TALK ON IRRIGATION

CHIEF MEAD, OF GOVERNMENT BUREAU COMING MAY 10.

Preparations Will be Made to Call Out a Large Public Gathering to Hear Irrigation Projects Discussed—Good Result of Work of Oregon Delegates to Convention.

Elwood Mead, chief of the bureau of investigations of irrigation, of the United States government, will be in Portland May 10 on his way from California, where he has been the past two months, to Washington.

Mr. Mead is one of the greatest authorities on irrigation in this country. He has agreed that it will be possible for him to stop in Portland long enough to deliver an address to the people on the subject of government irrigation work throughout the arid West.

Mr. Mead's interest in Oregon and her wants in the way of government improvement has been stimulated through the meeting with the delegates from Portland who went to Colorado Springs to the National Irrigation convention last year. At that convention the delegates formed a close alliance with Mr. Mead, and by subsequent correspondence with him while at Berkeley University it was arranged for him to visit Portland. A. King Wilson, an attorney, conducted the correspondence, and it is to him that Mr. Mead addresses his letter.

It is probable that Mr. Mead will lecture here under the auspices of the public promotion bodies of the city. Mr. King said today, just after receiving the letter, that he hoped to get Mr. Mead to follow up his expressed interest in Eastern Oregon's arid region by doing something very soon toward the projects for improvement.

Plans for arousing public attention and the selection of a date and a place for Mr. Mead's lecture will soon be taken up by the board of trade and other commercial bodies.—Telegram.

STORIES FROM ARKANSAW.

O. R. & N. Brakeman, Thomas W. Jackson, Publishes a Book.

"On a Slow Train Through Arkansaw" is the title of a little volume just issued by Thomas W. Jackson, an O. R. & N. passenger brakeman, running between Pendleton and Spokane.

The book is replete with funny railroad stories, experiences and incidents. It contains a world of fun in the latest and brightest minstrel jokes, darkey wit and humor and conundrums.

Mr. Jackson is well known in Pendleton, having worked between Pendleton and Portland for eight years, with Conductor J. J. Burns, and also between Pendleton and Huntington. He is the oldest passenger brakeman on the O. R. & N. system and has a host of friends here.

The book has been placed on sale on the O. R. & N. trains and in this city. Mr. Jackson will lay off for a short time and introduce it in all the cities of the Northwest.

"FINNIGAN'S BALL" TONIGHT.

New Specialties Have Been Introduced in This Old Comedy.

That merry melange of mirth and music, "Finnigan's Ball," and Gallagher and Barrett and a merry satire of clever farce comedy people, will be seen at the Frazer tonight. This is the eighth year of "Finnigan's Ball," but like all other farce comedies, it possesses that advantage which can be found in no other style of dramatic performance, the advantage of being changed from year to year, new specialties introduced, new comic-reliefs added. In fact, even the plot itself has changed about and still passes as "The Ball." So it happens that those who have seen this famous farce before need not hesitate to see it again, thinking that they are to see the same old piece. On the contrary, it has been entirely re-written this year, and the author of the original piece would not find a line of his work.

Memphis Shops All Ready.

Memphis, Tenn., April 9.—The shops of the Illinois Central in South Memphis, constructed at a cost of more than $400,000, have been completed and are now ready for operation. They are the largest of their kind in the South and will be used for all sorts of repair work, but their chief occupation will be the building of locomotives. Since the announcement nearly a year ago that it would build these shops, the Illinois Central has expended something over $1,000,000 in Memphis.

The Oregon Daily Journal can be found on sale at Frazer's book store.

THOUGHT IT WAS MURDER.

Laughable Episode in Walla Walla Last Night.

Residents in the vicinity of Jones and Fourth streets early this morning were horrified at the piercing screams of a woman calling wildly for help and the rapid discharge of a revolver.

With visions of murder flitting across his mind, a prominent member of the city council sent in a hurry-up call to police headquarters, but a search at the time failed to reveal the cause of the disturbance.

A later investigation, however, disclosed that a white horse which had broken loose from his moorings during the night and wandered into the yard of a prominent citizen of that neighborhood who was away for the night. His wife, thinking a burglar was about to make an attack, opened fire through the window.

Several shots were fired from a heavy revolver and each report was punctuated by a blood-curdling scream for help. It was an extremely funny joke after the matter was cleared up, but no laughing matter during its enactment in the chill dark hours of the morning.—Walla Walla Statesman.

Makes a Clean Sweep.

There's nothing like doing a thing thoroughly. Of all the salves you ever heard of, Bucklin's Arnica Salve is the best. It sweeps away and cures burns, sores, bruises, cuts, boils, ulcers, skin eruptions and piles. It's only 25c, and guaranteed to give satisfaction by Tallman & Co., druggists.

SOLDIER MISSING.

Private Parker, of Walla Walla, Wanders Away While Insane.

Believed to be suffering from a mild form of dementia, Private Parker, of the Thirtieth Battery, field artillery, yesterday left his quarters at the post and a diligent search by the police and military authorities today failed to reveal his whereabouts, says the Statesman. The missing man has been melancholy for some time, superinduced by homesickness and a fear that he could not buy his discharge. He is a new man in the service and of exemplary habits.

He was preparing to buy his discharge, having saved up the necessary money and the papers were ready for him to sign, but at the appointed time he failed to put in an appearance and search revealed the fact that he had absented himself from the fort. He was discharged from the post hospital a few days ago. His parents reside in Indiana and he was preparing to return to them.
