BUTTER AND EGGS ARE GETTING CHEAP.

Little Change in Outlook—No Demand for Wheat at Present Prices—Hide and Pelt Market Slow.

The only change in prices to be noted, compared with those quoted some days ago, is an advance in the price of ducks to the farmer, caused by scarcity. Otherwise, the prices to the producer and to the consumer as well, remain just where they were a week ago, though other fluctuations are imminent.

The hide and pelt market is slow.

Wheat Market.

Portland, March 5.—There is no change in the wheat market, either for better or worse; prices have been steady, but sellers have been rather scarce, and are not offering freely. Eight months of the cereal year have passed, and shipments for the season now totals 25,000,000 bushels, both wheat and flour. The main activity of the season is now about over, and from now on the market will be of a dragging nature. Exporters have a few cargoes yet to load, both here and on Puget Sound, and have more wheat than they can possibly ship on the same. Authentic reports from all over the Northwest indicate that only 5 per cent of the crop remains in the country unsold. Exporters are not making any bids at present, they prefer to do nothing before paying fancy prices for the sake of doing business. Quotations rule the same as last week, 76 and 77 cents for club, 88 cents for bluestem and valley 79 cents per bushel. It is stated that holders want 80 cents for club wheat; prices are 6 cents per bushel too high for any in the trade to do business on a safe basis.

San Francisco, March 5.—Locally, the wheat market is quite firm; as stocks are low, exports during the past week have been quite heavy. Millers are heavy buyers, as choice wheat is difficult to obtain and stocks are almost depleted. Exporters are endeavoring to clean up chartered tonnage. Reports indicate that the average is much larger this year. Quotations for No. 1 shipping, $1.50 per cental; milling, $1.57 1/2 @ 1.60.

Wool Markets.

Boston, March 5.—The government's quarantine against wool and the obedience of railroads to the order forbidding shipment of the material has led to a very quiet wool market. Bids for a big line of territory fleeces are under consideration, a fractional difference in price alone preventing a sale. Holders of wool have every confidence in immediate resumption of trade, and the quotations are strong. Quotations: Territory, choice staple, scoured basis, fine, 55@56c; fine medium, 52@54c; medium, 47@48c.

St. Louis, March 5.—Wool—Unchanged; territory and Western medium, 16@18c; fine, 13@16 1/2c; coarse, 13@15c.

very little is doing. The only pelts to come in during the past week have been a few dozen coyote and badger skins. About a thousand pounds each of sheep and cattle hides have been bought during the week.

One dealer declares that it takes constant rustling to find fat hogs enough to supply the local demand for meat. Another retailer states that he is having no trouble at all to get all the hogs he wants. As a matter of fact, veal is more difficult to secure now than hogs. It is only from the occasional owner of a cow or two that a calf fit for market can be purchased. The cattlemen and feeders will not sell their calves—they cannot be bought of them for nine cents per pound, dressed. The animals are more valuable to those who are situated so they can hold them and fatten on the range for next year's market. A calf that would bring 9 cents per pound now, or perhaps be worth $15, can easily be made worth $20 by next fall and gets all its increase in value off the range, where grass is already beginning to grow.

The grocers prophesy that butter and eggs will both be cheaper in a couple of weeks, the natural result of the advance of the season.

There is an abundance of California cauliflower, celery, lettuce, onions and spinach in the market today and will be for the remainder of the week.
