FIRE AT BARNHART

SUPPOSED IT WAS STARTED BY ENGINE.

Warehouse at Barnhart Station Burned—Total Loss of $10,000 Covered by Insurance.

Will Moore returned last evening from Barnhart Station, where he went to look after the loss to the Pacific Coast Elevator Company, of their warehouse yesterday morning.

Mr. Moore said that from all indications the fire caught from east-bound No. 6 passenger train as it came from Portland. The train stopped at Barnhart to let off a Jap laborer for the railroad company and a few moments after the train pulled out the building was discovered on fire. The warehouse was securely locked and no one had been inside for several days. The fire was discovered on top of the building, which would indicate that it caught from a falling spark and further substantiates the theory of its origin from a passing engine.

The total loss of the building and contents will amount to about $10,000, which was almost all covered by insurance. In fact, all of the grain contained in the house was covered except 500 sacks.

The only thing saved was a pair of scales and the trucks with a few hundred sacks of barley, which was carried out by the section crew which was near when the fire broke out.

WOOD GOING WEST.

Scarcity at Heppner Draws on the Blue Mountain Supply, Which Has Been Used in This City.

Good 16-inch wood is now retailing in Pendleton at $6.50 a cord, which is the highest figure it has reached here for many years.

Heppner is drawing her fuel supply this winter from the hills in the neighborhood of Kamela, which is our principle base of supply. Formerly wood has been cut in the mountains near Heppner for home consumption, but the coal excitement last summer caused all dealers to stop operations and little was cut.

It was thought the coal deposits would cut the wood sales down as the coal would be so very much cheaper than wood and all were confident that the supply would be large enough before winter to fill all demands. In this they were mistaken and now the consumers have to draw on outside territory for the supply. Little wood is reported to have been cut during the summer in the Cascades and Kamela wood is the nearest supply which Heppner has to depend upon. Wood is now retailing at $8 a cord in Heppner and the demand is much above the supply at this figure.

Local dealers say there is little fear of a wood famine here, but a scarcity is anticipated as a result of the heavy shipments into Heppner.

FOR EXTENDED TRIP.

Dr. Cole Leaves for a Trip Through the Eastern States—Will Visit Hospitals.

Dr. W. G. Cole left Wednesday night for an extended trip through the middle West and Eastern states. He will first visit his mother in Canada and from there will go through all the principal hospitals and from there will visit New York and all the hospitals of any note throughout the East and middle states. The doctor's trip is for the purpose of getting a better insight into the workings of the up-to-date hospitals and places of surgery. He will be away six weeks and perhaps longer.

Oregon is as large as the whole of New England with two-thirds of New York state added. It is larger than the combined areas of New York and Pennsylvania.
