What a Blind Man Can Do.
Frank P. Baslin, the blind editor of Colorado, will lecture in Odd Fel- lows' hall Friday night on "What a Blind Man Can Do." The lecture will be under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. In speaking of Mr. Baslin, the Ogden Standard says: "Mr. Baslin has been deprived of his sight since 1881, and since that time he has built three houses, one in each of the fol- lowing towns: Salt Lake City, Utah; Carbondale and Delta, Col. He has also set type, run printing presses, bound books, and in his present oc- cupation as salesman for a Chicago clothing house, he has measured men for suits." During the last eight years, in working as a salesman for the clothing house, he has only made six measurements which were misfits. Among other occupations Mr. Baslin has followed, he ran a ranch in Colo- rado, and in telling of his experi- ences there, he referred to many hu- morous situations as occurred to him. Altogether, the lecture was a very beneficial, instructing and interesting one and was thoroughly appreciated."

FELLOW SERVANTS

RAILWAYS FIGHT THE EM- PLOYEES LIABILITY BILL.

Judge Bennet, of The Dalles, a Match for the Corporation Attorneys—Old Fight of Two Years Ago Being Re-Enacted at Salem.

Salem, Ore., Feb. 4.—The fellow servant bill before the legislature made a lively time lately in a joint meeting of the committees on rail- roads of the houses. Representatives of the railroad employes and of the railroad companies met in an argu- ment which lasted nearly three hours. The debate was enlivened by sharp personalities. The meeting was at high tension from beginning to end and showed that the fight over the fellow servant bill is to be one of the most spirited in the legislative busi- ness of the session.

The employes were represented by C. C. Loucks, of Portland, A. S. Ben- nett, of The Dalles, and A. C. Wood- cock, of Eugene. For the companies appeared W. D. Fenton, attorney for the Southern Pacific, R. Koehler, manager of that company, and L. R. Fields, superintendent for the O. R. & N., Wallace McCamant, attorney for the Columbia Southern, and J. P. O'Brien, superintendent. The spokes- man for the companies were Mr. Cot- ton and Mr. Fenton. Many outside persons listened to the debate, whose sympathies manifestly were with the employe's side of the argument.

Mr. Cotton and Judge Bennet got into a sharp colloquy several times, in which each landed a number of jabs on the other. After the fray was over, they shook hands and Judge Bennet asked: "Why is it, Mr. Cotton, that you always jump on me so hard?" Mr. Cotton pleasantly denied any such desire or intention, and the approach of midnight drew the gen- tlemen apart.

The bill in debate provides that a railroad shall be liable for injury sus- tained by an employe as follows: When the injury results from the wrongful act, neglect or default of an employe superior to the employe in- jured, or from such negligence on the part of a co-employe in another de- partment of labor, or on another train. Knowledge by an employe of unsafe condition of machinery or ap- pliances shall not bar recovery for an injury or death.

Mr. Cotton proposed an amendment to the effect that no lawyer for an in- jured employe should receive from his client more than 15 per cent of the sum recovered, that any charge in ex- cess of that proportion be void, and that the damages recovered should not be subject in case of death of the employe to the payments of debts or legal liabilities.

"This amendment," said Mr. Cotton "will tend to stop litigation." The speaker referred to a large fee which Judge Bennett received in a case won from the O. R. & N., which fee was over $11,000, one-half of the judgment. Judge Bennett was considerably nettled by this reference to himself and entered with a forceful argument against Mr. Cotton's amendment. He said that in such damage cases he al- ways contracted for 50 per cent of the judgment. He insisted that the ser- vice was worth the fee.

"I know Mr. Cotton's object," he declared. "It's to fix things so that the boys can't get any lawyers. That's the position the railroads would like to have them in."

"While we're amending the law," added the judge sarcastically, "I'd like to add an amendment myself."

"What is it?" asked Mr. Cotton.

"That a limit be put on your sal- ary."

"What limit do you suggest?"

"About $1500 a year."

"That would be very satisfactory," remarked Mr. Cotton dryly.

"And quite as reasonable," added Judge Bennet.

The railroad people did not fight the bill directly. They said rather that it should be made to apply generally and not specifically to their business.

"Have we," asked Mr. Fenton, "reached a period when we must legislate for 200 or 400 men? Extend the law to all men. Apply it equally to all, if it is to be enacted." Mr. Fenton con- ceded the power of the legislature to cause the proposed law to be en- forced, "but let it be general," he in- sisted. The speaker went on to say that the railroads were sufficiently liable under present laws and rulings of the courts. He insisted that train hands were much better paid than any other employes in the railroad service.

Mr. Loucks made an able speech for the bill. He said that the meas- ure aimed to protect the lives of em- ployes and the public. He pointed out the fact that in 25 or 26 states, there was a similar law. That 10 or 12 had completely abrogated the old common law doctrine. The speaker entered into a well-ordered discus- sion of the evolution of that doctrine and of the present day tendency to modify it.

"We do not propose," said he, "to do away with the common-law rule in Oregon entirely, only in part. This bill is not to collect damages but to prevent damages. We want appli- cation and machinery taken care of, and employes so regulated that danger of ac- cident will be reduced. This is not a fight against the railroads. We wish to see them make money and prosper, for we think we shall share their pros- perity."

Mr. Wood argued that the common- law doctrine relating to fellow serv- ants was a product of a condition which had been outgrown in recent years. He insisted that the regular dangers in railroading warranted the enactment of the bill. The effect of such legislation in other states was greater safety for employes and the public.

Judge Bennett made an impassioned appeal to the committee to recom- mend the bill, and after another brief exchange of compliments between him and Mr. Fenton and Mr. Cotton, the meeting dissolved.

"Lord Strathmore."

Miss Virginia Drew Trescott's re- markable performance of the charac- ter of "Lady Vavasour" in Verna Wood's immense dramatic version of Ouida's famous novel "Strathmore" is said to be so subtle that a new delight is found in every fresh view of it. She moreover shows such swift changes of passion and rapid transi- tions from one mood to another, that her creation must be seen several times before it can be appreciated. The novel of "Strathmore" is conceded by the literary reviewers to be Ouida's strongest effort, abounding with metaphors and literary gems which has astounded the critics. This production with its entire New York stage effects under the management of David Traitel will be at the Frazer Wednesday, February 4th.

LOOK OUT FOR CATARRH

When the cold wave flag is up, freezing weather is on the way. Winter is here in earnest, and with it all the miserable symptoms of Catarrh return—blinding headaches and neuralgia, thick mucous discharges from the nose and throat, a hacking cough and pain in the chest, bad taste in the mouth, fetid breath, nausea and all that makes Catarrh the most sickening and disgusting of all complaints. It causes a feeling of social defilement and mortification that keeps one nervous and anxious in the company of others.

In spite of all efforts to prevent it, the filthy secretions and mucous mat- ter find their way into the Stomach and are distributed by the blood to every nook and corner of the system; the Stomach and Kidneys, in fact every organ and part of the body, be- come infected with the catarrhal poison. This disease is rarely, if ever, even in its earliest stages, a purely local disease or simple inflammation of the nose and throat, and this is why sprays, washes, powders and the various in- haling mixtures fail to cure. Heredity is sometimes back of it—parents have it and so do their children.

In the treatment of Catarrh, anti- septic and soothing washes are good for cleansing purposes or clearing head and throat, but this is the extent of their usefulness. To cure Catarrh permanently, the blood must be purified and the system relieved of its foul secretions, and the remedy to accomplish this is S. S. S., which is no equal as a blood purifier. It re- stores the blood to a natural, healthy state, the catarrhal poison and effete mat- ter are carried out of the system through proper channels. S. S. S. restores to blood all its good qualities, and its rich, pure blood reaches the inflamed membrane and is carried through the circulation to all the Catarrh in- fected portions of the body, they soon heal, the mucous discharges cease and patient is relieved of the most offensive and humiliating of all complaints.

S. S. S. is a vegetable remedy and contains nothing that could injure most delicate constitution. It cures Catarrh in its most aggravated form and cases apparently incurable and hopeless. Write us if you have Catarrh and our physicians will advise you without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

MISS IDA M. SNYDER,

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

MENSTRUAL irregu- larities are gener- ally the beginning of a woman's trou- bles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weak- end, the digestion disor- dered, she goes about pale- faced, hollow-eyed and lag- gard, a pitious contrast to the blooming health of her former self. But over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual periods Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most per- sistent and aggravated case of weakness.

Miss Ida M. Snyder, of No. 535 Ber- gen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has used Wine of Cardui and she says it helped her into a new life. Health to Miss Snyder is worth a great deal. She is an attractive young woman with intel- lectual attainments and she occupies the position of Treasurer of the Brook- lyn East End Art Club. This position marks her as a person of intellect, cul- ture and refinement and it speaks highly of the respect and trust her fellow women have in her. She writes:

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelli- gence in the matter of medi- cines, observing results, they would find that the doctor's prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for."

"In consulting with my druggist he advised me to use Wine of Cardui and I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Theodor's Black- Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer because the disease has run longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.
