BOY FIGHTS COUGAR.

Baker City Lad Attacked by Enraged Mountain Lion.

Baker City, Ore., Nov. 28.—Two boys, the sons of Charles Newton, of this city, had a thrilling experience with a mountain lion near this city, Saturday. They were out hunting rabbits when they came up with the lion. They were on horseback and armed with a shotgun. The oldest boy, a lad of 16 years, fired at the animal striking it with a full charge of shot in the head. The lion became enraged and attacked the boys on the horse. It caught the oldest boy by the leg and dragged him from the horse. A desperate encounter ensued between the boy and lion. The boy clubbed his gun and beat the lion over the head until he killed it. The gun stock was demolished, but victory was with the plucky lad.

The two boys brought the dead lion to town. There was another lion near by, presumably the mate of the one killed, although he did not offer to join in the fray. The gun was useless and the boys did not try to capture the second one. A party of hunters tried to find the other one yesterday, but failed to locate it.

Young Newton suffered a severe injury to his right leg, where the lion tore the flesh with its claws, but he will soon recover.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Phi Kappa Psi Alumni.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 26.—There promises to be an interesting gathering at the Denison hotel tonight on the occasion of the annual state dinner of the Phi Kappa Psi State Alumni Association. Among the persons who have accepted invitations to respond to toasts are James Whitcomb Riley, A. B. Anderson, of Crawfordsville; Professor Edwin Post, of De Pauw University; Judge James H. Jordan, of the supreme court; Samuel D. Evans, of Evansville; James W. Emerson, of Vincennes, and Col. A. F. Fleet, of Culver Military Institute.

A Startling Surprise.

Very few could believe in looking at A. T. Hoadley, a healthy, robust blacksmith, of Tilden, Ind., that for ten years he suffered such tortures from rheumatism as few could endure and live. But a wonderful change followed his taking Electric Bitters. Two bottles wholly cured me," he writes, "and I have not felt a twinge in over a year." They regulate the kidneys, purify the blood and cure rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, improve digestion and give perfect health. Try them. Only 50 cents at Tallmann & Co's drug store.

Wants Single Statehood.

Vinita, I. T., Nov. 28.—Among those interested in the statehood question in Oklahoma and Indian territories much interest is manifested in the convention of the Five Civilized Tribes in session today at Eufaula. The Five Civilized Tribes are strenuously opposed to the Indian Territory being absorbed by Oklahoma or attached to any other state and the purpose of the convention is to develop plans for the ultimate admission of the Indian Territory as a state by itself.

A SERIES OF SKETCHES OF THE TOWNS AND PEOPLE OF OUR COUNTY BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT PAUL DE LANEY

XV. ADAMS.

Adams, Ore., Nov. 23.—One who has stood on the hill overlooking Adams on a clear day will never ask from what source Adams draws her support. In every direction from this point, for many miles—to the very foothills, and in the valleys in the mountains—one sees rolling country of thousands of acres of wheat fields; in spring, green and smooth as a carpet, in summer a light grey, and in fall a bright brown, interspersed here and there with piles of straw that give it the appearance of a vast plateau, interspersed here and there with small rounded peaks.

"I would not compare myself with the devil nor you with the lowly Nazarene, neither is this a high mountain with the whole world lying at its feet, but the lover of beauty, grandeur and wealth who would not admire the scene before you is fit for treason, stratagem and spoils," said J. P. McManus, of the Adams Advance, as he pointed his finger from this eminence in a direction over the vast region in the vicinity of Adams.

The Location.

Adams is situated on the O. R. & N. railroad, about 13 miles from Pendleton, with Athena six miles beyond. Every inch of the soil in every direction from Adams is a grain producer. The town, although comparatively small in population, has three large warehouses where hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain are stored, and from which are shipped annually. It has a good newspaper, a number of enterprising business houses, has good schools and churches, fraternal organizations is incorporated and is in splendid financial condition.

Early Wheatraising.

Wade Holman and John Adams were the first settlers. The town is principally located on the tract homesteaded by Holman, but the town was named for Adams. Holman, like many of the other early pioneers was a wheatraiser and Adams a sheep-raiser. He was practically the pioneer of the place. The other old-timers began to stir the soil and experiment with wheat. Adams made all kinds of sport of them. He told them that they were wasting their time, as the soil would not produce anything but bunchgrass.

He even drove about among them and goodnaturedly advised them to quit wasting their time. He said he did not like to see such good men and hard workers throwing away precious moments. He advised them that if they were bound to work to go to a place where the soil would produce something and reward them for their labors. But these old pioneers showed their confidence in Umatilla soil by continuing their efforts. There were some failures in a measure at first it is true; the time for planting the summer fallow system all had to be learned; the primeval manner of saving the grain by tramping it out with the feet, the long haul to Umatilla landing for market, a hundred and one things had to be met by the pioneer wheatraiser. But patience and industry won. The wheat grew. It produced 30 or more bushels to the acre. The fame of the country spread. Other settlers came. The small "patches" grew into large farms. More land was taken up and fenced. In a few years the doubting Adams found his range growing smaller. His sheep had to give way to the broadening wheat fields. The pioneer sheep-raiser now had the laugh against him, and in his old days told and enjoyed the joke as well as did his old-time companions.

An Old-Timer.

A. McKenzie is one of the old-timers. He came to the community in 1873, lives two and one-half miles northwest of town and has 800 acres in wheat. He has raised as many as 47½ bushels of wheat to the acre and as high as 75 bushels of barley to the acre. He owned the first threshing outfit in the country and ran it within half a mile of where Adams now stands. It was a crude affair, but was considered a great institution in those days. Help was so scarce that he had to go to Walla Walla to get help. The wheat then was principally hauled to Umatilla Landing.

Live Squirrel "Traps."

Mr. McKenzie tells about how the live in traps set in fields early days. They literally destroyed the crops some seasons. He tells about staking cats out in the fields with long cords and then tells about how the energetic squirrels stole the wheat from the cats. Mr. McKenzie tried to get a bill before the legislature requiring each county to pay a bounty of one cent for each squirrel killed. The squirrels were so numerous at the time that the people declared that it would bankrupt the county to pay the bounty and the bill was defeated.

Wheat Shipments Today.

The wheat industry has grown from a few wagon loads to Umatilla landing in early days to shipments by rail from the town of Adams of hundreds of thousands of bushels annually. Kerr, Gifford & Co. of Portland, and the Pacific Coast Elevator Co., of Tacoma, all have agents and warehouses at this place. Kerr, Gifford & Co., represented by T. A. J. J. J. J., have a warehouse with a capacity for 125,000 bushels and this company handles 140,000 bushels of grain annually. Balfour, Guthrie & Co., represented by E. A. Marquis, have a warehouse 200x50 and handles about 70,000 bushels of grain annually. The Pacific Coast Elevator Co., represented by M. C. McIntyre, has a warehouse 350x40 feet and handle about 95,000 bushels annually. This company also has warehouses at Eastland and Havana, nearby stations. The warehouse at Eastland is 200x40 feet and about 75,000 bushels are handled from this point annually. The warehouse at
