JOURNEYS ON FOOT

FORBIDDEN TO BORROW,
 BEG OR STEAL HIS WAY.

Young Englishman Undertakes a 30,000 Mile Trip on Foot, Without Money, Except What is Earned.

Around the world on foot in four years is the stunt young B. H. Carter, an Englishman, is working out. Mr. Carter is now in Portland, says the Telegram, and has already completed 26,000 miles of his journey, so that he feels as if he were well along with his difficult task. He has until January 22, 1904, in which to make the 4000 odd miles of his journey to London, and is fully satisfied that he will accomplish his end.

Mr. Carter is making the journey on a wager between two English sports who bet $5000 that the journey could not be made within four years. The dispute came up over a discussion of the ability of Schilling, the American, as a walker, and Mr. Carter was selected to make the trial, he being an athlete. He started his walk at Christchurch, New Zealand, January 22, 1899. It was stipulated that he should neither beg, borrow nor steal, and should start without money. He has secured funds by lecturing on his travels and by working, while in number of instances subscriptions have been raised and benefits tendered by people who admired his pluck and desired to help him along.

A Remarkable Journey.

He has traveled through Australia, India, Egypt, Japan, Africa and from Asia to South America. From Chile he took passage on a German ship to Tacoma, and reached Portland on his journey to San Francisco. He left today for California, and will take the southern route across the continent to New York, where he will take passage on some vessel for Liverpool, hoping to land in London on time. He carries little or no luggage and while on the road carries with him extracts, so that in case he can get no food he will be able to live. At all the places stipulated he has secured letters from city officials in order to show proof that he has made the journey. Mr. Carter makes about 30 miles a day on the average, and declares that he is enjoying the trip.

TURKEYS HIGH IN ALASKA.

Thanksgiving Dinner Will Have the Flavor of Gold Dust, if Turkey is Served.

The people of Pendleton who eat turkey on Thanksgiving day can congratulate themselves on not being in Slagway. Turkeys there are quoted at 35 cents a pound and none to be had at that figure. This is said to be caused by the scarcity of these fowls in the states from whence the Alaskans draw their supplies. Slagway is not a fowl country. Some turkeys are raised there but the country being new and the climatic conditions so unfavorable, little attention is paid to raising fowls of any kind. Consequently they have to be shipped in from this country and when the supply is short here the prices are very high there.

To compare 35 cents a pound with 10 cents a pound in Pendleton, makes turkey meat look expensive to the average citizen. While turkeys are only tolerably plenty here, local dealers say there will be plenty to supply all the demand. While Thanksgiving day is almost a week distant yet, wagon loads of these fowls are beginning to come into town. Thursday, J. C. Saltmarsh brought in a wagon load of 60 turkeys which were disposed of to the local dealers. Others are bringing in loads of from 10 to 50 turkeys at a time, and find ready sale for them.

THEY WANT FREEDOM.

After 21 Years of Married Life, Couple Ask for Divorce.

Twenty-one years of married life has proved enough for Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Schiffer and this morning a suit was filed in the district court by Emil A. Schiffer asking an absolute severance of the matrimonial bonds heretofore existing between himself and wife, Sarah A. Schiffer. The complaint alleges that they were married in Montana in 1881 and in 1901 defendant wilfully deserted plaintiff without cause or provocation and has since continued to live separate and apart from him. Two children were born to them, one a girl of 19 summers and the other a boy of 17, and the plaintiff asks the court to give him one-third interest in the personal and real property, which he asserts is worth more than $6000, which defendant has in her own name. James A. Fee is attorney for plaintiff.

LOWELL GOING TO SUSANVILLE.

Will Assist in the Prosecution of J. Chrisman Charged With Murder.
 Judge S. A. Lowell will leave today for Canyon City to assist in the prosecution of J. Chrisman, who shot a man named Williams at Susanville last summer. The facts in this murder case are quite well known to the readers of the East Oregonian. Chrisman and Williams had had some trouble and bad blood existed between them. They met in a Susanville billiard hall and Chrisman began the quarrel. Williams tried to get away from his enemy and Chrisman drew a revolver, shooting Williams in cold blood. An effort was made to establish that Williams was the aggressor but Judge Lowell was called to help in the preliminary and succeeded in binding the murderer over. He was then retained for the prosecution. The case is to come up at the regular term of the district court next week.
