GENERAL GREENE

THE REVOLUTIONARY HERO REINTERRED AT SAVANNAH.

Conducted Under the Auspices of the Georgia Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 14.—The reinterment of the remains of General Greene, the revolutionary hero, and his son, George Washington Greene, took place in Savannah today in the presence of a distinguished gathering that included visitors from Rhode Island, New York, South Carolina and other states. The ceremonial address was delivered by Col. Asa Bird Gardiner, president of the Society of the Cincinnati in Rhode Island, who was at the head of the committee that discovered the remains of Gen. Greene some 18 months ago in the old Graham vault in the Colonial cemetery.

The ceremonies, which were conducted under the auspices of the Georgia society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, included a military procession and other interesting and impressive features. The exercises began with the unveiling of a memorial tablet of bronze that is to mark the old vault in the Colonial cemetery. The tablet was erected by the descendants of General Greene, of whom there were about 20 present at the ceremony, which was simple and brief. Upon its conclusion the military procession was formed on Oglethorpe avenue. The remains of father and son were borne upon a caisson of the Chatham artillery and surrounded by an escort of honor. To the music of the band the procession moved to Johnson Square where the oration of the day was delivered by Colonel Gardiner. Taps and a salute of artillery concluded the ceremony.

The reinterment of the remains of General Greene under the monument erected to his memory is the culmination of efforts on the part of the historical and patriotic societies of Georgia and extending over a period of nearly a century. The monument is in the shape of a Roman sword and occupies a commanding position in the center of Johnson Square, the most prominent public place in Savannah.

On two sides of the monument are handsome bronze tablets. One of these contains the name of General Greene and the dates of his birth and death. It also refers to his services in the Revolutionary war. On the other tablet is a full length figure of General Greene in relief, with his horse in the near background. The corner stone of the monument was laid by General Lafayette when he visited Savannah in 1825. There was at that time a plan on foot to erect a monument to both General Greene and Count Pulaski. Lafayette reached Savannah March 19, 1825, and on the following Monday laid the corner stone of the monument to the memory of General Greene. Later in the day he laid the corner stone for a monument to Count Pulaski in Pulaski Square, although the Greene monument served as a memorial to both for a time. The funds for the erection of the monuments were obtained through the medium of a lottery legalized by the state of Georgia.

Although a monument had been erected to General Green's memory, there remained until the spring of 1901 a great deal of doubt as to the exact spot in which he was buried. It was generally supposed that his remains resided in Colonial cemetery, but the exact location of the grave could not be discovered. As early as 1819, the council of Savannah adopted a resolution stating the fact that there was much doubt as to where General Greene was buried and calling for an investigation. A committee was appointed, but it did not succeed in the quest, and in November, 1819, a second committee was named. This committee was also unsuccessful, and other committees were named at different times. Many theories were advanced as to the burial place of the hero. Some thought he was buried at his home, Mulberry Grove, a few miles from Savannah, while others said he was buried at St. Mary's, S. C.

The Rhode Island society of the Cincinnati took up the search last year and Col. Asa Bird Gardiner was sent to Savannah to pursue the investigation in person. On March 3, 1901, Col. Gardiner and several associates began the work, and the following day, while examining the Mossman vault, a coffin plate was discovered, upon which the name of Greene could be discerned. Some buttons were also discovered, but no sword was found. The coffin plates were subjected to treatment in New York. On the one on which a portion of the inscription had been deciphered the full inscription was brought to light. It was as follows:
NATHANAEL GREENE.
Obit. June 19, 1786.
Age, 44 Years.

The other coffin plate, supposed to have been on the coffin containing the remains of the son of General Greene, had been made of a different metal and had so corroded that none of the inscription could be deciphered. Researchers tended to show that the Mossman had come into possession of the vault in the early part of the last century and that they had not removed the remains of General Greene. Philip Young, nephew of James Mossman, died in June, 1819, and as at that time there was an epidemic of yellow fever, it is concluded that the aldermanic committee appointed in that year to locate General Greene's burial place did not open the Mossman vault owing to the body of Young having recently been placed therein.

Plans of the M. J. & K. C.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 14.—The line of the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City road is complete to Hattiesburg, Miss., and it is planned to put a through schedule into operation to that point tomorrow. It is learned that plans have been made for a survey of the road across the northern state line of Mississippi, and it is inferred that Memphis is the probable destination, though no authoritative announcement to this effect has been made as yet. It is officially declared that the road is to be entirely independent and will not be in any way controlled by the Frisco, the Illinois Central, the Mobile & Ohio or any other system.

James Orrell, of Payette, had his forefinger blown off and his hand badly mangled Wednesday by the discharge of a shot gun.
