STABBED HIMSELF

WHILE DELIRIOUS MADE AN ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

Got Hold of an Old Rusty Knife and Wounded Himself in the Neck and Breast—Makes Second Attempt by Beating His Brains Out.

A short knife blade is the only thing that saved the life of Frank Powell, now in the county jail.

Powell has been herding sheep for William Shusher, Saturday he was brought to town suffering from a bad attack of drunken tremors. He was delirious and seemed to be going crazy. Dr. McFaul examined him Saturday afternoon and pronounced his case not dangerous, but advised that the man be kept here for a few days to see if he would not come out all right.

At 6 o'clock Saturday evening Powell attempted to end his own life. He got hold of an old rusty pocket knife and stabbed himself in the neck and also in the breast over the heart. The old knife blade was not long enough to reach a vital spot and this was the only thing which saved his life.

Where Powell got the knife is a mystery. It was an old blade with the handles rusted off and the blade so rusty that it would not shut. The knife had the appearance of having been buried several years.

When arrested and placed in jail Powell was carefully searched and two pocket knives were taken from him. Where he had the knife hid with which he attempted to kill himself cannot be fathomed by the officers, but it is evident that he had it about his clothing as some of the inmates of the jail claim they saw Powell with the knife a few minutes after he was placed in the jail.

Bad Wound in Neck.

The wound in Powell's neck came very near to putting him out of business. Had the blade of the knife been a fraction longer his purpose would have been accomplished. This was the first cut. Then Powell buried the blade of the old knife in his bosom, but it did not reach to the heart. Then Powell fell to the floor and began to groan. This attracted the attention of the other inmates of the jail, who raised the alarm and the attendants rushed into Powell's cell to find him lying sweltering in his own blood.

Dr. McFaul was called and dressed the wounds. Powell was then placed back in the cell and muffs put on his hands to keep him from trying to tear the wound with his fingers.

Made Second Attempt.

He had not been left to himself but a few minutes when he attempted to beat his brains out against the iron bars of his cell. The officers discovered him at this, but before he could be stopped he had cut several bad gashes in the top of his head. The doctor was called again and the second wounds dressed. A guard was then placed over the demented man to keep him from further attempting to end his life.

Powell will be judged insane and sent to the asylum unless he shows signs of regaining his mental balance within a few days.

MISTAKEN FOR A MINISTER.

Lime and Lumber Salesman Meets With an Amusing Experience.

E. H. Thompson, of Bridal Veil, salesman for Nottingham & Co., wholesale lime and cement dealers, and the Bridal Veil Lumber Company, went to Pleasant Valley, 10 miles east of Baker City, a few days ago, to make arrangements to handle the output of a new lime kiln that has been built there recently.

He wandered up to the boarding house at noon, washed with the crowd of boarders that was waiting for the bell to ring, and being somewhat shy allowed the table to be filled up before he got a seat.

However, he was treated to a surprise. A side table was immediately arranged with the whitest of linen, the best spoons and brightest silver sugar bowl were placed upon it, and he was invited to sit down, alone.

A young lady was especially assigned to look after his comfort and drive the flies away from him.

He had eaten no breakfast, and was ferociously hungry, and was soon devouring the splendid meal before him. While at the height of his enjoyment, he was shocked to hear a 16-year-old boy say to his mother, in the kitchen: "Ma, what kind of a preacher is that? He didn't ask no blessing."

It then dawned upon Mr. Thompson that there might be a mistake about his identity. He soon found that such was the case.

The little village expected a preacher on the morning train to hold Sunday school that afternoon, and everybody was wondering why he was so deeply interested in the lime kiln that he couldn't inquire into the welfare of the flock which awaited his coming.
