SAN FRANCISCO CITY

PLACES OF INTEREST THAT ATTRACT VISITORS.

People of All Nationalities to Be Found—Advantages for All Classes of People—Description of the Mint

San Francisco is a decidedly cosmopolitan city. One evening you can find an assemblage of several thousand people with a picturesque mixture of tartans and pipers and a choice of 500 singers doing honor with song and dance to the memory of Robert Burns, and on the next an equally large gathering of enthusiastic Irishmen paying their respects to "The Harp that once thro' Tara's halls" and no doubt every night in the week and perhaps in the month could be occupied by the different nationalities which have taken root in this busy city. But although this is a busy city, the idler from all lands and in all walks of life is here. In a party of six, who found themselves together one night there was one from Manila, one each from Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Australia and Oregon.

"Frisco Stake."

A number of years ago the writer of this article was helping to build a railway on Puget Sound and along in the fall of the year every second man in camp was working for a "Frisco stake" and toward this end all frivolities, luxuries and some of the necessities of life were sternly sacrificed. The "Frisco stake" it may be explained in passing, consisted of any where from $25 to $100, the $100, of course, preferred, and with this sum the festive railroader strook the dust of rather the mud of the camp from his feet, departed gaily southward and was seen no more until the following spring, when he would return and regale his less enterprising co-workers with lively tales of his winter life in "Frisco." There is, of course, a variety of explanations for the magnetism which seems to draw all sorts and conditions of men and women from all points of the compass. The student seeking to increase his knowledge can find educational facilities of the best. To the seeker after pleasure the passing show represented by about a dozen theaters and several dozen concert halls offers a range of entertainment at surprisingly moderate cost. If he tires of this and seeks more serious things, there are able lecturers on a variety of subjects, Church buildings with pulpit orators, cushioned pews, pipe organs, and open doors.

U. S. Mint.

The mint is one of the show places of San Francisco, and is well worth a visit. It is open to visitors every working day in the year from 9 to 11, and can turn out brand new money at the rate of nearly $5,000,000 a day. If you have a gold brick worth anywhere from $50 to $5,000,000 you can take it to the mint today, get Uncle Sam's receipt for it, come back tomorrow and get the same gold in $20 pieces, without costing you a cent for the process.

There are a number of rooms through which the visitors are shown. In the melting room the gold is seen first in bricks, $20,000 in each brick, and looked very tempting; these are placed in the melting pots; melted and poured into molds where they harden into bars about a foot long, half an inch thick and an inch wide, then they go to the press-room, where they are passed between rolls of a number of tons pressure, and come out in bars about five feet long and the right thickness for $5 gold pieces, which were being coined at that time. These bars are then covered with some kind of a composition, placed in a copper tube and subjected to a certain temperature of heat to soften them. They are then passed on to another room where the coins are cut out and stamped and the edges of the bars are returned to the melting pot. The newly made coins were in sight and looked very bright and nice; there did not seem to be anything to prevent a handful or two from being pocketed but perhaps good and sufficient reasons against such a course would have developed if the experiment had been tried.

Uncle Sam is very particular with his employees and makes them strip off the clothes they work in before they leave the mint at night. He cleans house sometimes, and on one occasion the carpet or floor covering in one room was burned and $4,000 which had settled in it in dust was recovered from it. So said the guide, a very venerable looking old gentleman who, of course, would not lie.

The Presidio.

The Presidio with its garrison of 1,000 or 5,000, its parade grounds, well-kept walks and drives is another of San Francisco's show places which should not be overlooked. A number of very formidable looking guns behind walls of solid masonry are placed in position to command the entrance to the Golden Gate. A schooner out at sea was towing in her wake some kind of craft rigged on for the purpose on which the efficiency of the gunners was being tested. In the Presidio cemetery among the rows are many marked by a marble slab with the inscription, "unknown" brought here from the Philippines and the various other places where their country's service called, and death had found them, and somewhere in many a home is the vacant chair once occupied by the sleepers in these unknown graves.

The city cemeteries have their own attractions and a quiet hour or a number of quiet hours can be spent here. Sailor, soldier, civilian, the wanderer from every clime have here found their last resting place, and here side by side in countless numbers are found "The lowly stone and stately column Which bear alike the meaning solemn That a soul hath read life's story to its close." C. E. McLELLAN.

KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Or Your Hair Will Fall Out Till You Become Bald.

Modern science has discovered that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp in scales, as it burrows down to the roots of the hair, where it destroys the hair's vitality, causing falling hair, and, ultimately, baldness. After Prof. Emsa, of Hamburg, Germany, discovered the dandruff germ, all efforts to find a remedy failed until the great laboratory discovery was made which resulted in Newbro's Herpicide. It alone of all other hair preparations kills the dandruff germ. Without dandruff, hair grows luxuriantly. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect." Sold by F. W. Schmidt & Co. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
