SOCIAL EVENTS OF THE WEEK

Concerning the People of Pendleton and Vicinity • Notes Personal and Otherwise • By Our Regular Correspondent

Young Men Entertain.

Few, indeed, have been the occasions, if ever before, that Pendleton has witnessed as pretty a social picture as was presented to the view of those who attended the dance party given Thursday evening at LaDow Music hall. It was the event of the social season, and the young gentlemen hosts need have no fear of ever being outdone in their efforts to give their friends an enjoyable evening. Music hall was never attired in more beautiful garb, which bespoke many hours of toil and the display of exquisite taste in its arrangement. Over two hundred invitations had been sent out, and judging by the number who participated in the festivities, few replied with regrets. But notwithstanding the large attendance, all enjoyed themselves to the fullest. Many were the expressions of admiration and pleasure heard on all sides, and it will long be remembered as a bright spot of the past.

Indian robes were used in profusion in the hall decorations. Alcoves were arranged in either of the south corners, and were made attractive and comfortable with rugs and cushions, while bon bon dishes were near at hand and kept constantly filled with choice confections. These cozy corners were illuminated by handsome electric lamps. Silver candelabras were used in various parts of the hall, which added materially to the illumination effect. In the center of the hall two large palm trees were arranged with settees on either side, which made an unusually attractive spot and also kept the large throng of dancers circling around the room, causing less interference. On the platform at the north end of the hall, Kirkman's orchestra was stationed, hidden from view with screens and palms. On each side of the platform were prettily decorated tables, where punch, ices, wafers and bon bons were served.

Upon entering the hall, the guests were received by the hosts, who were: Charles E. Bond, Homer V. Carpenter, George A. Hartman, Jr., Oliver W. Kelsey, Fred W. Lampkin, Mark Moorhouse, Roy W. Ritner, Charles B. Samson, Wynne Stewart, Harry C. Thompson, Eldred B. Waffle and James B. Welch. The gentlemen were zealous in their efforts to have each guest enjoy the dancing, and they were successful. No one was at a loss for a partner in the dances unless by preference.

The patronesses, who apparently had an equal amount of enjoyment, were Mesdames R. Alexander, J. A. Borie, Chas. A. Cameron, J. Ross Dickson, W. H. Fowler, Homer H. Hallock, Thomas G. Halley, George Hartman, A. W. Nye, Alice Sheridan, Leona Thompson and Frederick Vincent. The beautiful gowns worn by the ladies present added elegance to the general effect.

"The Military Girl."

"The Military Girl" is now a thing of the past, but the memory of it will long remain, for there is hardly a day passes but some remark in the way of praise is bestowed upon the clever performance and the amount of good talent that Pendleton can produce, when called upon. The young ladies taking part deserve great praise for their zealous work and untiring efforts in making the play a success, which awarded them a nice amount to turn on the church debt. Should they ever decide to give another performance, the simple announcement of such an intention would assure them a packed house.

The Parish Aid Society.

The ladies of the Parish Aid Society, of the Church of the Redeemer, will hold their regular Christmas sale at the parish house on next Thursday and Friday. Fine dinners, such as the parish ladies are noted for, will be served on each day. Any one in need of pretty and useful articles for Christmas presents, will do well to call and see the many beautiful articles on display.

Another Amateur Performance.

There is some talk of another amateur performance being presented by the ladies of the Parish Aid Society. It will be given entirely by local talent, which will mean larger profits for the cause championed.

Elks Will Entertain.

The Elks are making great preparations for an evening party, to be given at Music Hall on Christmas night. A Christmas tree will be the feature of the evening, followed by a German. Great sport is promised, but it goes without saying that when the Elks make up their minds to do anything, it is never done by halves.

Married Men to Entertain.

The rumor is current that the married men of Pendleton social circles intend giving a dance after the holidays, in return to the young ladies and gentlemen, who entertained so handsomely this winter. Private parties seem to be the order of the season's dances.

Return to Pendleton.

Pendleton social circles will welcome the return to this city of Mrs. H. B. Rees, nee Miss Evelyn Starkweather, who returned last Sunday from Spokane. Mr. Rees has embarked in business in this city, and they will make their future home here.

Parliamentary Club.

The Parliamentary Club will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday afternoon at the Commercial Club parlors, at 2:30. A valuable report from the chairman of the state committee will be read and discussed. It is hoped that Mr. Conklyn, of the public school, will be present to offer some practical suggestions in the line of manual training. Several members of the club are willing to assist in this work if it can be arranged with the school authorities. Local library needs will be a subject that will receive early attention in the club, and the proposed sewer system in Pendleton will come in for a little discussion Tuesday. A number of the club women are tax-payers and all of them are quite alive to the work needed to make "Pendleton a better place to live in."

The names of six new members to the club will be voted on Tuesday, and several applications for membership will be filed. Mrs. John Beckwith was elected to membership at the last meeting.

Thursday Afternoon Club.

A very pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. A. D. Stillman when the Thursday Afternoon Club held its regular meeting. "Pioneer Days in Oregon" was the topic of conversation, and very interesting talks were given by the following ladies: "A Trip Across the Plains," Mrs. E. P. Marshall; "The First Home and Pioneer Housekeeping," Mrs. John Halley; "Social Life of the Pioneer," Mrs. Guernsey; "Personal Recollections of Indian Wars," Mrs. J. E. Bean; "The Beginnings of Portland," Mrs. Fee; "Short History of Pendleton," Miss Raley; "First Impressions of a Boston Woman," Mrs. Wade. Unique programs were prepared by the hostesses, on the cover of which was a photograph of Pendleton in 1869, showing the homes of Jessa Failing and Mrs. Raley at that time. On the fly leaf of the program the club members' names were grouped as follows:

Native Daughters—Mrs. J. E. Bean, Mrs. B. S. Burroughs, Mrs. H. C. Guernsey, Mrs. E. P. Marshall, Mrs. Cosbie Raley, Mrs. C. J. Smith, Mrs. Alice Sheridan.

Native Granddaughter—Mrs. H. C. Guernsey.

Acclimated by long residence—Mrs. Henry Bean, Mrs. J. A. Fee, Mrs. John Halley, Mrs. Lysette Mrs. A. D. Stillman, Mrs. S. P. Sturgis, Mrs. C. B. Wade.

Tenderfoot—Mrs. T. C. Halley, Mrs. M. J. Lane, Mrs. F. W. Waite, Mrs. A. P. Nash, Mrs. F. P. Wamsley, Mrs. C. J. Colesworthy.

The guests of the club for the afternoon were Mesdames Raley, Welch, Bishop, Failing, Nye and Mrs. G. A. Hartman, Sr., all of whom lived in Pendleton in its primitive days.

Dinner and Social.

Friday the members of the Presbyterian church held their regular monthly dinner and social in the parlors of the church. It has been the custom of the church to hold a lunch social the first Friday of each month and these are growing in popularity. After the luncheon the ladies repaired to the home of Mrs. C. J. Smith, where the afternoon and evening was spent in holding the fair.

Loveredge-Price.

At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. N. Loveredge, in Weston, occurred the marriage of Miss Treanna Loveredge to Frank Price. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. S. Payne, in the presence of a few friends. Both bride and groom are well known and respected young people of the east end and their many friends wish them happiness.

Walker-Henley.

A pretty home wedding took place this morning at the home of J. P. Walker, on College street, when his daughter, Miss Mamie, was united in
