THE DOUKHOBORS

INSIDE HISTORY OF THIS INTERESTING SECT.

Will Not Use Harness Made From the Hides of Animals—Eat Bread and Water and Dress in Pure Cotton—Long Story of Persecution.

Strange fancies sometimes take possession of religious sects, but the strangest of all is probably the distressing mania that has enthralled 5000 Russian Doukhobors, who have located in Western Manitoba, says a special dispatch from Yorktown, Manitoba, to the New York Times. In the Swan River district the government is apprehensive for the remarkable craze that has taken possession of these colonists. A visit to the community showed that the sights and scenes and the horror depicted were almost beyond conception.

Will Not Shed Blood.

It is well known that the Doukhobors are adverse to shedding blood. This is the reason they emigrated from Russia, and it is also the reason why the Canadian government exempted them from military duty as an inducement for their location on the prairie land of the West. As to what they should eat, this was purely a personal matter, but, as it appears, it was one of the features that was overlooked by the government that will cause immense trouble.

In this country a man may eat what he chooses, and if his religion dictates that he shall conform to a vegetable diet, such beliefs are respected. All might have been well had this state of affairs been confined to vegetarianism, but the Doukhobors religions does not appear to be a finished product. It has been constantly undergoing changes. From the belief that it was a sin to eat meat, it seems a long jump to reach the conclusion that it is wrong to eat animal products, but these people have now given up eating milk, butter, cheese, eggs, etc., and the cows, oxen goats and fowl are increasing and multiplying, and waxing fat while the people are on the verge of starvation.

Strange Beliefs.

Having reached this absurd position, it was but a step to another and more ridiculous one. If it were wrong to eat the flesh of animals, the same line of reasoning made it comparatively easy to condemn the use of leather harness made from the hides of God's creatures, and then followed the condemnation of woollen clothing, because wool grows on the bodies of sheep, which also belong to the Lord. The next step was still more sweeping in its effect on their economic condition. It was wrong to make servants of the lower animals, to use them for beasts of burden or for any other purpose.

They had the courage of their convictions, and at once turned out their horses, cattle and sheep, driving them to "God's Hill" to forage for themselves, placing all the burdens of farm life on their own shoulders. For all drawing purposes, such as hauling heavy loads on wagons, men take the place of horses and oxen. Twelve or 14 men hitched to a plow sufficed for this purpose and it is the only method employed by them in the cultivation of the soil. Women, even, are employed in this manner, though when coming into town men only are seen hauling the wagons and buggies. Every day in the streets of Yorktown dozens of men may be seen drawing wagons, hauling what little produce they may have for sale, and carrying back to their farms flour and other necessities.

The Doukhobors are clad exclusively in cotton clothes and wear rubber boots or shoes knit or woven with binder twine, which they buy for the purpose. Their food consists of bread and water and such vegetables as they grow, and wild berries and herbs which they gather. Their farms are neglected, and their stock, of which they had much, is running wild in the hills, where it will all die in the winter, or be appropriated by those who are not of their religious faith, and who will at least give the stock shelter.

With the advent of cold weather starvation and disease must certainly follow, and they appear to know this, for they have been in correspondence with authorities in Southern California, Nevada, Arizona and Australia, with a view to emigration to a warmer climate where the conditions would enable them to subsist on the soil without trespassing on the possessions of the animal kingdom. It is needless to say that no one wants them, so they are still in Manitoba, an elephant on the hands of the government that brought them from Russia a few years ago to develop the prairie land of the West.

The success of the Russian Doukhobors as farmers in the Canadian colony is an entirely unlooked for result of the work of Count Leo Tolstoi and hundreds of charitable persons, particularly the Quakers, who sought to better the conditions of the peculiar but seemingly sincere religious sect.

A Long Persecution.

The Doukhobors were persecuted by the Russian government for more than a century. The name means "Champions of the Spirit" or "Spirit Wrestlers."

Their persecution began in 1799, when Paul I., on being informed that they denied his authority, gave orders that they should be banished to the mines for life, and should never have the chains taken from their hands and feet. About 15,000 were transported to Siberia. In 1832 Alexander I. gave them permission to colonize on a Siberian farm, which, through their thrift and industry, became very valuable. Their number increased to 25,000. In 1839 they were ordered to military duty. They did not decline to fulfill the every-day duties of the soldier, but when they came to face the enemy they lay down, and no punishment could make them go forward. They were constantly shifted about until reduced to about 10,000.

Pulp.

"Well, sir," said the self-made business man, "you have had charge of my boy for a month. Is there anything in him?"

"To be perfectly candid with you," said the boy's tutor, "I shall have to characterize him as a chip off the old block."

Enterprising Man.

"I tell you," said Mr. Fadoogus, "our grocer is a shrewd fellow. He is always on the lookout for schemes that will bring trade his way."

"He must be successful," said Mr. Wunder.

"You bet he is! Why, he has the biggest rush right now on mince meat that you ever saw. He is giving away a box of pepsin with each pound of it."—Judge.

A Woman's Reasoning.

"Why did you ever let your daughter marry so young?"

"Because I got tired being her chaperon and always mingling with her boys. I've had three offers of marriage already since I have had a chance to get away from the children."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Hard to Understand.

Spilkins—I think Squillins would make a first-class grand opera singer. Bilkins—How's that? Spilkins—Why, he's had such a long experience at calling towns on a suburban train.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Astonishing.

"See here," said the ward worker, "you ain't doin' what you promised before you got elected."

"Great heavens! haven't you been in the business long enough not to be surprised at that?"—Chicago Record-Herald.
