IMPROVE INDIAN SCHOOL.

Preliminaries for Erection of Boys' Dormitory at Chemawa Institute.

Salem, March 11.—Contractor C. A. Gray has started a force of men to work at preparing the site pursuant to laying the foundation for the new boys' dormitory at the Salem Indian Training School at Chemawa.

Congress has appropriated $25,000 for this building, which is to be constructed of brick, similar in design to the girls' dormitory, and it will be a magnificent structure, increasing the facilities of the institution very materially and adding greatly to the commanding and stately appearance of the other fine buildings.

Superintendent Potter, during his visit to Washington, D. C., this winter, succeeded in having an item for an additional appropriation of $15,000 inserted into the Indian appropriation bill, for the erection of an employees' hall, but owing to the death of Congressman Tongue and the illness of Senator Mitchell, there was no one to see the bill through when it came up for passage, and this item, among others, was stricken out.

Superintendent Potter is of a persevering and persistent temperament, however, and will not allow himself to become discouraged over this little disappointment, but will put forth his efforts to secure even more through the next congress.

The Chemawa school is forging rapidly to the front under Mr. Potter's management, and has begun to assume the proportions of a miniature city, with all of the conveniences of a large one, and with a population of about 700 people all told.

J. W. WIMER KILLED.

By Falling Tree Near Post, Crook County, Last Week.

Mrs. C. H. Spangh, of Looking Glass, received a letter Sunday from relatives at Post, Crook county, stating that her father, J. W. Wimer, was accidentally killed last Thursday, by a falling tree, near that place, says the Roseburg Review.

Details of the accident are not at hand. Mr. Wimer was formerly a resident of Douglas county, and is well remembered by many of our citizens.

At one time he lived on the Rancho del Rio on the North Umpqua River, later on the Briggs place, near Canyonville, and afterwards on F. B. White's farm, a few miles south of Roseburg. He was a successful dairyman and when he moved to Crook county, five years ago, he continued that vocation.

NOT A CANDIDATE

SPEAKER HARRIS DOES NOT WANT TONGUE'S PLACE.

Says He Favors a More Strict Assessment Law—Bill to List Property of Corporations Failed. But May be Introduced Next Session.

L. T. Harris, speaker of the house of representatives at the last session of the Oregon legislature, and prominently mentioned as a congressional possibility to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Thomas H. Tongue, arrived in Portland last night and when seen by a reporter for the Oregon Daily Journal at the Hotel Imperial this morning positively denied that he will be a candidate.

"Some time ago I gave out to my friends that I would not enter the congressional race," Mr. Harris said, "but thus far that determination has not been given publicity through the press."

"My business in Eugene is good and I cannot see my way clear to leave it at the present time. There seems no dearth of candidates, however, and I believe there will be plenty of them in the field when the time comes."

Harris' Assessment Bill.

During the recent legislative session Mr. Harris, although speaker of the house, went upon the floor and made a strong fight in favor of an assessment and taxation measure, which he introduced and which was designed to assess all corporation property and prevent the hiding of valuable holdings, thus escaping the payment of taxes.

Although defeated in this battle, Mr. Harris has not yet given up the contest, and still has hopes that his bill, or one drafted along similar lines, will some time become a law.

Speaking in this regard, he said:

"The day is surely coming, and it is not distant either, when the people will demand at the hands of the legislature a measure of this kind. I should not be surprised if my bill were introduced again at the next session. I certainly did all I could to secure its passage."

Meaning of the Bill.

"It was neither an assessment nor a taxation measure, in the true meaning of these terms; but simply made provision that each corporation must furnish a complete list of its belongings. A board was created and empowered to submit a list of questions and compel answers to the same. In the event any corporation refused to answer these questions, which were intended to develop the full holdings of each company, a fine of $500 for every day was provided."

"If such a law were made active there would be honest assessments, because state officials would be in a position to force property owners to disclose their holdings. Under the present laws assessors are badly handicapped."

Mr. Harris said the residents of Lane county, from which he was elected, were generally pleased with the work of the legislature.

"I have heard no very strong objections," he said, "although it is certain they would have been better satisfied had that assessment law been enacted."

Mr. Harris will return to Salem tonight on his way to his home in Eugene, where he is engaged in the practice of law.

STATE FAIR BOARD MEETS.

Will Repair the Grand Stand and Paint all Buildings.

The state board of agriculture is in session at Salem for several days, to revise the premium lists and take all steps to put the state fair grounds in order for the coming annual exhibit, says the Salem Journal.

President Wehring, Secretary Wisdom and Directors Settlement, Wilkins, of Eugene, and Chandler, are present, and the board will be in session several days at room eight, in the state house, lower floor.

The premium list will be subject to important revisions, and all who have suggestions to make to the board for the improvement of the list for the 1903 fair, will do well to make their wants known in person.

The board will also take up the necessary improvements, which were ordered by vote of the legislature, although the item for those expenditures was vetoed in the deficiency bill.

The foundations of the grand stand will have to be renewed, as the building is positively unsafe in its present condition. It is the intention of the board to overhaul the whole property, and make all repairs needed to protect and preserve the state fair plant, and keep it in order to hold the fair.

DEBTS ARE DWINDLING.

Walla Walla College Has Raised $13,000 From Sale of Books—Industrial Departments Provided for.

Already $13,000 has been realized from the sale of "Christ's Object Lessons," to be applied in payment of the indebtedness of Walla Walla college, and within a year, say those who have in their keeping the financial affairs of the institution, the college will be free from debt, says the Walla Walla Union. "Christ's Object Lessons" is a book supplied gratis by the Adventist Publishing House, and is being sold by members of the church at $1.25 per volume in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia.

The trustees at their recent meeting decided to give a greater attention to industrial education. Every teacher and student will be required to engage two hours per week in industrial studies and four hours per week in practical industries. The following industrial departments have been provided for: Carpentry, bookkeeping, poultry raising, gardening, horticulture, tent making, baking, cooking, household economy, nursing, engineering and shoemaking.
