WHAT ALASKA MOST NEEDS.

Provision for Poor and Insane Suggested by Grand Jury.

Washington, Jan. 26 .- Secretary Shaw Saturday sent to the senate report of the grand jury of the first district of Alaska, indorsed by Judge Brown, in which are contained several important recommendations. The jury reports that there is great need of some provisions for the care and maintenance of the insane, indigen sick and Jaupers of Alaska. Other recommendations are for the payment of fixed salaries to United States commissioners and deputy marshals instead of fees; the rebuilding and enlargement of the Juneau jail; and adequate laws for the protection and preservation of the salmon supply.

The grand jury finds after investigation that past attempts to regulate gambling have been ineffectual, as owners of public gambling houses upon conviction in the courts, were fined trifling amounts, which they promptly paid and in five minutes had returned to the practice of their un-lawful occupation. The slot machine nulsance, the jury believes, could be stamped out if the marshal and his deputies would but earnestly endeav or to put a stop to the illegal use of
