COUNCIL MEETING

CITY DECIDES TO PAVE THE EASTERN END OF COURT.

May Buy a Rock Crusher—Compromise on the Monroe Street Grading—Ladies of the Civic Club Present Some Timely Suggestions.

In the council meeting last night, rock crushers and road levelers were discussed. Engineer's plans for grading streets were accepted. Ladies of Civic Clubs present matters of importance. Tax of 7 mills was levied for ensuing year. It was decided to rock pave East Court street.

At the council meeting last night the following were present: Councilmen Summerville, Frazier, Clopton, Johnson, Switzer, Dickson and Hartman; Recorder Fitz Gerald; Attorney Carter and Mayor Halley.
Before organizing for the evening's transaction of business in an informal discussion of the rock crusher and road roller question was indulged in, during which it was developed that it requires only a six-ton roller for asphalt, but a 12 to 14-ton roller for crushed rock. The advisability of leasing the Athena crusher was discussed, but met with little favor. Afterward, during the transaction of business officially, the council by unanimous vote, turned the subject of road roller and rock crusher over to the committee on streets, with power to act.

The engineer's plans for the grading of the territory north of Jackson street and west of Blaine street developed a long discussion that bordered at times on the acrimonious. L. W. Held appeared as a protestant, claiming that the grade provided for by the plans submitted was not equitable; also that the plans had been in some details changed after being first submitted as the completed plans. Mr. Held's views that the grade, according to the plans, was not equitable, were seconded by Councilman Switzer. A compromise was finally effected by that portion of the plans referring to Monroe street not being mentioned at all in the ordinance, which finally passed. The ordinance, with all reference to Monroe street eliminated, finally passed unanimously, the rules being suspended and a final vote being taken. The end of Monroe street nearest the river was the origin of most of the discussion. The grading of Monroe street is a matter for future action, having to relation to the ordinance passed last night.

A committee of ladies representing the civic federation work, appeared before the council to make suggestions in regard to some subjects in which they are greatly interested. Mrs. C. B. Wade urged the location of receptacles on street corners in which trash that would otherwise be blowing about the streets or obstructing them as useless debris, should be put.

Mrs. H. C. Guernsey reminded the council of the wretched condition of the sidewalks in some neighborhoods and suggested the importance of their being repaired and of the importance, too, of building in some cases new walks altogether.

Mrs. F. C. Robinson raised the question as to what should be done in relation to the old cemetery in the edge of town, its condition being an eyesore and distress to everybody who comes within sight of it. There are still in the cemetery a number of bodies which should be removed, while many unsightly holes exist where bodies have been removed. An unsightly hill-board also stands on the edge of the old cemetery, which should be removed.

Mrs. Robinson's remarks caused a lively discussion as to ways and means available to remedy the condition of things mentioned. City Attorney Carter had already investigated the matter of compelling the removal of bodies, but has been unable to find any authority in law for compelling any individual to improve the appearance of the lots which they own in the old cemetery.

Mrs. F. F. Wamsley voiced the dissatisfaction of many people in regard to the condition of the crosswalks on Alta street and in some other neighborhoods.
The petition of G. Newman, A. J. Gibson and Martin Compton, for a sidewalk on the north side of Railroad street from the center of block 81 to the center of block 82, was informally discussed, but no action was taken upon it.

Councilman Clopton introduced an ordinance making the tax levy for the ensuing year. It was first read by section, and then the rules were suspended and it was passed by a unanimous vote. It provides for a total levy of 7 mills reinforced by a poll tax upon adult males of $2 per head. Those who are infirm, and firemen are exempt from the poll tax. The poll tax is levied for the improvement, construction and repairing of the streets exclusively. It is levied on men between the ages of 21 and 50 with the exceptions noted. It is supposed to be the equivalent of a 2 mill levy on every $1000 worth of property. The discussion of the tax levy developed the fact that 7 mills is the maximum allowed by law, but it was agreed that the maximum is needed this year. During this discussion it was mentioned that there are now 23 saloons, each paying a license fee of $550, and the question of the advisability of raising the license was discussed and dropped. Some thought such an action would reduce the number of saloons very materially; others did not think it would to any appreciable extent. Others thought that if it did enough would continue running to increase the city's revenue very materially should it be thought advisable to raise the license tax. The present income from the saloons is $4550 per year.

The sewer bond question being mentioned, the claim was made that more than the funds that can be raised by the sale of the bonds will be necessary to complete the system. There was a diversity of opinion upon this question. Some thought that no other funds could be used for the purpose than the bond funds, others thought other monies could be diverted and put into the sewer fund.

Then the problem of disposing of the eastern end of Court street came up for disposal. The claim that the county is responsible for "a good half" of the lane through the Byers land did not seem to be sustained. Judge Hartman, who is a member both of the council and of the county court, insisted that the county does not own over 200 feet of the half mile of bad road.

The problem was finally disposed of by the unanimous passage of a resolution that that portion of Court street (the lane through the Byers land in the eastern portion of the city) be rock paved according to the following stipulations: That that portion of Court street between the east side of Mission street and the eastern boundary line of Reservation addition be excavated between the sidewalk lines to a depth of 15 inches. Then an oval layer of shell rock is to be put upon the bottom of the excavation, which is to be 12 inches in thickness in the middle, tapering off toward the sides. Upon this foundation of shell rock is to be laid a layer of crushed rock of a uniform thickness of six inches.

During the discussion of this resolution one councilman expressed the opinion that the system would cost the adjacent property-owners about $500 per lot, but others disagreed with him, saying that when the city owned its own rock crusher the work could and would cost less than when done by the contract system. The possibility of working the O. R. & N. into the combination was suggested, as its right of way abuts the lane.

A BIG RABBIT DRIVE

SETTLERS OF ECHO WILL MEET SUNDAY, JANUARY 18

Rabbit Pest Continues to Threaten Crops and Gardens—Repeated Slaughters Have Not Diminished the Number—Good Crowd Expected.

Following a custom that has been established for some years in the sage brush short grass districts of Eastern Oregon, the people of Echo and vicinity have arranged to have another rabbit drive.

The strenuous efforts made toward exterminating these pests, do not seem to have resulted in any visible decrease of their numbers or their ravages.

In the farming districts of Echo and Butter Creek, they are a serious menace to crops and year after year the residents of these localities have held drives and slaughters in hopes of relieving the situation.

The following letter is self-explanatory:
Echo, Jan. 14.—(To the Editor.)—Will you kindly let it be known through the columns of your excellent paper, that a big rabbit drive will take place at my farm, "The Old Allen place," three miles west of Echo, on Sunday, January 18. Everybody invited. Expect to have a good time. "Manufacturers and agents welcome; nobody barred."
