has declined 5 cents per dozen. An bought heavy in the northern maralmost steady decline from now on is predicted.

One of the surprising things in the line of groceries was the sudden advance a few days ago of sugar by the sack, at retail, of 50 cents per sack. Local grocers do not pretend to understand the situation, as the trade journals assert that the world's visible supply of sugar is much greater than it was a year ago, when the advance was very slight. A sud- rail recently to be distributed to some den slump is predicted to keep out Hawaiian sugar. It is stated that state. Green beef hides have declined one cent on the pound, on account of their grubby condition. Dry beef hides in good condition, have advanced a cent and a half for the best, as will be seen by reference to the appended price list. Dry sheep pelts have advanced half a cent in the past few days. Wild pelts are beginning to come in since the mountains are open to travel, and hundreds more

San Francisco, March 12 .- There is nothing doing in the when market Eggs are beginning to be quite plentiful—enough so that the price have gone to new fields for wheat, and there is no doubt that they have kets, as recent receipts show this very clearly. Holders have not changed their ideas as to the value of their product and are holding for higher prices. A great many doubt if there is much wheat left, and that exporters are well aware of this and are buying in Oregon and Washington markets and the only buyers of homegrown grain are millers. About 1,000 tons of wheat have come down by of the leading mills throughout the

The Wheat Trade,

Portland, March 12 .- The market the past week has been very dull and nothing of any consequence transpir-ed in the wheat situation to cause any improvement. Foreign markets were all lower, and, in fact, it was difficult at times to obtain a bid for a cargo of wheat to the United King-dom. A few new charters were announced for the Cape, but the wheat for these vessels are on the docks and exporters do not have to bother about Dealer. going into the open market asking holders to sell the little that remains holders to sell the little that remains in the country unsold. SLEEPING ON A KONG.

No Soft Beds in the Flowery Kingdom. China is a land without mattresses or counterpanes. A bed, or kong, is merely a broad wall of brick built across the side of a room. On first acquaintances it seems absolutely impossible for an Anglo-Saxon, but a man in the interior of China must either sleep on a kong or not sleep at all, says a writer in Outing. I de-termined that if the bricks would not yield to me I must yield to them, and, as a means of yielding gracefully, studied the sleeping methods of my Chinese companions. I found that their practice was to climb inside of Chinese companions. quilted sacks, called pookas, which they tied and folded around themselves until a row of men on a kong looked not unlike sealed envelopes. Whenever they rolled or turned over in their sleep, their pookas rolled with them: in whatever position they happened to lie on the brick pile. they could not escape the amelioratthey could not escape the ameliorat-ing effect of their pookas, obviously I, too, must have a pooka. From a dealer in leather in a town through which we passed, I got two goat skins. I had them sewn together with the hair side in. I devised a system of strings by which I could the myself in my appliance, and in this way I suc-ceeded in sleeping in China.
