RESOURCES and HISTORY of UMATILLA COUNTY . .

A SERIES OF SKETCHES OF THE TOWNS AND PEOPLE OF OUR COUNTY BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT PAUL DE LANEY

XI. MILTON AND FREEWATER.

Freewater, Ore., Nov. 19.—With Athena, Weston, Adams and Helix, it is wheat. With Milton and Freewater it is fruit, vegetables and wheat. The emphasis at the two latter places should be placed on fruit and vegetables. The country surrounding them is a world-beater, in fact it has beaten the world. An old, faded diploma still tells the story. It was issued by the authority of the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876, and it states that an apple sent to the exposition that year from the neighborhood of Milton and Freewater was the largest ever produced in the United States and that it weighed just 49 ounces.

Has Many Prizes.

But this was the beginning. This section of country has been producing fruits and vegetables ever since and has been increasing the area until its fame has spread broadcast over the country. Many medals and diplomas adorn the homes of the fruit raisers of that section. Pan-American medals and certificates are there, and their are local prizes galore.

Rival Towns.

Milton and Freewater are spoken of as rival towns. It is true that one may form this conclusion if one visits the two places, for there are those in each town who have it "in" for the other town as the saying goes. The two towns lie side by side. In fact they come together at so many points that many of the residents and business men have to stop and ascertain where the division line runs in order to tell which town they are in. They are in the same school district, have the same depot and draw from the same country. Milton is an established town and Freewater is young and a-coming. Neither should complain at the other. They are both good towns, their interests are identical and one of these days they will get over their jealousy and join hands in attempting to outstrip all other towns in the county.

Wonderful Resources.

A canvass of the resources of the section brings out wonderful facts. To pass through the country on a railroad train, without a careful examination into the facts one would never suspect what is produced here and the enormous quantity of the various resources. And what makes the future the brighter for the two towns is the fact that not more than half of the rich soil has been brought into cultivation. "Irrigation has done it so far," said a prominent citizen, "but it will do more. Why if the water that is going to waste in the Walla Walla river could be harnessed and used as needed every inch of the land now lying idle would produce just as good crops of fruit and vegetables as is being produced by the cultivated soil, and room would be made and homes would be found for 10,000 more people."

Irrigation Question.

While irrigation is the watchword of many, there are those who look upon its agitation in this particular section with alarm. They say that during certain weeks in the summer the water supply runs low and that during this period many of the property owners do not get as much as they need, and that an attempt to build other irrigation ditches, or take more water from the river by any means would create dissensions and lawsuits. But all admit that if the water was properly saved and divided for every foot of land in the country. There is a confidence on the part of many that the government will find the way to store the great flood that goes to waste in winter and distribute it properly in summer so that all of the land will be reclaimed, and that by this means this section of Umatilla county will rival the world for the quantity of fruits and vegetables produced.

Fruits and vegetables.

Every kind of fruit and most of the vegetables are grown here. The section is noted for its strawberries. It often produces two crops a year of this berry, the last crop being limited. Blackberries, raspberries, dewberries, Logan berries are also prolific producers. Grapes and cherries are also the boast of the place. Apples, peaches, pears, plums, prunes, nectarines and quinces also find their natural element here.

A Big Apple.

The apples are world-beaters, as already stated. In 1876, Niniveh Ford, a pioneer fruit raiser, decided to contest for a prize at the Philadelphia Centennial. He had a young orchard of apple trees and this fruit was chosen for experiment. The story is that he stripped all of the apples from the tree except two in the early stages of the growth of the fruit and that these two apples he watched with care, supporting the two apples with strips of cloth as they became heavy, but by no means interfering with their growth. Just before the apples had begun to ripen he plucked the smaller one of the two at the proper time and this threw all of the growth in the last stages, which is said to be rapid and great to the remaining apple. The result was that he raised an apple weighing 49 ounces and it took the prize at the world's centennial celebration.

Vegetables.

While onions, potatoes and cabbages are now produced in larger quantities than other vegetables, yet there are many varieties that grow here successfully. There are many large producers and shippers here. It would be difficult to get an accurate statement of the shipments. Besides the shipments by rail many are hauled in wagons to Walla Walla and other points. A few prominent producers may be given to show what many are doing. Lawrence Heidenrich shipped 1000 sacks of onions this season. O. C. Gallagher and J. A. Broxson each shipped 500 sacks; William and John Clark shipped 3000 sacks of onions and 2000 sacks of potatoes.

Large Shipments.

There are three large companies

The Tyroise village of Matchi was almost totally destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon. The fire was started by a woman who is the largest individual property owner in the city, because she claims the peasants were disrespectful to her. She ignited the town in a dozen places. Nearly 1000 people are left entirely destitute. Five hundred cattle perished in the flames.
