NORTHERN SECURITIES CO. MAY PAY MAY DIVIDENDS

Judge Sanborn, After Hearing Arguments, Permits the Stockholders Several Privileges.

St. Paul, April 20.—Before Judge Sanborn today arguments are being made for and against the modification of the decree in the Northern Securities case, permitting a payment of the May dividends. District Attorney Haupt argued against it, taking the ground that it was not a case of equity, but a statutory case and that it was not in the province of the court to allow the law to be disregarded.

He declared that a suspension decree would allow the merger to continue violating the law. The argument that the market would be affected was one that would not appeal to the court.

Judge Young then began his arguments for a modification.

May Pay Dividends.

Judge Sanborn, after hearing the arguments, ruled that the Northern Securities might pay the May dividends, May 1, holding that the federal court by an injunction preventing the merger from voting the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, has a sufficient hold on the concern. He held that the injunction against the dividends was auxiliary and could not be modified by the court, in as much as such dividends do not belong to the United States.

The Decree.

The decree permits the stockholders of the Northern Securities to exchange their stock for the stock of the railways for which it was issued. If the supreme court affirms this decree the stockholders of the Securities Company can take exchange and draw dividends from the companies.

Protects Stockholders.

If the supreme court reverses the decree the same parties can draw from the Securities Company. The retention of the dividends by the railway companies while the appeal is pending would not enhance or speed the enforcement of any legal right of the United States while it might inflict unnecessary loss and injury upon the stockholders who are justly entitled to receive these dividends as soon as they are earned.

It is the purpose of the government to enforce the law against all illegal combination in restraint of trade. During the pendency of the appeal the government is protected by that portion of the injunction which forbids the acquisition or voting of any stock of these two railway companies. The appeal in this case will probably be determined by the supreme court about November.

It is not perceived how a retention or payment of dividends during the pendency of the appeal can injuriously affect any right of the United States in this litigation and the only question is as to whether the dividends shall be paid up in the treasury of the railway companies or be paid to the stockholders to whom they legally belong and who must ultimately receive them, which ever way a final decision in the case may be.

Filed an Appeal.

Immediately after the decision the Northern Securities filed an appeal and following the order of the court gave bonds for $50,000. Every point made by the railway attorney was sustained. Judge Sanborn elucidated his position at length and said the defendants hadn't asked the court to suspend the entire injunction, but only that portion which restrained the payment of dividends pending an appeal.

Wall Street Surprised.

New York, April 20.—Northern Securities stock jumped from 94 1/2 to 99 immediately when the news of the suspension of the injunction permitting the May dividends, was announced. Wall street was surprised.

John K. Lincoln, of Plattsburg, Mo., an old friend of E. M. Lyons, of Pendleton, last week died in Plattsburg, leaving some peculiar provisions in his will. One was that the best band in Northwestern Missouri should be hired to play at his funeral and at the cemetery. This was done and the Cameron band was secured for the occasion. According to his explicit instructions the band played "Home, Sweet Home" on the way to the cemetery, and "Dixie" during the entire time that the earth was being shoveled into the grave. Mr. Lincoln was an unreconstructed Confederate and deemed it an honor that the laborers who covered him for his long sleep should do so to the strains of the Confederacy's national tune.
