KNEW DAVENPORT

LA GRAND WOMAN TELLS OF THE CARTOONIST.

Good Naturedly Bore All the Jokes of the Home—Not Addicted to Hard Work—His First Studio the Barn Door.

Mrs. Robert Orr, a lady now living in La Grande, lived for years near the home of Homer Davenport, and resided for some time with the Davenports, during the boyhood of the cartoonist.

Mrs. Orr's reminiscences of the embryo artist are interesting. She had an opportunity to observe the boy and his first efforts at close range. At that time he had not dreamed of being anything more than a poor farm hand, with a tendency to fun-making.

The Object of All Jokes.

"If a practical joke was played upon any member of the family," says Mrs. Orr, "it always fell to Homer's lot to be the victim, on account of his unflinching good nature. He never was known to grow angry at these studied attacks of the family.

"He would retaliate by drawing a horrible picture of the perpetrator of the joke, with such a striking resemblance that it had the effect of dispelling, for a time, their worrying attacks.

"Nobody or no object about the home escaped the pencil and chalk of Davenport. The barn was literally covered with pictures of Chinese pheasants and bull pups. The pheasant was a new bird in Oregon at that time and seemed to be a peculiar object of admiration. Homer outlined a pheasant in nearly every scene he drew.

His Studio.

"It might be said that Davenport's first studio was the back of the barn, and a smooth board wherever found. He was not given to farm work to any great extent, but his industrious picture-making and his lovable good nature and noble traits, made up the little deficiency.

"The elder Davenport often wondered what would become of the boy. He didn't like farm work, showed no tendency toward the good old pursuits of agriculture and hard work. Nothing but draw, draw, draw—draw on the barn, on the fence, on the woodshed, cellar door, chicken house and on every imaginable smooth spot, large enough to contain the likeness of a great, strutting pheasant or a bristling bull pup.

"Father Hoing Corn."

"The father one day found a picture on the back of the barn representing himself, lying in the shade of a tree, asleep, with his well worn hoe, leaning against the fence. The picture was in the rough; just a few chalk lines dashed here and there upon the rough boards, but its suggestion of his father's manner of hoing corn was so laughable that it became the talk of the neighborhood.

The Pride of Heroes.

Many soldiers in the last war wrote to say that for scratches, bruises, cuts, wounds, corns, sore feet and stiff joints, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best in the world. Same for burns, scalds, boils, ulcers, skin eruptions and piles. It cures or no pay. Only 25c at Tallman & Co.'s drug store.

His retirement from the board was due entirely to his poor health. Sure there wasn't a squabble of some sort? Positive. If there had been a row the papers would have been full of interviews with the other members expressing their cordial appreciation of his services and their regret, etc.—Philadelphia Press.

JOHN THORNTON.

Wanted in Dayton, Wash., for Horse Stealing.

Dispatches from Dayton, Wash., say that John Thornton, better known as "Rattle Snake Jack," is wanted in that city for horse stealing.

John Thornton is well known to the pioneers of Pendleton. Years ago he was in business in this city. For several years he has been living in Garfield county, Washington. A few days ago he went to Dayton, where it is alleged he told his friend, J. A. Ayres, that he wanted to go a few miles into the country to secure some of his clothing. He stated that he would only be gone a few hours, but never came back. The officers have been notified to keep a lookout for him, but up to date he has not been apprehended.

A Million Voices

Could hardly express the thanks of Homer Hall, of West Point, Ia. Listen why: A severe cold had settled on his lungs, causing a most obstinate cough. Several physicians said he had consumption, but could not help him. When all thought he was doomed he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and writes—"It completely cured me and saved my life. I now weigh 227 lbs." It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds and lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Tallman & Co.'s drug store.
