him Peruna. The hemorrhages stopped, and he soon got up and is well and hard at work. We think there is nothing like Peruna."
In a recent letter Mr. Harden writes: "We keep Peruna always in the house, as it cured us both of catarrh of long standing. We have called every while to inquire as to what Peruna is proof enough."

"I send you a picture of my home the first of last June, and within two days, only losing one day during the whole time, that for an old man 77 years of age, I had another house out in the fall and am well and happy."

"I hope to live twenty years if Peruna helps me in the time has in the past, I don't know can't. The druggists say Peruna is the best selling medicine in stock."—C. R. HARDEN.

Peruna can be relied upon slight colds and coughs and of all ailments with a propensity is unequalled by any other remedy.

If a cold has settled in any part of the body and produced catarrh, orally thought by people that they suffer on year after year with hope of cure. This is not true. Peruna cures such cases. These testimonials that can never attest this fact.

Any one wishing free literature on this subject should address Dr. J. C. Columbus, Ohio.

Startling Statements from Kentucky, Illinois and New Hampshire of Remarkable Recoveries.

WILLARD, KY.—The news of the recovery of Mrs. Elizabeth Prater is a very striking instance of the wonderful curative powers of Peruna. This estimable lady had been an invalid from catarrh of the stomach and bowels for twenty years. No wonder her many friends are enthusiastic over her recovery. She writes: "It is through the mercies of God and your medicine that I am permitted to write you this letter. I have been a constant sufferer from bowel and stomach trouble for about twenty-five years, and could never find relief until I began the use of Peruna. I think it is a God-send to poor suffering humanity."—Mrs. Elizabeth Prater.

ELGIN, ILL.—In a very recent communication from this place comes the news that Mr. Arthur Ernest Kidd, a well-known architect of that city, has made complete recovery from catarrh of the head from which he had suffered for nearly a quarter of a century. He writes the following from 18 Hamilton ave.:
"I am 42 years of age, and have had catarrh of the head for over half of my life.
"I read of Peruna, and finally decided to try it two months ago. I have now taken seven bottles, and weigh 172 pounds. Never felt happier or merrier. Fool tip top."—A. E. Kidd.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—According to late advice, Miss Blanche L. has made a complete recovery from catarrh of the head which had been chronic running from the earliest statement of the case is as follows:
"I have suffered for several years with catarrh of the head. It reached my ear, and caused a great deal of trouble. Having read of Dr. Hartman's remedies I immediately wrote and advised me. To-day I am in better health than I have been for some time. I will gladly recommend Peruna to all who are afflicted with catarrh of the head."—Miss Blanche Rundlett.
