Training for Teachers,

Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 6 .- One of the most advanced steps taken in the progress of Southern education is the establishment of a department of education in the University of Tennessee The department opened today. It is modelled largely on the Teachers' College of Columbia University and is the outcome of a desire to meet the growing demand in the South for an advanced and extensive school for profesional training of teachers. The department is to include not only course in modern pedagogy and phy chology, but also instruction in the latest methods of teaching English history, the physical sciences, nature study, manual training, domestic sci-ence, and other special subjects.
