GATHERING PLANTS IN EASTERN OREGON.

William C. Cusick, of Union County, a Botanist for Twenty Years—Rare Specimens of Flowers From Oregon Forests Sent to Europe.

Not many people know that Eastern Oregon has many active botanists who make a specialty of gathering, classifying and studying the plant life of this great mountain region.

The Blue Mountains are "gold mines" for botanists. More new species of plants, shrubs and flowers have been added to the nation's list of plants from Umatilla, Union, Grant, Baker and Malheur counties than from any other territory of equal area in the United States.

The mountains furnish rare fields of exploration. The work of gathering and preserving plants is one of rare charm. It is a "camping trip," just at the best season of the year, in flowery June.

For 20 years, one man in Eastern Oregon has made yearly explorations among the highest granite mountains, for new plants, and has been richly rewarded for his labors. Scarcely a canyon, gorge or cliff between Nevada and Washington in Eastern Oregon, has escaped his vigilant eye.

In many he starts out with pack horse or buckboard, just as the journey requires. Slowly, watchfully, diligently he searches the grass-grown mountainside; peers into the crevices of cliffs; closely scrutinizes the dense foliage that lines the banks of the mountain brook and with unerring eye surveys the blossoms that deck the mountain glades, for the slightest flash of color that is new or strange.

The botanist is W. C. Cusick, of Clover Creek, Union county, Oregon.

Every year he makes a tour of Eastern Oregon mountains, either for private exploration, or in the interest of the Smithsonian institute. He has made elaborate arrangements on his farm for the care, curing and preservation of his specimens.

He also furnishes much valuable information to the Oregon Agricultural College on the flora of Eastern Oregon.

He has explored many districts of the Granite Mountains and Stein's mountain, where he found no trace of man's presence. He has sent rare specimens of Oregon plants to Germany and England botanical institutions and a few years ago furnished several thousand bulbs of a certain yellow wild flower which grows profusely on the low foothills of this section, to a botanical garden in Washington, D. C.

One interesting and valuable work he performed for the Oregon Agricultural College was to gather numerous specimens of wild parsnip, a deadly poisonous plant of Eastern Oregon meadows. His collection was extensive, embracing the different parts of the root, plant and bloom at different stages of its growth, and was carefully prepared and scientifically described.

The Lucky Numbers.

Wednesday evening closed the prize contest at Lee Teutsch's big department store. Miss Mae Carmichael held the number which drew the first prize of $25. This number was 3123. None of the other lucky ones to hold tickets have appeared to claim their prize. The other numbers to draw prizes were: 1784, $10; 963, $5. The other prizes were all $1, and were: 2928, 1391, 7952, 6066, 8857, 7294, 408, 1937, 959 and 338.

Protection Against the Band.

Nightcaps and cotton ear wads are provided by the proprietor of a hotel at Vytia, Hungary, for those of his guests who retire early and do not wish to be kept awake by a Gypsy band which plays nightly at the hotel.

A Costly Prayer Book.
Queen Elizabeth used to carry about with her suspended by a chain of pure gold a book called "The Golden Manual of Prayer," a dainty volume of 300 pages, bound in "hammered virgin gold." One side of this costly volume gave a representation of the judgment of Solomon, the other the brazen serpent on the cross in the desert.

A Fad and a Cult.
A Boston editor, asked to define the difference between a cult and a fad, rose to the emergency in this manner: "A fad is anything that arouses evanescent mentality, while a cult is anything that inspires permanent mentality."
