STUDIED THE STARS

TELEGRAPH OPERATOR AT KAMELA A SCIENTIST.

For Eight Years Watched the Revolutions of the Planets From the Roof of the Freight House—A Disastrous Partnership—Railroad Office a Scientific Work Shop.

It is not generally known that for eight years, Kamela, the station on the O. R. & N., that stands on the tip top of the Blue mountains, was the residence and workshop of one of the most noted scientific men on the Pacific coast.

In fact, the science studied by this man, is one not thoroughly understood by the masses of the people, and one which is often condemned by them as a fake, in their lack of a direct knowledge of the matter.

Charles T. Taylor, for eight years agent for the railroad company at Kamela, studied, practiced and taught the science of astrology.

He had every available scientific work on the subject stored away in his library, the astronomical and astrological charts which he had collected in years of study and investigation, formed a source of information on the subject that could scarcely be found outside of a scientific school.

Taylor was a student of the science itself, and not simply a fortune teller. He studied the effect of the planets on vegetation, the effect of the ruling stars on the lives and characters of people and could tell at a glance at a person, what the distinguishing characteristics were.

During the day he attended his duties as agent and operator, loaded and unloaded freight, made out bills and reports, and at night he spent the time in study and observation of the heavens and in making horoscopes for different people whom he had never seen, yet whose birthday and hour of birth might have been sent to him.

He had a seat arranged on the roof of the freight house, where he sat night after night, watching and studying the movements of the planets. He made accurate charts, showing the exact movements of the stars as seen from Kamela, which he sent to the United States Nautical station and observatory at Washington, under Dr. Simon Newcomb, who complimented him highly upon the accuracy of his work. Dr. Swift of the Mt. Lowe observatory of Southern California, also congratulated his efforts and he was quoted by many of the European astrological journals.

The office at Kamela was a veritable observatory. His charts and astrological maps were to be seen everywhere. His horoscopes of different people at the summit of the mountains, were looked upon as divinations worthy of closest attention.

In the "Q" railroad strike of 1889, he came west from Nebraska and drifted into the situation at Kamela. He was a native of Connecticut and started in the study of astrology at an early age. He became a telegraph operator when a mere boy and followed it as a livelihood, while pursuing his studies in his chosen science.

A woodchopper, named Cooley, drifted into the camps near Kamela five or six years ago, who was an enthusiast on astrology and his cabin, like the office at the station building, was a scientific work shop. He and Taylor prepared a most elaborate chart of the heavens, made of sections, which could be changed to suit the seasons, and the planetary movements, which was printed in San Francisco, and patented by them.

Cooley mysteriously disappeared with all the original data used by himself and Taylor in preparing the chart and was never heard from at Kamela again.

Taylor resigned his position as agent three years ago and went to San Francisco. Aside from the deep scientific study of his science, Taylor always followed to the minutest detail, the promptings of the planets. He scrupulously avoided partnerships after the disappearance of Cooley with his valuable charts, as he said it was a verification of the promptings of his planetary system that partnerships were unprofitable for him.

A boiler explosion in Tupper's Iron Works at Bilston, Stafford, England, Tuesday, resulted in the killing of five persons and the injury of 20 or 25 by steam and pieces of flying metal.

How an abscess in the Fallopian Tubes of Mrs. Hollinger was removed without a surgical operation.

"I had an abscess in my side in the fallopian tube (the fallopian tube is a connection of the ovaries). I suffered untold misery and was so weak I could scarcely get around. The sharp burning pains low down in my side were terrible. My physician said there was no help for me unless I would go to the hospital and be operated on. I thought before that I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which, fortunately, I did, and it has made me a stout, healthy woman. My advice to all women who suffer with any kind of female trouble is to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once." — Mrs. IRA S. HOLLINGER, Stillview, Ohio. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

It would seem by this statement that women would save time and much sickness if they would get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and also write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helps. No other person can give such helpful advice as Mrs. Pinkham to women who are sick.
