TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1902.

Every trying experience demands a strengthening of one's faith or a deepening of one's self-possession. For the natural tendency is to fear, worry and doubt. We are not sure of ourselves until we have met and undergone the test of a severe experience. Any experience, then, that strengthens this inward repose is rather a blessing than a hardship.—Horatio Dresser.

CHILD INSTINCTS.

Many ways of infancy and childhood seem to adults unnatural; and if children chance, as they frequently do, to exhibit tendencies animal rather than esthetic, we are apt to consider them such as to be properly frowned upon. Yet it might often contribute to one's equanimity if it were borne in mind that child instinct, more frequently than reason, is in the right.

For example, the lusty fit of crying incident to the baby's bath, although it may prove annoying to the mother, is one of the best possible tonics for the infant. The vigorous respirations and increased activity of the muscular tissues conduce even more than the friction of the bath towel to a healthy glow to the skin. The infant that is obstreperous enough to resent with loud crying its nurse's efforts to soothe it, until it is again in its flannels, is not likely to take cold from its bath.

Again, in the matter of eating, the child sometimes exhibits singular tendencies. From the time a child begins to come to the table until the period of youth, he often shows strong likes and dislikes. Just how much such tendencies may be combated is perhaps of little moment, but in the quality of food desired, each child should be a law unto itself. To bribe or coax a child to eat more than he wants is certainly not commendable. Many who as children, are extremely "delicate" in their eating, develop in later life digestive organs of superior quality. Over-feeding is never so fraught with danger as in childhood, and in those numerous cases in which the child's instinct opposes the eating of as much food as is ordinarily regarded as normal, it should be respected. In the event of a small appetite being the evidence of an impaired vitality or disease, other concurrent symptoms will be so evident as to lead to consultation of a physician. Glowing cheeks and sturdy limbs are admirable and a delight to fond parents, but to many children they are simply not natural, and no amount of food can produce them.

In many children nature exhibits a conservative tendency, and the scrawny limbs and sallow cheeks may be an indication of conserved energy by virtue of which some organ or organs may not be overtaxed during the growing age.

The diseases of childhood often result in temporarily damaged organs, which time and a following of the instincts of preservation which nature meanwhile imposes may entirely overcome. Thus it is that many children, regarded throughout childhood as delicate and not likely to survive till adult life, not only reach manhood and womanhood, but attain qualities of extraordinary physical or mental vigor.

It is well to realize that very rarely are there two children, even in the same family, similar in their physical equipments, and that therefore no "rule of thumb" method of rearing them is ever eminently successful.—Youth's Companion.

THE SCHOOL PROPOSITION.

The proposition to bond the school district for $25,000 for another eight-room brick school building was voted down by the taxpayers, and by a surprisingly small vote, displaying a lack of interest in so important a matter, which is not creditable to Pendleton and Pendleton's good name for enterprise and progress. However, the vote is not so much an expression against better school facilities as it was against the location and plan of the proposed school building.

Again it is surprising that those who have children of school age and little property had not the interest to go to the polls, thus allowing those to a large degree who have property in the district out of proportion to children to go to school to work and vote against the proposition and thus defeat it.

The people of Pendleton—the taxpayers—must look the school situation in Pendleton "square in the face." Pendleton cannot be allowed to stand still or go behind in this connection. It must continue to go ahead! Good schools are the best kind of a "standing advertisement" for a town.

The East Oregonian, as one deeply interested in Pendleton and her institutions, suggests that a meeting be called and held in the Commercial Club rooms to devise ways and means to meet the school needs of Pendleton, which are pressing for settlement. There is an abundance of civic virtue, public spirit and appreciation of educational advantages in this community to settle the question at issue right and go forward in the good work of making Pendleton a better place to live in.

Let those interested just get together and they will be surprised at the result. CALL A MEETING.

Charles Hanford, supported by an excellent company, delighted a large and appreciative audience with his interpretation of "Much Ado About Nothing" last night at Frazier's opera house. Mr. Hanford is among the most capable of the interpreters of Shakespeare's works. Responding to an enthusiastic encore, Mr. Hanford thanked the audience for its appreciation. He referred to a Pendleton blanket which the Current Literature Club had given him during the day, and said that Pendleton would always have a blanket mortgage on his interest and affections.

President E. E. Lytle, of the Columbia Southern, in a recent interview, says he will not sell his road to the O. R. & N. Instead, he will extend his road from Shan'ko southward into the John Day country. The road from Elgus to Shan'ko has provided a paying proposition and there is no reason why its extension would not prove equally profitable. The country it will penetrate is rich in natural resources and with the extension of the railroad it will rapidly develop. Splendid fruit can be raised in the John Day valley, and with a chance to market their products many orchards will be set out.

After killing six men in his escape and flight, the notorious outlaw, Jim McKinney, has been killed by the brother of one of his victims in Bakersfield, Cal. When a man starts in on a career of crime it is generally only a question of time till he gets to the end of his rope. Nowadays he can not expect to remain long unwhipped of justice.

MISS STONE'S PERSONALITY.

It is doubtful whether there is at the present time a living woman whose name has become so familiar throughout the world as Miss Stone's the consecrated missionary who has been in captivity in the Balkan Mountains for almost six months.

Miss Stone is a woman of medium height, with round, pleasing face that has lost none of its rotundity by the terrible experiences through which she has passed, a voice of considerable carrying power, and that has a wonderful quality of changing as occasion demands from laughter to pathos, of sternness to gentleness, from mirth to sadness. Despite the crisis through which she has passed, Miss Stone is a remarkably well preserved woman. No nervousness marks her actions, but steady and resolute is every movement. She is affable and a most agreeable woman to meet. She tells her story in a natural way, that not only interests, but at times thrills her hearers, who often wait in breathless suspense until she finishes a sentence.

Wyoming sheepmen are preparing for the inevitable clash with the cattlemen unless a satisfactory division of the ranges is made. The scene of the trouble is in the Sweetwater country. It is probable that the militia may be called out if the sheriff decides he can not handle the situation.

MILES ON THE PHILIPPINES.

General Miles' visit of inspection to the Philippines was an event of very great political and moral consequence to this republic. Experience and ability qualify him for quick and just observation, and his official position as commander of the army would give deserved weight to his findings upon the condition of the Philippines and of our troops there stationed. General Miles has of course made to the secretary of war a full report. Why has this not been made public? The facts are of interest to our people. They are paying the heavy bills for our experiment in "paternalism" and they have the right to know what they are getting for their money. That knowledge, based upon the highest military authority, is in possession of the war department. It should be published.—World.

Frequent Throbbing Headache.

There's many a cause for headache. Men are not often troubled by headaches. When they are it is generally due to biliousness or indigestion. But women have headaches which seem peculiar to their sex, frequent nervous throbbing headaches. Does it not seem as if such headaches peculiar to women must be at once related to womanly disease? Women who suffer with diseases peculiar to the sex do not realize the drain of vital strength and nerve force they undergo as a consequence of disease. It is this which causes the familiar headaches of sick women.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures such headaches by curing the cause—irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness. "Favorite Prescription" invigorates and tones up the entire system, encourages the appetite, quiets the nerves and gives refreshing sleep.

"I was troubled with congestion of the uterus and female weakness for five years," writes Mrs. Robert Kerwin, of Albert, Hastings Co., Ont. "Was so weak and nervous I could hardly do any work. Had severe pain in back, also dizziness and pain in head. My heart would beat so hard and fast at times I would have to sit still till I got all right again. But after taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' I felt entirely well. I also used one box of 'Laxative Tablets' and one of 'Suppositories' as directed. All the symptoms of my trouble have disappeared and I am completely cured. I thank you for your kind advice and your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.
