TO THE ASYLUM.

Jesse Berry Adjudged Insane and Sent to Salem.

Sheriff Till D. Taylor left today for Salem with Jesse Berry, who was adjudged insane and ordered taken to the asylum by County Judge Hartman. Berry is from McKay Creek, and while he has not been violent, he is unmistakably out of his right mind and his friends and those around him feared that he might do some harm. He was born in Polk county, Oregon, 52 years ago, and has a mother in The Dalles. His mania is that someone is trying to do him harm and to protect himself carried an open knife in his hand all the time.

Will Not Be Contested.

M. A. Miller, member of the legislature-elect from Linn county, is in the city. He is one of the democrats of Oregon who had a close call in the recent election, having been elected by a majority of only two votes. There was some talk of contesting his election, but this has all been abandoned and Mr. Miller will take his seat without further trouble. He served a term in the same capacity in 1893, is at present national democratic committeeman and was a delegate to the two last national demo-

PROCEEDS OF CATHOLIC FAIR WAS $1600.

Degree of Pocahontas Received the Prize Valued at $700, With Just $295—Other Prizes Awarded.

The Catholic fair ended Saturday night after a successful week for the Sisters. The net proceeds amounted to over $1600 which will be used toward completing the new hospital ward completing the new hospital now under course of construction.

What was expected to be the most interesting feature of the fair ended last night, but was not such a success as was anticipated. This was the voting for the year's free room and care in the new hospital which was to be given to the secret society receiving the most votes. Votes were ten cents a piece and the Degree of Pocahontas, the auxiliary to the Red Men, received the coveted prize. This order and the Women of Woodcraft, the auxiliary to the Woodmen of the World, were the only contestants. The Degree won the prize valued at over $700 with just $295, while the votes cast for the Women of Woodcraft amounted to $142.

All the booths did a good business and considerable money was taken in by them.

The ladies' silk waist was won by B. F. Hanlon; the misses' hat by E. J. Sommerville; the battenburg center piece, by S. A. Davy; the silk waist, by Margaret Ryan; the spangled sofa pillow, by Mrs. J. H. Ferguson; the smoking jacket, by Henry Swartz; set of furs by J. E. Bean; set of silver knives and forks, by Miss Mary Lang; the gold watch by Irene McCarthy; the bed, by R. S. Grant and the Indian robe, by M. F. Kelly.

Ed Bentley won the carving set by guessing at the number of beans in a jar and Jesse James won the writing desk.

The Sisters are very much pleased with the success of the fair.

INDIANS WERE AFRAID.

Thought That Captain Clark Had Descended From the Clouds.

It is small wonder that the first view of a white man created terror among the superstitious Indians. A striking instance of this occurred when the Walla Walla Indians first saw Captain Clark, of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Thinking to propitiate the savages and allay their fears of the white men, he planned to visit a village of Walla Wallas before the arrival of the rest of his party.

With this end in view, he set out to cross the Columbia river in a canoe taking three men with him. On the way he shot a crane and a duck, both of which fell near him. He landed before five wigwams placed close to each other, but not a person was visible, and the doors, which were of mat, were closed. Holding his pipe in hand, as an indication of good will, he pushed aside one of the doors and entered the lodge.

Inside were 30 men, women and children, huddled together in terror. He went to them, shook each by the hand and said some friendly words, expressing by word and manner his kindly feelings. Their apprehensions were allayed until he took out his burning-glass and lighted his pipe by the rays of the sun. Consternation again prevailed, and what might have occurred but for the timely arrival of two chiefs who knew the white men cannot be told.

It seems that the Indians had not seen Captain Clark, but they had seen the white crane which he had shot fall just before his appearance. They had also seen the duck fall at his shot. They connected the fall of the birds with his advent, and thought he had fallen from the clouds.

The sound of the rifle, which they had never heard before, they believed was a signal to announce the white man's coming. Small wonder, then, that their hardly allayed fears were again aroused when he brought down fire from heaven by means of his burning glass.—Youths Companion.

Robbery at Athena

Robbery at Adams and at Pendleton. It is done the most by holding up on a big price for the goods. We mark everything as we can sell them in figures as we know how to. A little girl paid us a high compliment the other day, said, "I don't see how you sell things so cheap in store." There is an old "That only children know the truth." See the price. We sell twenty pounds granulated sugar for every day in the week.
