Dancing Party.

Invitations have been issued for a dancing party to be given by Fred Wills and Eugene Hunt, at Armory hall, Wednesday evening, February 13. The following ladies are named as patronesses: Mrs. Gilbert Hunt, Mrs. Prof. Lyman, Mrs. W. H. Crane, Miss Cobb, Mrs. Jay Williams, Mrs. Sarah Bowles.

Mrs. Younger Entertained.

Mrs. F. S. Younger was the hostess of a delightful card party on Friday afternoon, in honor of her daughter Mrs. William Powell, of St. Helens, and Mrs. Collins McIntosh, of Eugene. The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion. Progressive whist was played. Mrs. J. S. Wallace, making the highest score, carried off the first prize, while Mrs. John Haley, having the lowest score, received the consolation. At the completion of the game, light refreshments were served.

A Dinner Party.

A dinner party, pretty in all its appointments, was given at the home of Mrs. F. W. Vincent, on Wednesday evening. The table decorations were unusually attractive, being done in green and white. A large center piece of ferns adorned the center of the table, while about the edge was draped smilax. Candelabra, hooded in green, lent a pretty cast. Those who enjoyed Mrs. Vincent's hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Judd, Mrs. C. S. Jackson and Mr. McCabe, of Walla.

Club Notes.

The most important interest among the local clubs this week, and one to which a large number of the members are devoting much time, is the coming art exhibit.

This exhibit is for purely educational purposes. It consists of 150 pictures, all copies of standard works of art, and of a size suitable to be hung and are exhibited in large rooms.

To the question "who is to get the benefit," the club women patiently answer: every person who pays the small sum of 10 or 15 cents admission fee, and after that we hope to have enough surplus above expenses to place a few at least of the pictures in our public school rooms. The real purpose of the work is to train and cultivate a taste for the best in art in our children.

In addition to this, the pupils of our schools will get training of eye and hand and brain in the making of the frames for such pictures as the clubs will be able to buy. The clubs will undertake to furnish the glass.

It would not seem that an enterprise of this kind should require a great amount of advertising, but it is hoped that the public and lasting benefit that this exhibit will bring to our community will be brought home to every father and mother in our town, and the clubs look for a continuance of the hearty support they have always had in their work for a better Pendleton.

Parliamentary drill and some discussion of current events occupied the time at the Parliamentary Club meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The Thursday Afternoon Club will hold its next meeting Thursday, the 19th, at the home of Mrs. C. B. Wade, Locust Hill. The program will be "Some of the Masters in Art and Their Work." In response to the roll call the members will tell a short story of some artist or his work.

Several Club officers in Pendleton have received cards to an "at home" of the Athena Friday Club, to be given next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. C. B. Wade.

The January number of the Exposition, a monthly magazine published at Portland in the interest of the Lewis and Clark fair and ably edited by Mrs. Edyth Tozier Weathered, contains the following excellent article concerning Mrs. C. B. Wade, president of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, and one of Pendleton's most highly respected women.

Mrs. Wade enjoys the distinction of not only being the first president of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, but is now serving the second term as the presiding officer of that organization. Before Portland had organized a woman's club Mrs. Wade had gained for herself a national reputation as a club woman of experience and ability, and in the club world today is the best known woman in the state.

In 1894 Mrs. Wade was made state chairman of correspondence for Oregon by the general federation of Woman's clubs, and at the request of Mrs. Henriotin and other members of the national board, allowed herself to be reappointed at the biennial convention at Louisville, Ky., in 1896. At this convention Mrs. Lillian Smith, of the Thursday Afternoon Club of Pendleton, was the first accredited delegate to a biennial convention from Oregon. Mrs. Wade having been detained en route by sickness, Mrs. Wade has kept herself in close touch with the most progressive club women and methods of work throughout the United States, but particularly has she interested herself in the accomplishments of the New England women, where she herself holds such an enviable place, having been made an honorary member of two clubs that have attained national prominence. To Mrs. Wade may be said is due the credit of introducing Oregon to the club women of the East, for on every occasion has she put forth Oregon's claims for recognition and brought the club work of Oregon before the national body. At present Mrs. Wade is vice-president of the Hudson Bay Pallsade Association, and of the Association for the Saving of Cliff Dwellers. She was the first Oregon member of the National Civic League, and is a life member of the Oregon Historical Association, and is actively working for the St. Louis exposition.

From "The History of the Woman's Club Movement of America" we quote the following: "Her childhood was spent in a home where plain living and high thinking was the order of the day. All the great social, theological and political reforms and questions of the day were talked over and discussed in her father's house, as in all New England homes. She grew up in the atmosphere charged with the enthusiasm and moral purpose brought into life by the Civil war. "Like many other club women, Mrs. Wade is an accomplished housekeeper, but more than all a home-maker. She is an inspiration to her husband and a loving, careful guardian of her sons, and a true and faithful friend. Mrs. Wade has always been an advocate of the higher intellectual development of women and a lover of the best literature. She adds to her many other qualities that of being a writer of no mean ability."

Notes and Personals.

Struck Excellent Water.

William Neeman and Carl Kupers have returned from a trip up into Franklin county, Washington. Mr. Neeman, filed last summer—after harvest—on a quarter section of government land in Franklin county. Mr. Neeman was told by the people living in the neighborhood that water could not be found thereon, and that the soil was poor, and his neighbors generally thought he was hair-brained. Mr. Neeman replied by keeping his own counsel and doing as he pleased. He obtained the services of a "water witch," who told him he could find water at a certain place. He dug there and found a great abundance of excellent water at 28 feet depth. He has since been offered $2,500 for his rights to the place, but will not sell. Instead, he will seed a large part of the place to wheat the coming year.

HOTCHKISS EXPLAINS.

Says He Did Not Know That Mr. Bard Was in Town—Therefore Ordered Janitor to Put Out the Lights. Robert Hotchkiss, the secretary of the Men's Resort, makes the following explanation of the failure to receive and entertain Rev. Andreas Bard last evening. He himself did not arrive at the depot in time to meet Mr. Bard. The lady who was to have entertained Mr. Bard was there, however, but did not see Mr. Bard, nor did the latter see her. She went home, supposing Mr. Bard did not come.

Later, Mr. Hotchkiss, learning from the lady mentioned, that she had seen nothing of Mr. Bard, went to the Hotel Pendleton, the Golden Rule and to the home of Rev. Potwine in a vain search after Mr. Bard, confident that he would be found at one of those three places if he had come to the city. Not finding him, he phoned to Walla Walla—to St. Paul's College, where they knew nothing of Mr. Bard's whereabouts—whether he had left town or not. He also tried to phone to Mr. Bard himself, but he could not be found in Walla Walla, and no one could be found there who knew his whereabouts.

Then Mr. Hotchkiss went to the Presbyterian church at 7:30 o'clock and requested the janitor to pull the fire and put out the lights, supposing that Mr. Bard was not in town. Mr. Hotchkiss claims that he was at the Men's Resort from 8:45 until 10 o'clock last night and heard nothing that apprised him of Mr. Bard's presence in town. The incident will have to be passed up as a very clumsy one. However, the city will have an opportunity to hear the lecture, which Mr. Bard will deliver on the evening of Friday, the 20th.
