FASHION'S PHASES

NEW TAILOR-MADE SUIT IS A JOY TO THE EYE.

Velvet Vies With Highly Finished Cloths for a Place of Favor and is Much Used for Tailor-Made Gowns.

New York, Feb. 2.—Everybody is crowding as many gaities as possible into the period which intervenes between now and the beginning of Lent, all of which is having a most delightful effect upon fashions.

There still remain some striking mid-winter styles and one sees them at receptions, teas, parties and in the shops where the buying of summer novelties is in progress. The great demand for thin materials just now is simply a forecast of the brilliant dress parade which will characterize the warm-weather season, and though it is well to prepare for days that are to come, one cannot neglect the styles that be.

The tailor made suit in its new spring adaptations is a joy to the eye and a distraction to the purse at the same time. It is not long ago since even the women of means boasted only one tailor suit and this she wore on every possible occasion; but things have changed and any wardrobe to be truly smart should contain three tailor made gowns at least—one of satin faced material for semi-dress occasions and informal affairs; another of rough goods and more severely carried out, for street wear exclusively, and the walking costume for rainy and dull days or for outings. Velvet vies with highly finished cloths for a place of favor and is really used more for tailor made gowns than for full dress occasions. Exclusive designs come trimmed with bands of woolen galloon braid. Such a decoration may be incongruous, but since the ensemble is chic one need go no further.

Whatever may be said against it, there is a dignity about the trained skirt that appeals especially to the modish woman and as long as clinging effect and slender outline obtain, this style of skirt will be worn. In it lies the hope of the short woman for relief from the horrors of dumpiness; it is likewise the salvation of the attenuated sisterhood whose angularities are transformed into graceful curves by soft, clinging folds.

So the long skirt will be on regie for another season at least.

Lace has become so indispensable a feature of fashion that it has invaded ever the province of the street gown. Not that touches of it have not been apparent of this style of dress before; but now it reaches the point of elaboration. A tailor made design which is deliciously smart is executed in pale tan ladies cloth and has alternating folds of panne velvet on both the skirt and bodice.

Down the front runs a broad band of heavy lace with a row of brown tassels on either side. Two rows of brown velvet in Roman key pattern trim the skirt. There are both economy and convenience in the new laces which combine embroidery, or art strips or tasseled bands and come ready to be applied to skirts and bodices. They save one the trouble of thinking out schemes of decoration as well as a harmonious blending of colors and when these two important matters of dress can be settled so easily, the price of the trimming is well worth the sacrifice made to "raise" it.

Continuing the description of the cloth and lace dress, however, the sleeves open over a Bishop sleeve of Russian lace and are laid in folds held in place by tiny bows of French knots.

The luxury of the twentieth century modes is expressed in two coats which are designed to go with the costume—one for the mild days and another for cold days.

The first is of pongee silk and reaches to the hem of the skirt. It is trimmed with Russian lace, while the Roman key pattern of the dress is carried out on lapels and cuffs.

The second coat is of black Melton. It has a cape of heavy white lace, which falls in long embroidered tabs in front, producing a smartly elegant effect. At the shoulders there are shorter tabs fastened to the lace with black embroidered buttons.

A hat of white beaver, for which tan may be substituted with good results, completes the costume and is trimmed with white liberty satin and a trailing white plume.

The passing of the white pouched bodices, which has seen its most palmy days, is emphasized in the new thin gowns. Until now Dame Fashion though tired of bloused effects, had nothing quite as pretty and generally becoming to take their place. But there has been going on some tall thinking out of which the idea of a fascinating little belt has evolved and though it is a straight little affair, requiring a good deal of "softening" through the assistance of chiffon, etc., it is really charmingly piquant.

It is possible now to get the loveliest thin gowns and lace robes for a really reasonable price. A fairy-like design which is worthy of imitation is strewn with flowers of Bouvais work. The skirt is soft and clinging, falling like a mist over a white satin lining.

The bodice, which is cut low, boasts no trimming except the Bouvais work and touches of lace about the décolletage. A sash of chiffon further adds to the sweetness of the effect.

Pink is among the revivals of the season for entire costumes. Of late its place has been usurped by pale blues and delicate greens, but it has returned to favor with a furor. A delicious frock of pink satin is made with long, clinging skirt appliqued in renaissance lace. The waist is relieved by touches of black velvet, which give it a decidedly Parisian appearance.

There is a pointed girdle of the lace and the sleeves, which are short, are of the satin, with a ruffle of lace under a full ruff of satin. The bodice is filled in above the girdle with soft folds of white chiffon. Clusters of tiny pink rosebuds are caught in with knots of black. Velvet ribbon adorns the front of the bodice.

The slashed seam effect has suffered no loss of favor by the changes of fashion. Indeed, the idea is daintily carried out in one of the new skirts—novelties in which are constantly appearing. The waist is in pale blue run's veiling piped with plaid silk. The sleeves are plain and full with a straight cuff.

The back fits closely and a distinguishing feature of the design is the absence of a yoke. The front shows the slashed, or slot-seam effect, with two narrow plaits on either side running from shoulder-seam to belt.

There are two or three shades among the spring colorings—holly, hock yellow, dove blue—whatever tint that may be—and a daring shade of cerise. They are quite pretty, but with the exception of the second, need the sobering touch of black to make it adapted to any but evening wear.

READ ALL OF THIS.

You Never Know the Moment When This Information May Prove of Infinite Value.

It is worth considerable to any reader to know the value of and use of a medicine, for if there is no occasion to employ it in the meantime, frail humanity is subject to many influences and unforeseen contingencies that the wisest are totally unable to gauge the future. Know, then, that Doan's Ointment will cure any case of Hemorrhoids, commonly known as piles, or any disease of the cuticle or skin, generally termed eczema. One application convinces—continuation cures. Read the proof:

T. H. Thomas, attorney, of 500 East Bennett avenue, Cripple Creek, says: "I just as emphatically endorse Doan's Ointment today as I did in the month of June, 1899. At that time I went to the drug store for a box which I used for itching hemorrhoids. A few applications gave wonderful relief, and a short continuation of the treatment cured me. There have been symptoms of a recurrence since, but a few applications of the remedy never fails to bring positive relief. My opinion of Doan's Ointment, then expressed, is the same today as it was when it was first brought to my notice."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name—DOAN'S—and don't be substituted.
