TRYING THE AIR

IMPORTANT TASK OF THE
AIR BRAKE MAN.

Unpretentious Performance Which
Deeply Interests the Traveling Public—Testing the Brakes.

Few people stop to observe the details of a business which does not concern them. Here in Pendleton are a hundred vocations which are vital to the prosperity and business of the country, yet people not directly engaged in some one of them never stop to inquire into the details of their operation and management.

There is a task that is performed from five to 10 times daily in the railroad yards here, which directly interests every man who travels, yet not one man in 20 outside of the employes in the yard and on the road, know it is done.

This is the testing of the air brakes on every train that passes through Pendleton. On a mountain grade, the braking power and brake apparatus is the most important feature of the operation of railroads. The passenger train stops in front of the depot and immediately the "air men" begin looking over the air pipes, brake rigging, air reservoirs and all the belongings of the brake, to see that it is in repair. The air pump on the locomotive pumps the drums and air pipes full, and when the inspectors have gone over the train, fixed up leaks, tightened bolts and nuts and made secure every slightest defect found, the engineman "sets" the brake; that is, he makes an application of the air sufficient to hold the train down the mountain, or to check the speed of the train at any place necessary, and then the inspectors go back over the train and note carefully to see that every brake is set and in proper position. This is to insure the certain action of the brakes after leaving here, to make sure that the train is in condition to be handled with safety to the public and employes. If there is a defect it is remedied before the train starts. At every terminal point this operation is repeated, so that the man who looks from the cab window on the engine

BROTHERS MEET

RELATIVES OF UMATILLA COUNTY PIONEER HERE.

Indiana Family Reunited After Years—Politics of Home County Changed.

G. W. Davis, his wife and son, Edward, from Crawford county, Indiana, are visiting I. N. Davis and wife, of Milton, pioneers of Umatilla county. These two brothers had not seen each other for many years and the Umatilla county man was glad to see his brother from the old home in Indiana. They were in Pendleton today on their way to Helix to visit relatives, and paid a social visit to the East Oregonian.

"What times we used to have when we were boys," said I. N. Davis to his gray-haired brother, "back on the Wabash."

"Yes," answered his brother. "Remember the little creek where we went fishing? All changed now. You wouldn't know it."

Both men are getting old and feeble, but they were boys again thinking of those happy days in Indiana. G. W. Davis said that crops were excellent back in Crawford county and that the people generally were prosperous. He is well pleased with this country and was delighted with the many sights coming across the Rocky Mountains.

Speaking of election, he said that his home county went republican for the first time in many years.

"I have only been away from Indiana a month," said Mr. Davis, "and things are going wrong already."

I. N. Davis has been in Umatilla county 18 years and would not live anywhere else.

A Rich Man's Town.
Sudden accession to great wealth serves apparently to produce a yearning for exclusiveness, and a desire to avoid as far as possible contact with the masses, says the New York American. Tuxedo was founded by the Lorillards as a fashionable rich settlement with the avowed object of keeping out of the crowd, and now we hear of Charles Schwab, the head of the steel trust, being associated with a number of other wealthy men in the purchase of huge tracts of the choicest land on Long Island, overlooking the Sound, with the idea of founding there a colony much on the same lines as Tuxedo, from which all save the millionaire class would be excluded.

Snow on a Box Car.

The crowd standing on the depot platform was greeted with a change of scenery this morning, when the westbound freight arrived. On top of a box car which had been standing on the side track at Kamela for several days was about two inches of snow. It was in strange contrast to the warm rain that was gradually melting it away and was a pretty illustration of our diversity of climate.

BOUNTY REFUSED

COUNTY COURT DECIDES TO CEASE THEIR PAYMENT.

Order Issued Saturday—Judge Hartman Explains Why Such Action Was Necessarily Taken by Umatilla.

The bounty on scalps has been done away with in Umatilla county. Last Saturday an order was issued by the county commissioners' court, as follows:

"Now, on this day, it is ordered by the court that the clerk of this court be, and he is hereby ordered and directed, not to audit or issue county warrants in payment of bounties on any wildcat, coyote, mountain lion, panther, cougar, grey wolf or timber wolf until the further order of this court."

Speaking of the matter, Judge G. A. Hartman said:

"The state has refused to pay the bounties and as Union and Baker counties both have refused to pay the bounty on these animals, it was high time for Umatilla to take some step.

"Scalps were being brought in from Idaho and Washington and surrounding counties and the payment was becoming a great burden to this county. Over $12,000 has been paid by the clerk as bounty.

"The law should be repealed as it is only in the interests of a small class of our people—the sheepmen. Sheep have been pelted too much by the state. Laws have been passed keeping out foreign sheep, and many privileges accorded to sheep, while at the same time only about one-thirtieth of the taxes of Umatilla are paid by sheepmen.
