SCALP BOUNTY LAW

L. B. REEDER MAKES PERTINENT REMARKS IN PORTLAND.

Believes Repeal of Scalp Law Worked Temporary Hardship on Eastern Oregon—Says It is Unfortunate That Worthy Laws Are Killed Because of Unworthy "Riders."

"I do not wish to be classed with those who question the wisdom of Governor Chamberlain; I approve his actions and see reason in his vetoes, but I do deplore the necessity for repudiating the scalp bounty warrants still outstanding and in the hands of residents of Eastern Oregon."

The above statement, made this morning by L. B. Reeder, former speaker of the house of representatives of the Oregon legislature and a prominent attorney of Pendleton, to the Oregon Daily Journal, is believed to convey the general opinion entertained by residents of that section of the state. Mr. Reeder says the sheepmen, who occupy an important position in the affairs of Eastern Oregon, are complaining against the action of the legislature in repealing the scalp bounty act, but this sentiment is not that of the general taxpayer. The latter realizes that a heavy burden has been lifted, and is glad.

Governor Has Responsibility.

"I realize," said Mr. Reeder, "the truth of the assertion made by Governor Chamberlain that he was compelled to reject much that was really worthy because of its alloy with graft. It is a deplorable condition which permits covert intrigue and scheming and which may attach to a bill of the most vital importance some rider which places a certain clique or individual in a position to reap large benefits. It is the duty of the governor to prevent these things and the only way he has of doing this is by use of the veto. He must weigh everything carefully and act in accordance with his best judgment."

"Both republicans and democrats concede this to be the fact."

Speaking of the scalp bounty repeal, Mr. Reeder said:

"The sheepmen suffer great loss through attacks made by coyotes upon their herds. They are complaining against the repeal of the law. As long as there was a bounty upon the head of every coyote in the land people sought their lives, and the effort toward their destruction was general. With the bounty act repealed no one will war against coyotes but the shepherds themselves."

Asked what effect the veto by Governor Chamberlain of the scalp bounty deficiency appropriation would have, Mr. Reeder declared he did not believe the results, although damaging at present, would be lasting.
 "There are many of these warrants, issued after the original fund was exhausted, which still remain in the hands of Eastern Oregon residents," he said, "and others have bought them up and stand to lose largely in this way. I believe that at some future time they will be redeemed. I do not think the state of Oregon can afford to repudiate them. But just now a hardship is being worked. We hope it will come out all right in the end."

ALBA NOTES.

Ground Still Frozen—Mill Company Has 400,000 Feet of Logs Out—Farms Change Owners.

Alba, March 2.—The weather here is warm in the daytime and freezing at night. All stock are being fed at present and there is very little sign of grass. Snow is melting off in places but the ground is still frozen. We have had no chinook wind this winter to take the snow away.

The mill company here has gotten in about 400,000 feet of logs and will commence sawing the first of April. Tom Gilliland has purchased the Bradburn place, near Pilot Rock, for $9000. There are 480 acres of land in the place, 60 acres of which are in alfalfa. Mr. Gilliland will move

"MAGDA."

Final Appearance of Florence Roberts for the Season Tonight.

The final return for this season of the prominent emotional actress, Florence Roberts, is, as it always has been, welcome news to local admirers of the clever artist, whose number is legion. She is undoubtedly the reigning favorite here, and everything she does here is watched with interest. Probably one of the best performances she has ever given has been her impersonation of the name part in Soudermann's powerful drama "Magda," and its presentation tonight will be a desirable event. It affords her excellent opportunity for the display of her refined, artistic work, and presents her in a totally different atmosphere from the usual roles portrayed by her. It is the most impressive triumph yet scored by Miss Roberts and one which has aided in placing her at the head of her profession. Her gowns in this presentation, are as usual, beautiful beyond description, and the production faithful in every detail.
